KILLER GUILTY; LIFE IN CELL

PRESS TO HONOR 1733 CHAMPION OF ITS LIBERTY

John Peter Zenger's Deeds Recalled.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

They were silent, grim, and watchful.

What they and three hundred more of their fellow citizens did during the next twenty-three hours, and the faithful newspaper reporting of their actions, formed the opening scene of a crowded two-year drama which passed into American history as "The Freedom of the Press and How It Was Won."

The hero of this drama was John Peter Zenger, aged 33, an obscure German-American reporter and printer of New York City whom threats could not intimidate nor imprisonment silence.

Brave, Faithful Zenger.

He was not a brilliant writer nor always even a grammatically correct one, but he had fortitude, pertinacity, and a keen eye for essential facts. When New York City's only newspaper, the conservative—and intimidated—Weekly Gazette, refused to print John Peter Zenger's account of the memorable day at Eastchester the reporter walked out of the Gazette office, talked briefly and to the point with other friends of freedom, and within a week founded the New York Weekly Journal.

For two years—seven months of that time from a prison cell—he made his little newspaper a thorn in the side of the corrupt and vicious British governor whom George II., with more than ordinary Hanoverian stupidity, had sent to misrule the province of New York.

Bells and Cannon Proclaim Victory.

But Zenger and his colleagues won against the crown. He was acquitted of printing and publishing "several false, scandalous, and seditious libels." At news of that acquittal the colonists rejoiced from Boston on the north to Charleston on the south, and in New York City the friends of freedom flew flags, rang church bells, fired cannon, and bestowed—in a golden box—the freedom of the city on venerable Andrew Hamilton of Philadelphia, the best constitutional lawyer in the colonies, for his "learned and generous defense of the rights of mankind."

The verdict was momentous because it exploded the benighted and iniquitous theory of "the greater the truth the greater the libel," which for centuries had been precious to English tyrants.

Officials No Longer Immune.

It also established the right of newspapers to expose and censure the acts of faithless officials. It gave the American press a chance to breathe. It wrought into the very fiber of the colonials and their descendants the truth that the freedom of the press is essential to the freedom of the people.

The acquittal, the victory, and the recognition of the prime essential of a people's freedom proceeded in close-packed sequence from that silent, watchful march onto the village green at Eastchester at midnight of Oct. 28, 1733, and from Reporter Zenger's truthful account of what was done next day on the green.

Great Concourse of Editors.

American newspaper publishers and editors who constantly are vigilant for the preservation of the freedom of the press and deans of schools of journalism who faithfully bear in upon their students the pricelessness of that boon will tomorrow celebrate Zenger's acquittal and his pathetic little newspaper's victory against tremendous odds.

From acquittal and victory they will draw lessons which in days when bureaucracy is riding high have a special timeliness, and they will reaffirm their allegiance to principles for which Zenger went to prison—and prisons were no parlors in his day.

James M. Beck to Speak.

A great constitutional lawyer—probably the foremost in America and certainly for years the foremost in congress—James M. Beck of Philadelphia, will be on the scene and will speak.

Robert R. McCormick, editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, chairman of the committee which organized the bicentennial celebration of Zenger's services and sacrifices, will preside and will deliver one of the commemorative addresses of the day.

Indiana Calls on Troops to Curb Bandits

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Indiana, confronted with a wave of lawlessness with which the civil authorities are apparently unable to cope, today took stern measures which it is hoped will wipe out banditry and halt the depredations of escaped felons from the Michigan City penitentiary.

Seventy officers and 560 enlisted men of the Indiana National Guard, selected for their ability with firearms, have been ordered into service with specific orders to war on the criminal element. They are to be supported by shotgun details formed by American Legion posts at the request of the state commander.

Shoot to Kill, Order.

Strategical plans call for the stationing of details of soldiers at forty-four secret points. They are to hold themselves ready, under the command of their officers, to surround any spots where bank bandits, gangsters, or escaped convicts are reported, and to shoot to kill if resistance is offered.

All the guardsmen are to be sworn in as special deputy sheriffs of the counties in which they are stationed, thus becoming technically a part of the civil law enforcing agencies and avoiding all conflict over military and civil jurisdiction. They will be under the command of Al Feeney, superintendent of the state police, who has suggested that the Legion reinforcements be given the same official status.

More Banks Are Robbed.

The necessity for such a safety plan became urgent after bank robberies yesterday at Fillmore and Modoc and the stickups of other banks the previous two days at South Bend and Greencastle. Also there have been recent raids, supposedly by bandits and escaped convicts, on the police arsenals at Auburn and Peru.

John Dillinger, said to be the chief of the most desperate of the criminal bands, has been identified as the leader of the Peru raid. Fear of him and his men, regarded as an organization as dangerous as the one headed by Jesse James many years ago, led Peru citizens to form a vigilante group of 100 and prepare for battle. The Dillinger gang is believed to include most of the eight convicts still alive of the ten who fled from Michigan City Sept. 26.

Bandits Have Machine Guns.

Matt Leach, captain of the state police, said tonight that the Dillinger gang is equipped with machine guns and bulletproof vests as well as plenty of cash.

Emergency vigilante organizations have been formed at Seymour and in Fulton county. Gov. McNutt has ordered that National Guard commanders remove the firing pins from all rifles and pistols left in armories.

WELFARE WORKERS PLAN A UNION TO GET PAY BOOSTED

The formation of a social workers' union to enforce higher wage levels, a 35 hour week and other benefits was proposed last night at a meeting sponsored by the Social Workers' Discussion group at 135 North Wabash avenue.

Arthur Witt, chairman of the meeting, read a proposed platform for establishment of the union.

"Present indications," the preamble said, "are that there is no likelihood of doing away with an extensive public relief service within the next few years. Public social work employés are therefore justified in considering themselves as permanently attached to this field."

The platform recommends a minimum salary scale ranging from $150 to $90 a month, with automatic yearly increases of 10 per cent for the first five years. A massmeeting will be held Nov. 6 to vote on the organization of a union.

Martin Insull Fights to Avoid Extradition

TORONTO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The year old effort of Cook county, Illinois, to take Martin J. Insull from his Orillia, Ont., home and bring him to trial in Chicago on charges of embezzlement and grand larceny neared a climax tonight.

The argument of counsel on Cook county's motion to have the former Midwest utilities operator extradited from Ontario may be completed before Justice A. C. Kingstone tomorrow, it was indicated.

Addressing Justice Kingstone late today, Defense Counsel F. I. Hellmuth declared that under Canadian law grand larceny and embezzlement may be considered "theft or stealing."

Examines Two Chicagoans.

He spoke after Oscar E. Peterson and C. L. Hitchcock, both of Chicago and both formerly employed in the offices of the Middle West Utilities company, an Insull holding company, had been examined.

Specific charges on which Cook county seeks to have Insull extradited are embezzlement of $344,000, $104,000, and $60,000—"insignificant compared to the figures in which the company dealt," Hellmuth contended.

As outlined by defense counsel, Martin Insull's stock transactions were made by "borrowing" from the Middle West Utilities. He said Hitchcock's evidence showed that Insull "had simply been borrowing in conformity with apparently a policy of the company not only to lend the employés money but not to charge them interest."

"That isn't theft," he declared.

Tells of Check Deals.

Peterson's evidence had shown that checks made out to a Chicago broker-are firm were from the Middle West Utilities company, and covered Martin Insull's account. This, according to Hellmuth, made the securities the possession of a syndicate and they could later have been sold at a profit to the syndicate.

Edward Eayley, deputy attorney general for Ontario, who is representing Cook county in the proceedings, is to open argument tomorrow morning.

Insull is the brother of Samuel Insull whose extradition from Greece is sought in connection with the collapse of the utilities.

Insull Sits Alone.

The white haired Insull, who has lived at Orillia, Ont., more than a year, sat alone on a back bench in the courtroom. Ely Aaron, Insull's Chicago attorney, and D. C. Woods, United States consul at Toronto, also were in the special court presided over by Justice A. C. Kingstone.

J. C. McRuer, chief of the defense counsel, examined Peterson.

GERMAN ENVOY EXPOUNDS NAZI AIMS IN CHICAGO

At a Chicago banquet table draped with the swastika banner and the Stars and Stripes, Dr. Hans Luther, once chancellor of Germany, later president of the Reichsbank, and now German ambassador to Washington, set forth the creed of his present political chief, Adolph Hitler, in blunt words last night. An audience of 600, including bankers, industrialists and prominent German-Americans, attended the function given by the Union League club in its building.

The occasion marked the formal visit to A Century of Progress of Dr. Luther and another renowned German, Dr. Hugo Eckener, who had brought his dirigible Graf Zeppelin to Chicago to salute the Fair. Due to inclement weather, the Graf's arrival was timed for an early hour yesterday before most Chicagoans had arisen. The ship stayed aground only twenty minutes at Curtiss-Wright airport near Glenview because of the inclement weather, and the proposed flight to Milwaukee was canceled. Then the Zeppelin sailed over the Fair grounds and sped east to Akron, O., where it docked at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Talks in Forthright Fashion.

In his one hour talk last evening, Dr. Luther treated of the Nazi position on disarmament, the league of nations, Germany's alleged imperialism, Jewish-American boycotts of German goods, and Chancellor Hitler's social ideals. Delicate as some of these subjects might appear to be, Dr. Luther seemed to be following the Nazi formula of leaving no doubt as to where Herr Hitler stood.

Before entering the banquet room, Ambassador Luther and Dr. Eckener met some of the guests in a lounge upstairs. Among them were Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress; Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, commander of the Great Lakes Naval Training station; Carl Latham, president of the Chicago Bar association; Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul general for Chicago; and Fire Marshal Arthur Seyferlich, representing Mayor Kelly.

Sing Anthems of Two Lands.

A band struck up the German anthem, "Deutschland Ueber Alles," as the party reached the banquet table, but few among the guests, aside from Dr. Luther and Dr. Eckener, seemed to know the words. "The Star Spangled Banner" was then played and the guests appeared to sound an especially fervent note on the phrases extolling "the land of the free." After a speech by Mr. Dawes praising the inventive and scientific achievements of the German people, Dr. Luther opened his address.

On disarmament, he spoke in part as follows:

"Newspapers in various countries have recently contained the misleading statement: 'Germany refuses to cooperate in disarmament questions.' Ladies and gentlemen, Germany disarmed years ago. Other nations pledged themselves to follow her example. After fifteen years of futile waiting for redemption of this pledge, Germany is not willing to continue to be put off. She will no longer be put off in this way.

Demands Action, Not Words.

"Henceforth we want action, not empty words. Clearly, we see our goal, which is complete disarmament. I wish to emphasize that our withdrawal from the league of nations does not mean that we refuse to cooperate with other nations. On the contrary, it goes without saying that we shall gladly accept the hand stretched out to us by any other nation."

Dr. Luther then took up the charges of German imperialism, charges that Herr Hitler would like to Nazify the world. He denied them in toto. He said such charges had hitherto been leveled against Russia, Great Britain, Japan and "even the United States." He asked how Germany, a state no larger than Texas, with a few insignificant colonies in East Africa and the South Seas, could have been accused of imperialism, even before the war. He averred that Chancellor Hitler had recently forbidden even private discussion of such aims in an order to the whole people.

"My government aspires to something entirely different," the ambassador explained, wherewith he launched

Jury Convicts Him in Slaying of a Bystander

William Madden, 28 years old, member of the "42" gang of west side hoodlums, was found guilty of the murder of Emil Onesta, 40 years old, 940 Polk street, last night in the Criminal court of Judge Benjamin P. Epstein. The jury, which deliberated for almost four hours, fixed Madden's punishment at life in the penitentiary.

Madden is the sixth murderer to receive the life penalty since the time war began last August. Five others have been sentenced to death. Two of these have already been executed. In addition to these penalties six slayers have been sentenced to serve 199 years, three to 100 year terms, one to 60 years, one to 30 years, three to 20 years, and two to 14 years.

Two Oppose Death Penalty.

The jury in the Madden case retired at 5:15 p. m., after Assistant State's Attorney Martin Ward had demanded the death penalty in his final argument. At one time in the jury's deliberations, according to Foreman Ernest J. Kraft, 659 Forsythe avenue, Calumet City, the members stood 10 to 2 for the death penalty, but the two dissenting jurors refused to be moved by argument. The jury returned with its verdict at 9 o'clock. A motion for a new trial was set for hearing by Judge Epstein for next Monday.

Onesta was shot to death as he stood in front of 1139 Taylor street. According to the state, Madden and Michael De Stefano, a fugitive, shot Onesta while trying to kill Frank Laino, chauffeur for "Dago Lawrence" Mangano, gang leader and public enemy.

Only One Witness Testifies.

Although 50 persons witnessed the slaying of the bystander, the state found only one man willing to testify. He is Ernest Cozzi, 1145 Taylor street, who identified Madden in court and named De Stefano as his companion.

The evidence showed that Madden and De Stefano set out to gather a defense fund for Sam De Stefano, brother of the missing defendant, who is now serving a sentence for bank robbery in Wisconsin. Their demands were refused by Laino. After getting guns Madden and his partner returned and opened fire on Laino. Laino was wounded and Onesta was killed.

Madden took the stand in his own defense. He denied a part in the crime, saying he was walking near the scene and fled when he heard the shooting because he thought the crime "might be hung on me."

Sentenced for Shooting.

James Kelly, 40 years old, who twice escaped from a Maryland prison while serving a life sentence for murder, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Thomas J. Lynch to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary for assault to kill.

Kelly shot Joseph Dombrowski, 3531 South 53d court, Cicero, as the latter approached him in a beer tavern at 3708 South 52d court, Cicero, last Aug. 28. The state charged that Kelly shot without warning and the defendant refused to aid in his own defense or explain the matter. He thanked the judge profusely for the sentence, remarking: "Now I don't have to go back to solitary in Maryland."

SOVIETS ATTACK ROOSEVELT ON EVE OF PARLEY

Plot to Sabotage NRA Revealed.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 26.—The usually vigilant bolshevik censorship has made one of the worst blunders of its existence, it became known here today as Maxim Litvinov, soviet foreign commissioner, left Moscow for Washington on the trip which the soviets hope will mean American recognition. Litvinov's departure was veiled with great secrecy and mystery as to his itinerary.

Litvinov and two foreign office aids, C. Oumanski and Ivan A. Divilkovski, boarded the chief's private car shortly before the Berlin train pulled out late tonight. It was not known whether Mme. Litvinov was aboard. Window curtains of the private car were tightly drawn and the commissar made a great effort to remain incognito. He had refused to divulge any detail of his itinerary to correspondents.

Addresses Red Groups in U. S.

The soviet blunder consisted of the publishing by the central printing office of the communist party in Moscow of long instructions addressed to American communist organizations under the headline, "The working class in the United States and their 'benefactor,' the Socialist Roosevelt."

Coming at a time when the soviet press was filled with long articles anticipating American recognition, large credits, an alliance against Japan, and close friendship between the two nations, the report escaped the immediate attention of the Moscow foreign office. When the foreign office did suppress the publication, which first appeared shortly after the appearance of President Roosevelt's and President Kalinin's letters to each other in the soviet press, 6,000 copies already had been distributed.

Aim to Upset Roosevelt.

The "instructions" were similar to those issued to American Reds by the trade union branch of the communist Internationale. After making a long report on present conditions of workers in America, this subsidiary of the comintern devoted 3,000 words to telling American Reds how to react to President Roosevelt's program. This program, the report declared, must be sabotaged and made ineffective by the promotion of labor troubles and social unrest in the United States with the destruction of capitalism and the overthrow of the Roosevelt government as the final aim.

American communists were instructed definitely to defend the soviet government against attacks and to use all the methods outlined in the report for the instigation of class warfare in order to find a way out of the crisis through a bolshevik revolution.

Calls Roosevelt "Socialist."

President Roosevelt's effort to improve conditions in America were greeted sarcastically and the report repeatedly called the President a Socialist, which is one of the bolsheviks' favorite anathemas. The American branch of the trade union international, the document asserted, already is busy unmasking Roosevelt, who, the report alleges, is betraying workers and farmers into the hands of capitalists.

Ironically remarking that Roosevelt's program is best characterized by the old Russian proverb, "And wolves will be sated and sheep unharmed," the report repeatedly mentioned the President as a "so-called benefactor" and alleged that his program is driving workers into the arms of Moscow's revolutionary organizations and that the prospects of starting class warfare and revolution in the United States are better under his administration than ever before.

"American workers are joining our organizations in masses, in answer to Roosevelt's program," the report continued, saying that the rapidity of the revolutionary developments depends entirely upon the enterprise shown by Moscow's organizations in America.

Sees Failure of NRA.

The comintern communique asserted that Roosevelt's NRA plan has no chance to improve conditions in America, saying that recent alleged improvements are only temporary, that many branches of American industry have an unhealthy, speculative character, and that affairs are inevitably progressing toward new and more serious convulsions.

The analysis of the President's program follows:

"First, Mr. Roosevelt's program strengthens capital and subsidizes banks through new and enormous taxes on the broad population.

"Second, in connection with the strengthening and trustification of industry, the program includes a great number of unprofitable and slightly profitable projects leading toward a new wave of rationalization, further oppression of employed workers and a fresh increase of unemployment.

"Means Higher Living Costs."

"Third, the program means an increase in the cost of living, a rapid increase in the prices of agricultural products in the interest of banks and larger farmers, liquidation of unemployed relief, and introduction of forced labor in concentration camps.

"Fourth, the program rests upon disorganization in the ranks of the working class, who are rendered helpless through the most shameless demagogy and base trickery by the establishing of so-called labor organizations which are really organizations of employers and the prohibition of strikes and destroying of genuine revolutionary organizations led by Moscow.

"The only possible organizer and leader of the American proletariat in coming battles is the communist party and its revolutionary subsidiaries. They have already shown the masses they are the only leaders for them in the struggle against the bourgeois."

Seeks to Undermine A. F. of L.

American Reds are now rapidly liquidating the mistakes of the Trade Union Unity league organized by Comintern in August, 1929, and now have begun to develop efficiently a program to undermine the authority of William Green and the American Federation of Labor, the report said. This is being done by the Comintern policy of boring from within, especially among the more important unions, such as the miners, transportation workers, sailors, textile, metal and garment workers and other basic industries.

The Unity league was ordered to cooperate closely with Red trade unions to win workers to the cause of revolution.

The instructions close with an imperative order to American Reds to destroy dissention within their ranks, to concentrate the efforts of all Moscow's organizations toward forming a united front under the command of the Communist party to lead the fight of the workers against the plans of Roosevelt. It was reemphasized that class warfare leading to an American workers' revolution is the only means out of the crisis.

Ask Tass Chief to U. S.

The Moscow radio broadcast tonight personal and official invitations addressed to J. G. Doletzski, chief of TASS [Russian telegraphic agency], from Kent Cooper, head of the Associated Press, and also from the chief of the United Press, urging him to visit America. Hope was also expressed that the forthcoming Washington conversations between Litvinov and Roosevelt will lead to satisfactory results. Doletzski replied that he will come as soon as personal affairs permit.

OWNER OF CAFE SHOT TO DEATH BY GANGSTERS

Patsy Damoto, 40 years old, was shot and killed early today in his café at 4559 Diversey parkway.

The killing apparently was carefully planned. It was executed with cold precision. Six men entered the place together and ordered steins of beer, which they paid for and drank. One of the six then detached himself from the others and walked over to a table where Damoto was playing cards. Drawing a pistol, he shot the café owner in the head. The six men then fled.

Joseph Valentine, 1731 North Lorel avenue, leader of a small orchestra in the café, told the police that he was in the card game. He said that he did not know any of the six strangers nor any motive for the attack. Damoto's home address was 724 North St. Louis avenue.

Spanish Socialists Join Reds in Big Building Strike

GOLD UP AGAIN, BUT PRICES ON MARKETS FALL

'Sound Money' Champions Appear Worried.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Although the Roosevelt money control board pared slightly under half a cent off the value of the dollar today, the prices of commodities failed to score the rise promised by the theory of the President's new recovery panacea of "managed currency."

On the contrary, the stock exchange quotations and wheat and other commodity prices sagged to a degree that spread dismay in official Washington.

The scheme was not performing according to specifications, and the brains trust found itself on the defensive. Officials were running around in circles looking for Profs. George F. Warren of Cornell and James Harvey Rogers of Yale, authors of the plan embraced by the President. The professors could not be found, and reports spread that they had taken to the woods.

Roosevelt Incommunicado.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt was worried could not be learned. He was still incommunicado, nursing his cold and sorting his postage stamp collection.

Most apprehensive of all were the "sound money" men in the treasury and federal reserve board, who have looked upon the inflationary move represented by the deliberate depreciation of the dollar as an economic "shot in the arm," the effect of which would soon wear off.

They are wondering whether the next "shot in the arm" will take the form of the printing of greenbacks, for they recall the assertion of the President that he would resort to other expedients to raise prices if the manipulation of the gold price should not avail.

Meanwhile, the treasury and the Reconstruction Finance corporation completed regulations for the gold trading operations. R. F. C. Chairman Jesse H. Jones telegraphed the federal reserve banks that the corporation with the concurrence of the secretary of the treasury has authorized an issue of short term notes aggregating 50 million dollars, payable without interest Feb. 1, 1934, and fully and unconditionally guaranteed by the United States. Chairman Jones requested the reserve banks to act as fiscal agents for the exchange of newly mined gold for the RFC notes.

Jones Explains Plan.

"The Reconstruction Finance corporation notes that are to be issued for newly mined gold will be sold to the gold owner at one-quarter of one per cent per annum discount in order to net the gold owner the quoted price from day to day at which gold will be accepted," Mr. Jones explained.

"Subscriptions for these notes may be made through the federal reserve banks as fiscal agents for the RFC. For the time being the gold will be held for the account of the R. F. C. by the federal reserve banks or at the mints. The gold owner who wishes to buy notes in the manner provided will have no difficulty in converting his notes into cash at any bank that is a member of the federal reserve system for the quoted price for gold on the day that he subscribes for the RFC notes."

The further deliberate depreciation of the dollar in terms of gold by the administration today was accomplished by the raising of the price of gold to $31.54 an ounce, a gain of 18 cents over yesterday's price of $31.36.

Price Decreases Goal.

America's dollar will now buy only 15.21 grains of gold, compared with 23.22 grains under the gold standard, a depreciation of almost 35 per cent of the dollar's purchasing power as measured by gold. According to the new economic theory outlined in President Roosevelt's radio program Sunday night, this depreciation in purchasing power, now being forced by his currency control board, should bring a commensurate increase in other commodity prices.

By setting today's price for gold 18 cents above that proclaimed yesterday, the money triumvirate, consisting of Undersecretary of the Treasury Dean G. Acheson, Farm Creditor Governor Henry Morgenthau Jr., and R. F. C. Chairman Jesse H. Jones, theoretically reduced the dollar 37 hundredths of a cent.

Late in the day the White House explained that each day would not bring a raise in the gold price and a drop in the dollar. The monetary board of three will meet every day, the White House explained, and a price announced, but on some occasions the previous day's price may be continued.

Some Doubt Heavy Buying.

Part of the heaviest decline in prices today was attributed to the growing suspicion among traders that the government is actually going to buy very little gold. Delay in setting up the machinery for the purchases lent color to this belief, but experts were insistent tonight that with the promulgation of regulations by the treasury and RFC today, the stage was all set for extensive operations.

The treasury's regulations, promulgated as an executive order by the President, authorized mints and assay offices to accept gold which they were satisfied was newly mined. The RFC was authorized to buy such gold and order its disposal at prices set by the three-man board.

After laying down technical specifications for the gold to be received and for the forms to be filed, the treasury order branched out into a general revision of existing gold regulations. Treasury sale of gold for producers at a price based on the world price, an arrangement ordered by President Roosevelt on Aug. 28, was abolished, leaving the RFC the only outlet for newly mined gold in the country.

At the same time previous embargo regulations were revised to permit the export of fabricated gold without government license when the collector of customs or postmaster approves the shipment as one occurring in the ordinary course of business.

Husband and Wife Killed as Motorcycle Hits Tree

DENVER JUDGE GIVES WAITERS NRA WAGES IN CONTRACT SUIT

Denver, Colo., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Two Denver café employés won a judgment in District court today in what was believed to be the first court case involving an employer's NRA contract.

The action was based on the agreement signed by Maj. Avondale, restaurant owner, and the President of the United States.

"Avondale's contract with the President was made for the benefit of third parties—his employés—and they are entitled to the full benefit under it," District Judge Frank McDonough said.

He awarded judgment of $107 wages to Kenneth Beaton for himself and for Warren T. Williams, waiters in Avondale's café.

The complainants did not take their case to the local NRA compliance board, but instead appealed to the District court on the grounds they were entitled to a judgment for breach of contract.

Judge McDonough held that inasmuch as Avondale had signed a contract with President Roosevelt to pay a certain scale of wages he must abide by the contract, and that the complainants were entitled to allowances based on the contract scale of wages.

RULES TO FORCE NRA COMPLIANCE LEAD TO DISPUTE

Charge Original Policy Is Abandoned.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Methods under which NRA violators are to be prosecuted and perhaps sent to prison have started another dispute in the inner councils of the NRA, it was learned today.

It was also disclosed that the NRA may ask Attorney General Cummings to obtain injunctions to shut down the operation of plants and businesses which persist in violating codes.

In the genesis of NRA, the President and Administrator Johnson promised that industry would be permitted to govern and police itself in "partnership" with the government.

These promises are going by the board, it was charged today by members of the NRA'S industrial advisory board. While a measure of secrecy hangs over the whole matter, it was learned that the advisory board contends that new regulations issued to govern the apprehension and prosecution of violators constitute a switch of policy away from the first conception.

Rules Withheld Week.

The regulations, issued to all local compliance boards a week ago, were not made public until today after a request for them was made by newspaper men.

Under these regulations, a long and detailed course is set forth for taking action against the employers designated as "chiselers" by President Roosevelt in his radio speech last Sunday night.

The complaint of the industrial advisory board is that Administrator Johnson reserves to himself the right to cause the attorney general to bring criminal prosecutions against violators. If he chooses, the regulations state, he may refer the complaint to the regular code authority set up by the administration and the industry in question.

Miss Perkins Aids in Draft.

It was learned that the regulations were drawn up under the direction of a committee of the President's executive council, the committee consisting of Gen. Johnson, Attorney General Cummings, and Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor.

The industrial leaders declare that Miss Perkins has shown a distrust of trade associations and that the regulations, as finally drawn, reflected her point of view. Miss Perkins today asserted that the regulations are temporary.

She declared that some of the code authorities set up are "not strong enough" to handle violations and that the regulations are intended to serve until the authorities set up to administer codes in each industry are functioning with greater influence and force.

This view is disputed by the industrial advisory board members, who declare that code authorities should at least be given an opportunity to hear complaints against members of their own industry charged with code violations.

Procedure Complicated.

The regulations lay down a complicated procedure which would take the case of the unfortunate employer charged with transgressing the NRA rules through interminable actions before boards, commissions, bureaus, and other arms of the federal bureaucracy.

The first regulations provide that complaints may be submitted to the district office in which the respondent does business and that while it would be best to have them sworn, the "district compliance director" may act upon anonymous complaints if he chooses.

At the district office the "legal adviser" to the "district compliance director" is to examine the complaints for legal sufficiency.

If the district compliance director has been instructed that particular types of complaints may be referred to code authorities or other agencies of industrial self-government, such complaints will be so forwarded, but with a "time limit notice." If action has not been taken in the limit set, or the complaint is one not to be handled by the code authority, the district compliance director is directed to take up the complaint with the respondent. Printed forms for all of these steps are provided.

Goes to Capital Next.

Should the district compliance director or the code authority be unable to reach an agreement with the accused violator, either through correspondence or personal interviews, the case will be referred to the national compliance director at Washington.

The latter is charged to discuss the case with the "divisional administrator," who "may decide to attempt adjustment by some appropriate agency of industrial self-government." If he decides not to do this, he refers the case back to the national compliance director. It is over this provision that the present dispute largely rests.

The national compliance director is finally authorized to attempt settlement of the case by direct correspondence with the respondent or otherwise, but if he fails to adjust the matter it then goes to the national compliance board. This board may make further efforts toward agreement, call a public hearing in Washington, recommend that the respondent be absolved, take away his Blue Eagle and give publicity to this fact, or recommend to the administrator (Gen. Johnson) that the case be referred to the federal trade commission or to the attorney general for action.

The federal trade commission could order a further investigation, issue a cease and desist order, prosecute for contempt of the cease and desist order, or take other action within its powers.

Course for Attorney General.

The attorney general, if the case gets to him after this tedious course and the violator is still alive and violating, may, under the law, as set forth in the regulations:

1. Take action in the federal court to enforce the penalties of the act (imprisonment not to exceed six months or a fine not exceeding $500, or both).
2. Bring injunction proceedings.
3. Take other action within his powers.

This announcement is the first to bring the threat to employers that injunctions may be sought to shut down their plants for NRA violations.

The regulations require that all complaints pertaining to strikes or lockouts should be referred to the national labor board in Washington or its nearest regional agency.

MALLORCA FREES FIVE YANKS WHO ATTACKED GUARD

Military Court Acquits Them in Secret Session.

PALMA, Mallorca, Oct. 26.—The imposing military court-martial before which five Americans appeared today to answer the charge of assaulting a civil guard on this Mediterranean island last summer acquitted all five. The findings of the tribunal must still be approved by the judge advocate of the region, but this is practically assured.

The seven judges sat in secret session from 5 p. m. until 11 p. m. before announcing their decision. During the hearing, which lasted from 10 a. m. until the judges retired to consider their verdict, the prisoners sat on a bench facing the court presided over by Col. Mariano Moreto.

Courtroom in Barracks.

The hearing was held in an infantry barracks. The courtroom was crowded with members of the American and British colonies. American Consul General Claude I. Dawson came from Barcelona to hear the trial.

The testimony against the accused was of trivial character. Few of the witnesses for the prosecution could throw any light on the incident in which Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood of West Springfield, Mass., was struck with the flat of the guard's saber.

The prosecutor asked the accused if they realized the extraordinary powers of the civil guards in Spain. To this Mrs. Lockwood's husband replied that he had chiefly observed them formerly from an artistic viewpoint as emphasized by their three cornered hats. The prosecutor then demanded prison terms of six years and one day for each of the five Americans on the grounds of willful resistance to the armed forces and mockery.

Suggests Guard Wounded Self.

"The court must not allow itself to be influenced by the claims of the prosecutor that the affair has been overemphasized in the foreign press," Louis Ramallo, defense attorney, said.

He further insisted his clients could not possibly be guilty of a premeditated act. He added there was no proof whatever as to how the civil guard was scratched. He suggested that he might easily have wounded himself accidentally.

Ramallo also pointed out that Lockwood went to the defense of his wife after she had been struck.

Besides the Lockwoods those on trial were Roderick F. Mead of New York, Edmund W. Blodgett of Stamford, Conn., and Rutherford Fullerton of Columbus, O. The altercation for which they were tried occurred on the night of June 4. The Americans were held six weeks in prison. They were finally given their freedom to await trial on $2,160 bail.

FIRE, BLAST IN THEATER CAUSE $2,500 DAMAGE

The fire, which was preceded by an explosion, destroyed the scenery and the rear part of the stage. Several windows were blown out. Investigation by Chief Jerry Falvey of the First battalion of the fire department disclosed that two cans of benzine had been placed on the stage.

Closed for a year and a half, the showhouse was to have been reopened this week-end. The only one connected with the place who could be found by the firemen was a colored janitor, Peter Jackson, who was asleep in the front office and was awakened by the explosion.

MARTIN INSULL FIGHTS TO ESCAPE U. S. EXTRADITION

No Evidence of Theft, Defense Argues.

ployed by the receivers for the Middle West company. He said he first joined the company's staff in 1920, also had been connected with the Mississippi valley company and had been in charge of the accounting records of both organizations.

McRuer said he first would deal with the charges of embezzlement of $344,000 against his client and then produced documents relative to that charge.

$75,000 Check Produced.

"Was there a requisition for a voucher for this check," asked McRuer, producing one of the checks in connection with the charge.

"Yes," was Peterson's reply.

Most of the checks, it was stated, were on the Continental Illinois Bank company, payable to Washington Flexner, who, it was brought out, had a trading account with Davies & Co. and traded in his own name for Martin Insull.

McRuer told the court that Flexner's depositions stated the checks were issued "in exchange for securities at the approximate market price." The securities, it was said, were delivered to the Middle West Utilities company for "Syndicate A."

Following McRuer's examination of Peterson as to checks making up the total of $344,000, others relating to the charge of embezzlement of $104,000 were produced. McRuer showed a photostat of Martin Insull's account with the Middle West Utilities company.

"Had it been a practice of the company to make allowances to M. J. Insull?" he asked.

"Yes," replied Peterson.

"For instance," said Insull's counsel, "there is one advance of a loan to Insull for $50,000 shown here made in March, 1930. Were these advances made to other persons besides Insull?"

The witness replied "Yes."

Peterson added that traveling expense accounts were kept with the Middle West Utilities company loans by the Mississippi Valley company.

How Deals Were Operated.

"The Mississippi Valley company would give the Middle West company a note covering the amount that had been advanced," he said.

The witness explained that if the Middle West company made an advance, the Mississippi Valley company would draw a check and give the Middle West company a note.

During a brief cross-examination of Peterson, Bayly said the explanation of the state as to the checks was that Martin Insull had a trading account with Davies & Co. and had that firm issue checks in payment of his private indebtedness.

Stock, Bayly said, was put up as collateral security. Hellmuth objected to this statement, claiming the deputy attorney general was "making an address."

Peterson testified that his office issued hundreds of checks and that he personally issued some for payment of accounts. A Mr. McCormick, he said, initialed the issue of checks. Peterson admitted he would not know whether a check was issued improperly or not, although he said the requisition would state for what purpose it was drawn.

Gale Leaves Snow

New York, Oct. 26.—[Special.]—The blustering Arctic gale that swept across Canada and the northern United States Tuesday passed far out to sea today, leaving in its wake snow and frigid temperatures.

New York City was fortunate. It got no snow, and though it saw the mercury drop to 31 that temperature was nothing compared to some of the lows upstate.

Snowbound Owl's Head, in the Adirondacks, had a minimum of 8 above zero. So did Saranac Lake, which experienced its coldest October day in ten years.

The cold wave was general throughout the eastern United States and extended far into the south.

COUNCIL GROUP O. K.'S RENAMING TWO STREETS

Would Honor Pulaski, Lithuanian Flyers.

The city council committee on local industries, streets, and alleys yesterday recommended to the council that the name of Crawford avenue be changed to Pulaski road and that of Auburn avenue to Lituanica avenue. Auburn avenue passes through a Lithuanian district, it was explained. The name chosen was that of the plane in which Capt. Stephen Darius and Stanley Girenas, both of Chicago, made a trans-Atlantic flight last summer, only to crash in Germany, killing its pilots.

At the same time the streets and public safety committee of the City club issued a protest against those name changes and any others which interfere with the establishment of an orderly program of street names designed to reduce confusion of visitors in finding Chicago addresses.

Ald. James J. Cusack [5th], while he voted for the present changes, warned his fellow aldermen that by their recent policy of changing street names to honor various persons or racial groups they are laying themselves open to a deluge of similar requests in the early future.

"While there was unanimous agreement that it is fitting and proper that Gen. Pulaski should be honored and memorialized by the city of Chicago," said the City club resolution, "it was the sense of the committee that this should be done in some manner other than the one proposed."

Mayor Kelly appeared before the committee and endorsed the change to Pulaski road. Miss A. Emily Napieralski, president of the Polish Women's Alliance of America, told the committee, "Pulaski is an outstanding name, not only to those of his blood, but to all of us who live in this country, which he helped free."

Ald. Thomas J. Terrell [29th] cast the only dissenting vote against changing the name of Crawford avenue, but voted to change Auburn avenue to Lituanica avenue.

H. F. McCORMICK FIGHTS WOMAN'S $1,500,000 SUIT

His Lawyer Denies Breach of Promise Charge.

An emphatic denial of the charges of breach of promise to marry preferred by Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday, New York dicorcee, was voiced yesterday by attorneys representing Harold F. McCormick, Chicago capitalist. Attorney John P. Wilson, counsel for Mr. McCormick, declared firmly that there would be no settlement of the suit out of court and that the allegations of Mrs. Doubleday would be contested in court.

This assertion followed the filing of a declaration in the Circuit court by attorneys representing Mrs. Doubleday in which she stated that she had suffered "pain and shame" because of the failure of Mr. McCormick to marry her. The declaration supplemented a praecipe in a suit for $1,500,000 damages filed in the Circuit court Tuesday.

Charges Denied by Defense.

The next legal move in the case will probably be the filing of a formal denial of the charges by Mr. McCormick. Under present rules, the denial must be filed before Nov. 20.

"There is absolutely no basis for the belief that a settlement will be made in this case," said Attorney Wilson. "There are no grounds for a breach of promise case and we will prove this in court. We will fight these charges to the end."

Meanwhile, Mr. McCormick, who is slightly ill, remained in bed in the old McCormick mansion at 675 Rush street. He had nothing to say.

The declaration filed yesterday contained none of the letters upon which the case is based. It stated merely the dates of the alleged proposal of marriage and the alleged jilting of Mrs. Doubleday by Mr. McCormick.

Tells of Promise to Wed.

"On or about Nov. 7, 1932, in the city of Chicago," the declaration read, "the plaintiff, who was then unmarried, at the request of the defendant, promised to marry the defendant within a reasonable time thereafter."

The document continued with the assertion that Mrs. Doubleday has since remained unmarried and "now is ready and willing to marry the defendant." But Mr. McCormick has "neglected and refused" to marry her, according to the declaration. On or about March 4, 1933, he notified Mrs. Doubleday that he would not marry her, it was charged.

RESUME TRIAL IN ATHENS OF SAMUEL INSULL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 26.—Samuel Insull will appear for the fourth time before the Greek Court of Appeals tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock to listen to the rebuttal arraignment of Prosecutor Anthony Reganakos in the extradition proceedings against him.

Reganakos is expected to make the fur fly in his rebuttal attack on much of the evidence and arguments introduced by Insull's lawyers. The prosecutor worked on his speech today and had two hours' conference with Forrest Harness, United States assistant attorney general.

The five judges today studied the new depositions which were introduced by Insull's lawyers at the last session Tuesday. These documents further support Insull's lawyers' main lines of defense which are briefly:

1. The extradition treaty is unconstitutional.
2. The Greek law covering the offense with which Insull is charged has been repealed by implication.
3. The crime with which Insull is accused is not an offense under American laws and even if it is a crime under American laws, it is not a crime under Greek laws because Insull had no intent to defraud when he pledged $78,000,000 worth of securities to obtain $16,000,000 in loans from banks between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31, 1931.

Insull also conferred with his lawyers and advisers today. He was grumpy and taciturn with visitors and appeared preoccupied.

GERMAN ENVOY EXPOUNDS NAZI AIMS IN CHICAGO

into a discussion of what he interpreted as Hitler's real aims.

"The ideals of National Socialism should be easily understood here in Chicago," he averred. "Its conception is that nations should live their own cultural and political life, and that only those persons should belong to them who are really of the same inner kind. The Hitler government has no desire to annex foreign territories Hitler said literally that all this talk of a so-called Germanizing has to be stopped once and for all and that the German officials as well as citizens in private conversation should avoid giving nourishment to such talk."

The ambassador minced no words in his discussion of anti-German boycotts, such as numerous Jewish organizations and the American Federation of Labor have recently voted. Such boycotters he averred, were working against the interests of their own land.

Predicts Failure of Boycotts.

"I am of the opinion that the healthy common sense of the American people and their idealism will doom to failure these blows to the economic recovery of the world on the part of certain circles in the form of boycott activities," he said. "I am convinced that the American people know how dangerous it is to misuse the fundamental principles of economy for political purposes. I may say with satisfaction that this political attempt to upset economic life is being discussed with increasing anxiety not only in private circles, but also in circles expressive of American public opinion.

"Germany is one of America's best customers and has heretofore purchased twice the amount of goods she has sold to this country.

"Inasmuch as she is buying approximately $2 worth of goods from this country for every dollar's worth she sells here, those propagating the anti-German boycott are calling for a policy directly opposed to important interests of their own country.

"Ladies and gentlemen, the German people resent all pressure from the outside. On the other hand, national socialism does not intend to reach beyond the boundaries of its origin. It is not for export."

Discusses Unstable Money.

Dr. Luther said he would refrain from retrospective criticism of the departure of England and the United States from the gold standard. Nevertheless, he implied that the continued lack of stable currencies was a factor impeding international economic recovery.

"It is not my problem to ask why the international exchange of goods and services has shrunk," he said. "We all know the facts. We know of the striving of all nations to make themselves economically self-sufficient. This process has gone so far that at present we possess no universally accepted standard of value for exchanged goods and services. The standard was always gold and was based on the gold we had in the dollar and pound."

Dr. Luther made no direct reference to Nazi treatment of the Jews. He refrained also from alluding to the current German drive to Nazify Austria.

He concluded his address in a conciliatory tone.

"The rough road to progress leads through a conflict of ideas which does not mean a clash of arms but a conflict of the spirit," he said. "The German people live in the hope of cooperating efficiently in finally achieving the ideals of peace and understanding among nations. They are struggling toward no other goal than a better world of tomorrow."

Dr. Eckener was a center of attraction at the banquet. The weather beaten commander of the Graf smiled quizzically when Mr. Dawes paid tribute to his inventive genius and his courage, and thanked the audience haltingly when all arose in tribute to his character. He made no reference to political questions or the glories of Nazi-ism in his brief remarks.

Eckener Sees Graf Depart.

Dr. Eckener spent a busy day in Chicago. After watching the departure of the Graf from Curtiss-Reynolds airport under command of Capt. E. A. Lehmann, Dr. Eckener proceeded to the Bismarck hotel. After a press conference there he went to the city hall and was received by Mayor Kelly.

At noon Dr. Eckener attended a luncheon given by the North German Lloyd at the Midday club. His official visit to A Century of Progress Exposition was paid at 3 p. m. With Dr. Luther he arrived at the 14th street entrance and reviewed the military escort sent to welcome him. Later there was a reception by President Dawes of the Fair in the trustees' room of the Administration building. The air hero then snatched a brief bit of rest before going to dinner at the Union League club and a reception that followed at Medinah temple.

Sees Zeppelin Terminal in East.

During the day Dr. Eckener discussed briefly his plans for a trans-Atlantic mail service on lighter than air craft. He did not believe, he said, that Chicago would be the western terminal of the service, as it would be more practicable for the big ships to land near Richmond, Va.; Baltimore, Md., or Washington, D. C., and then transfer mail to fast airplanes for transport overland.

He hazarded the rather rueful opinion that such a service would have to wait until bankers could be persuaded to finance it, "probably not until conditions have improved."

Dr. Eckener will leave Chicago by United Air Lines plane this morning to rejoin the Graf Zeppelin at Akron. The take-off for the dirigible's home port of Friedrichshafen, Germany, is tentatively scheduled for 9:30 a. m. tomorrow. The route to be followed is a southerly one that passes over Seville, Spain.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Chicago's finest, wearing dress blues and with metals polished, yesterday stepped proudly down the Avenue of Flags to the rolling of drums and the plaudits of Fair visitors. It was Police day at the Fair and some eight hundred members of the metropolitan forces participated in the ceremonies, during which they were acclaimed for the part they have had in making the Exposition a success.

The formalities opened with the assembly of forces in the Court of Honor and a parade of the policemen to the Court of States. Preceding the program in the court a luncheon was given for police commanding officers in the Administration building.

Officials Attend Luncheon.

Among the police and park officials attending the luncheon were Edward J. Kelly, mayor and president of the south park board; George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the south parks; James P. Allman, city police commissioner; T. J. Heward, head of the south park police; Maj. J. U. Sammis, chief of the Lincoln park force; Michael Trant, chief of the west parks police force; William F. Collins, head of the county highway police; A. D. Plamondon, president of the Lincoln park board, and Harry Joseph, president of the west park board.

The Fair was represented by Rufus C. Dawes, president; Maj. L. B. Lohr, general manager, and C. H. Thurman, public protection chief. Chief Redd represented the Fair police.

Dawes Thanks Police.

Speaking on behalf of the Fair Mr. Dawes thanked the police for the courtesy with which visitors to Chicago have been treated during the summer. Mayor Kelly was unable to speak because he had to leave for a milk conference. At the conclusion of the program a new stand of colors, carrying the American, Chicago, and Fair flags, was presented each commanding officer.

Hail, rain, and clouds made yesterday a dreary day at the Fair. The attendance at 11:30 o'clock last night totaled 46,998. That figure was lower by 81 than the attendance at the same hour Wednesday, when the smallest number of admissions for any day since June 8 was recorded.

ZEP BRINGS SIX FROM BRAZIL TO VISIT THE FAIR

Among the passengers on the Graf Zeppelin in its flight to the United States from Brazil were Richard P. Momsen, Rio de Janeiro attorney; his wife, Mrs. Dorothea Momsen; their children, Richard Jr., 10 years old; Patricia, 8, and William, 11 months old, and their nurse, Dorothea Ruegg. The Momsens left the Zeppelin on its first arrival in Akron and reached Chicago by train yesterday en route to Milwaukee, where they will visit the attorney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Momsen. They will return to Chicago to visit A Century of Progress.

"The trip was simply marvelous," said Mrs. Momsen. "The Zeppelin has spoiled me for train and ocean travel. The children were fascinated. Even Billy stayed awake during the day to watch the changing scenes below. The smoothness of our journey amazed me. We could scarcely hear the hum of the motors."

Mr. Momsen, who formerly lived in New York, has been in Brazil for twenty years. He said he took the trip on the air liner to visit his parents and see the Fair because he was prevented from visiting the 1893 Fair at the age of 3 by an attack of measles. He will convey greetings of the Brazil Bar association to the American Bar association.

Hunt $27,000 Ring Lost by Mrs. Carlyle Blackwell

Chicago police last night were asked to search pawnshops for a diamond ring, valued at $27,000, which was reported lost by Mrs. Carlyle Blackwell, former Ziegfeld beauty and wife of a motion picture star of the last generation. The request was made by the St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance company.

Wife Demands $100,000 for Alienation of Affection

New York Oct. 26.—[Special.]—A suit for $100,000 against Mrs. Donald Henderson Clarke for alienation of affection of Thomas F. Hall of Huntington, L. I., was disclosed in the Supreme court today when Mrs. Hall applied to examine Mrs. Clarke before trial. Mrs. Hall said she desired to obviate the necessity of calling her two children, Allan, 12, and Thomas, 9, by questioning Mrs. Clarke.

SAILORS 'BATTLE' AT FAIR TODAY AS NAVY DAY EVENT

Parade, Luncheon, School Speeches on Program.

With celebrations centered at the World's Fair and in the public schools Chicago will join today in the national celebration of Navy day with the slogan, "A Strong Navy—A Strong Nation."

At the Fair the celebration will open with a luncheon for 400 guests in the trustees' lounge of the Administration building, at which Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, commander of the Ninth naval district, will preside. Among those at the speakers' table will be Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, Capt. Edward A. Evers of the Illinois naval reserves, Capt. Frank H. Roberts, official representative of the navy at the Fair, and Maj. Chester L. Fordney of the marine corps.

The luncheon guests will leave their tables to review a parade of naval and marine corps reserves into the Fair ground, where they will participate in a naval sham battle. The parade will proceed down the Avenue of Flags to the 23d street entrance, led by the naval reserve band, and thence back to the floating theater in the north lagoon. There the marine reserves band will play a concert.

Attack on Federal Building.

At 2:45 o'clock the floating theater will be turned theoretically into the deck of a battleship, from which a force of bluejackets will take off in launches as a landing party to attack the Federal building, manned by a force of "the enemy" and heavily defended by machine gun nests.

Before the landing party starts out artillery along the lagoon will simulate the fire of ships' big guns in an attempt to silence the defending force's armament, and a group of twelve planes will make an air attack upon the supposed fort. After this preparation the landing party will take off in launches armed with one pounder and machine guns, carrying two parties of sailors who will attack the Federal building from two angles in the campaign to carry it by the bayonet.

Following the sham battle there will be another band concert on the floating theater, and a special fireworks program has been provided for the evening.

Speakers in Public Schools.

In the public schools a corps of speakers will tell the pupils about the exploits of naval heroes from John Paul Jones down to those who fought in the world war and will stress the part played by the navy in defense of its country.

Rear Admiral Cluverius spoke yesterday before members of the Union League club at a noonday luncheon. He was introduced by Joseph K. Brittain, vice chairman of the club's public affairs committee.

"The peace time function of the navy is to make friends," said Rear Admiral Cluverius. "Men of our navy—not ships—carry our country and its meaning to other countries of the world."

The Chicago Historical society will hold its Navy day celebration Sunday at 3 o'clock. Capt. Guy E. Davis, commander of the naval unit at Northwestern university, will be the principal speaker and he will be introduced by Charles S. Dewey, a cousin of Admiral George Dewey.

COLUMBIA PRESIDENT WINS $300,000 SUIT; HARRIMAN ACCUSED

New York, Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Judge Grover M. Moscowitz in the United States District court, Brooklyn, today rendered a decision in favor of President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university. Dr. Butler sued to recover approximately $300,000 from the closed Harriman National Bank and Trust company.

"Harriman, in negotiating a loan and offering Dr. Butler's securities as collateral, was stealing from the bank," Judge Moscowitz said in his decision ordering the return of the securities to the university president.

An indictment charging Joseph W. Harriman with misapplying the funds of the bank, of which he was head and founder, is pending in the federal district of southern New York. His trial has been delayed while his physical condition has been under investigation.

"This bank, as all banks, in its relation to Dr. Butler owed him a duty of confidence and trust," Judge Moscowitz continued. "Dr. Butler was not in a position to know whether the president of the bank was dishonest and a thief. If he was, that was not Dr. Butler's fault. The bank certainly had more opportunity than Dr. Butler to determine if Harriman was honest."

U. S. MAY BUY FORD CHASSIS FOREST TRUCKS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—A case which may help decide the status of the Ford Motor company as a potential government contractor was considered by the department of agriculture today, but no decision reached. It involves a bid for up to 1,500 light trucks, to be used in the work of the civilian conservation corps, and a local Ford dealer, the Northwestern Motor company, was the low bidder.

It was pointed out that the controller general has ruled that the NRA code considerations in letting a contract concern only the immediate signatory, and that official is the final authority on whether an accepted bid shall be the low one under existing law. Other considerations are regarded as making some other bid better for the government.

The Northwestern Motor company contemplates supplying only chassis from the Ford company and special truck bodies designed for pumping will be supplied by another manufacturer.

It is understood that the Northwestern Motor company's bid was lower by $169,000 than the nearest competitor on a lot of 500 trucks.

High war department officials today said discussion of a possible bid by the Ford company on the army motorization project was premature. The army might run into the same situation as the department of agriculture, where the bid would be put in by a dealer in good NRA standing, although he agreed to supply Ford cars.

FORMER CAPONE AID FREED.

A charge of vagrancy against Bert Delaney, Capone brewmaster before 3.2 beer became legal, was nol-prossed yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green on the motion of the state. Assistant State's Attorney William Boyle said he had no evidence against Delaney.

LINDY AND WIFE LAND IN FRANCE ON SECRET FLIGHT

Couple Reported to Be Visiting Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 27. [Friday.]—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was reliably reported to have returned secretly to Paris last night with his wife to visit quietly the scene of his world triumph.

Air minister Pierre Cot was said to be his host and to have made arrangements for keeping his visit cloaked in secrecy.

Not Registered at Hotel.

It was understood they were met there by an air ministry representative and were brought by automobile to Paris, where the Hotel Crillon gave them a suite on the second floor overlooking the Place Concorde without registering them.

The Lindberghs, it was learned, went to dinner at a small, well known restaurant, where they dined in a private room, well guarded. M. Cot and the aviator, Dieudonne Coste, were believed to have accompanied them.

Les Mureaux, where the Lindberghs were reported to have alighted on the river, is near Meulan, 25 miles west of Paris.

Invited to Visit Paris.

When the Lindberghs were in Moscow it was reported they were officially invited to visit Paris, but their departure for Ireland and Scotland led to the belief that they had declined.

When they turned south from Inverness it was reported that friends sent a telegram to officials saying they were not coming up to Paris. Presumably this was to quiet reports that they were coming here.

Officials said they would have been immeasurably pleased to have the Lindberghs come openly and officially, but if the Lindberghs wished to visit Paris privately their wish would be respected.

The colonel's reported visit here today contrasted widely with that in 1927, when, to the cheers of thousands at Le Bourget field, he completed his epochal solo flight across the Atlantic.

However, the suspense attendant upon his first trip was duplicated in part today in the long hours in which there was some apprehension that he might have experienced trouble on the flight from Inverness. His destination was supposed to have been Southampton, England. A heavy storm on the east coast of England contributed to the anxiety with which his arrival was awaited at Southampton.

Lindberghs in France

Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Mureaux, 25 miles from Paris, yesterday afternoon on a secret flight from Inverness, northern Scotland. The flyers previously had been unreported for more than twelve hours and some anxiety was felt for their safety.

Farmer Is Killed When He Is Kicked by Horse

6 MORE SEIZED IN ROUNDUP OF MAIL ROBBERS

Recover $50,000 Loot in Detroit.

Following the disclosure Wednesday that Chicago was the disposal center for bonds taken in widespread mail robberies, postal inspectors yesterday widened their field of investigation to take in Detroit, St. Paul, and Salt Lake City.

In Detroit six men, seized by the police, were alleged to have tried to dispose of securities taken in holdups in the east. The enormous amount of $4,000,000 was mentioned by the Detroit authorities as the loot of the eastern confederates, and $50,000 in bonds as the recovery brought about by the arrests. It was not made plain that the prisoners were involved in mail holdups, but postal investigators were said to be interested.

Four Are Detroiters.

Those seized are Leo Girolando, Adolph Spira, James Wallace, and Maurice Meyer, all Detroiters; Robert Johnson and William Donald of Flint, Mich. It was asserted that they had connections with gangs in New York and Chicago.

The postal department obtained, at St. Paul, warrants for two men charged with participating in a mail robbery in a St. Paul railway station last January. One of those named was James Ryan, a Touhy gangster, now on trial in the Criminal court here for the murder of John Rinella.

Ryan is the third member of the notorious Touhy gang to be named in the series of mail holdups. The others are Gloomy Gus Schaefer and Willie Sharkey, who are alleged to have been involved in the $250,000 mail robbery in Sacramento, Cal., last February. Both are now in jail in St. Paul, awaiting trial on a charge of assisting their chief, Roger Touhy, in the kidnaping for ransom of William Hamm, wealthy Minnesota brewer.

Name Salt Lake City Man.

The second St. Paul warrant named Frank McKee, who is in jail at Salt Lake City, as a participant in the Minneapolis crime. He and Ryan, it was intimated, might also have been in the Sacramento job.

In Chicago the government arraigned George [Red] Kerr, who was arrested the previous day with some of the Sacramento loot, before United States Commissioner Walker. He agreed to waive extradition to California. His bonds were set at $25,000. The postal inspectors disclosed that a glove, owned by Arthur Kline, one of the robbers, was left in the car in which the Sacramento bandits escaped, and that a laundry mark on this article made it possible to trace the gang. Kline is under arrest in Sacramento.

So far the government has recovered $500,000 of the $613,000 loot in three mail robberies; that at Sacramento, one in Chicago's loop on Dec. 6, 1932, and a third about a year ago on the steamship Leviathan in New York harbor.

GERMAN BEER EXPORTS TO U. S. DROP SHARPLY; BREWMASTERS WORRY

(Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.)

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—German brewing interests are anxious over the sharp decline in beer exports to the United States.

In June these had risen to 27.42 per cent of all beer sent from the reich, making the United States the best customer of German breweries. July saw a decline, August exports shrank more than three-fourths, and the figures for September, just compiled, show barely one-sixth of the June exports. Exports of hops show parallel figures.

German beer kegs, on the other hand, are being purchased by the United States in steadily increasing quantities.

MRS. WINKLER GIVES UP FLAT ON THE DRIVE

Mrs. Georgette Winkler, whose husband, Gus, north side gang leader, was slain Oct. 9, yesterday moved away from the apartment they occupied at 3300 Lake Shore drive. Her new address was not disclosed.

Ralph Carson, doorman at the apartment building, criticized what he termed the "hounding" of Mrs. Winkler by the police and others. Carson, an Englishman, was once a butler for Chicago society families.

"Mrs. Winkler," he declared, "was a perfect lady. "When she put on her bathing suit to go to the lake she always went out the back way. And generous! Quite frequently she gave me a $5 bill. I don't hold with the papers saying such things as they did say about her, or even about Mr. Winkler. They couldn't talk that way about fine people in England."

The inquest into the death of Winkler will be resumed Monday. Col Henry Barrett Chamberlin, crime commission director and a member of the coroner's jury, yesterday gave Coroner Walsh four names of additional witnesses he wished summoned. The names were withheld.

ESTIMATES CITY REVENUE FOR '34 AT 42 MILLIONS

City Controller Upham yesterday began to prepare a tentative budget for 1934 by estimating the revenues that would be available for appropriation. He estimated the council could build a corporate budget totaling $42,372,084, which is $5,410,967 less than the appropriations for the current year.

The controller's figures picture a less dire financial condition than did the estimate given out last week by Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee. The alderman said that the budget should not exceed $35,158,000, but in arriving at that conclusion estimated a larger deficit as of Dec. 31, 1933, and less 1934 revenue than did the controller.

On the basis of a city valuation for 1934 of $2,623,112,897, and figuring loss and cost in collections at 10 per cent, the controller said tax revenue would total $30,792,000. Miscellaneous receipts he placed at $13,700,000, raising the 1933 figure by $1,000,000 because of expected liquor license fees. From this total of $44,492,000, he subtracted an estimated deficit of $2,119,916 as of Dec. 31, 1933, leaving $42,372,084 against which to appropriate.

ASK PROMPT U. S. LOAN TO BUILD ELEVATED ROADS

Motor Club Calls Officials to Massmeeting.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Chicago Motor club yesterday called a massmeeting of public officials—federal, state, county and city—to urge prompt construction of an elevated highway system for Chicago such as is proposed in the Massen-McClintock traffic survey.

Arrangements for the motor club massmeeting will be completed today. The tentative date is for early next week, Monday or Tuesday. It is expected that congressmen, state legislators, county commissioners, and aldermen will be among those invited to participate in a demand for a federal loan for the highway system.

Would Give Thousands Jobs.

"A federal loan for the project," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, "could put thousands of men to work this winter. Interest and principal could be paid from the state's gasoline excise without burdening the public with any new or additional tax.

"The financing plan recommended in the Massen-McClintock report calls for a pay-as-you-go policy from the motor fuel tax. However, the need for unemployment relief is so acute that I'm convinced we should build ahead of collections."

The suggestion for a federal loan came from Lester Norris of St. Charles, president of the Fox Valley federation.

"The entire metropolitan area, in fact, all northern Illinois, northern Indiana, and southeastern Wisconsin would benefit from this unemployment relief project in Chicago, as well as from the improvement in motor transportation facilities within the city," said Mr. Norris.

"The gasoline tax offers perfect security for the government money, which cannot be said about all of its industrial recovery loans. The improvement is economically sound, disregarding its value as an unemployment relief measure, which cannot be said of reclamation work to increase the farm surplus.

"Washington is loaning money to railroads to buy rails as an aid to the steel industry. The elevated highways likewise would require steel. Surely automobile transportation, paying 1 cent a gallon to the government on fuel consumed, is entitled to as much consideration as rail transportation."

Two Years' Work on Survey.

The traffic survey mapping an elevated highway construction program for Chicago was prepared by Dr. Miller McClintock of the Harvard university traffic research after two years of study, on behalf of the city council street and safety committee, of which Ald. John Massen is chairman.

The report, completed a few weeks ago, states that work can be started promptly after the state highway department, the county, and the city agree on details of routing and engineering design. Negotiations among these three governmental units have been awaiting the outcome of bills before the special session of the legislature at Springfield proposing that part of the gasoline tax revenue be devoted to charity.

The assignment of part of the motor fuel revenue to charity might interfere with the program to build the elevated highway system from gasoline tax revenue as it is collected. However, it would leave enough money to pay interest and keep up principal payments on a substantial government loan to finance construction.

FIRE ROUTS DOZEN FAMILIES.

A dozen families were driven to the street early yesterday when fire, believed to have been started by spontaneous combustion, did $500 damage to an apartment house at 1661 Birchwood avenue.

Addresses Workers

COST OF RELIEF MUST BE CUT, DUNHAM WARNS

Tells Social Workers Tax Load Too Heavy.

A reduction in the cost of emergency relief must be made in the early future, it was asserted last evening by Robert J. Dunham, newly elected chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. He spoke before a group of 200 social workers at the Illinois Conference on Public Welfare in the Knickerbocker hotel.

"In the last three years an aggregate of $115,000,000 has been spent on relief, of which 16 millions has been private funds and 99 millions in public money," said Mr. Dunham. "I look forward the time when the relief rolls are abolished and relief workers are absorbed by industry.

"The present relief as administered by the state organization costs the staggering sum of five and one-half million dollars a month. At this rate we cannot continue to function. We must reduce the tax burden on the people."

Expects Victory for Bond Bills.

Mr. Dunham expressed disappointment that the thirty million dollars relief bond issue bills had failed to pass the house of representatives at Springfield on Wednesday. He asserted, however, that he believed they would ultimately be passed.

Earlier in the day Mayor Kelly expressed apprehension over the obstacles which the bond issue bills had encountered in the house, where a postponement saved them from defeat.

"I don't know what we are going to do if they are not passed," said the mayor. "I do know that we will be in a dangerous situation. I can't conceive of downstate legislators letting people starve through their votes against the bills."

Cost of Shelters Reduced.

The emergency relief commission announced yesterday that it furnished 885,085 meals and 283,526 nights' lodging to unattached men and women at its shelters in Chicago during September.

The cost of maintaining the shelters dropped from $115,458 for June to $103,030 for September. The shelters operated by the city department of public welfare provided more than a quarter of the lodging and nearly a third of the meals served last month.

HOUSE REFUSAL TO VOTE RELIEF SHOCKS HORNER

Fears Real Estate Taxes Will Be Higher.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Saying that he was "shocked" by the decisive refusal of the house of representatives to approve the winter charity program sponsored by him and the Illinois emergency relief commission, Gov. Horner today hinted that he feels that the constituents of members who failed to vote for the program should get busy with those representatives immediately.

This was the tone of an interview with newspaper men following a speedy adjournment of the special session of the assembly at noon today until Tuesday. The senate went home yesterday.

Minority Counter Proposal.

The governor feels that real estate owners and organizations now assured of the elimination of general state taxes on their property by the use of sales tax proceeds for corporate purposes after Jan. 1 should be actively battling the minority's counter proposal that the use of this money for relief work be continued.

"I can't reconcile myself," the governor said, "to the thought that members of the legislature, with winter approaching, will calmly vote to let men, women, and children starve. Therefore I have confidence in the ultimate outcome of this matter. I still have faith that humanitarianism will prevail.

"Of course, I was shocked by the refusal of the house to pass legislation presenting the only solution that has been proposed for this big problem. There is no valid objection to this legislation. There is no other adequate means of meeting the crisis unless those men who oppose this plan feel they want to increase instead of lessen the taxes upon the already overburdened owners of property."

Hopkins Invited to Speak.

It was pointed out by the governor that if the minority were able to put through its program real estate not only would be deprived of a tax reduction now almost in its grasp but would see its taxes "soaring skyward" through the operation of the Lantz plan limiting relief to increased local taxes by cities and counties.

The only action of the house before it adjourned consisted of authorizing an invitation to Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, to address the chamber next Tuesday. Mr. Hopkins said in Washington tonight that he would accept the invitation.

MOTOR CLUB PAYS FIRST AWARD FOR THIEF'S CAPTURE

The first of the rewards offered by the Chicago Motor club to citizens or policemen for the arrest, conviction, and imprisonment of any one stealing a car belonging to a club member was paid yesterday to Policemen Arthur Connolly, William Adlam, and Edwin Berger of the automobile detail by J. J. Cavanagh, general manager of the club. The three policemen arrested Albert Parlich on April 9 in a car which was stolen from a club member. Judge Walter J. La Buy sentenced Parlich to one to twenty years' imprisonment and the reward was paid after the club was informed that the prisoner had started serving his term.

'DISARMAMENT IS YOUR PROBLEM': JAPAN TO EUROPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Oct. 26.—Japan made today's outstanding pronouncement on disarmament as European nations, confronting the German problem, adjourned the disarmament conference—the general commission until Dec. 4, and the bureau [steering committee] until Nov. 9.

The general commission decided on its own adjournment, charging the bureau with further work until December. It was when the bureau met immediately afterward to discharge this work by adjourning for two weeks that Naotake Sato, representing Japan, spoke.

Disarmament has become a purely European question, Sato said. The Japanese government intends to stand by, he added, and avoid any commitments until Europe cleans up its own back yard.

Seen as Hint to U. S.

This was considered in some circles as a slightly disguised hint to America to avoid entangling alliances. Sato pointed out further that Japan accepted the British draft convention on disarmament only with difficulty.

Apparently Japan felt this to be an opportunity to show its contempt toward the league of nations' threat to attend to Japanese misbehavior as soon as disarmament is settled.

Dr. Giuseppe Motta of Switzerland, speaking in the bureau meeting, suggested that the exact date for reconvening might be left to the president since quite possibly there might be no definite agreement on further procedure reached. Rene Massigli of France, anxious to impress Germany in particular and Europe generally with the strength of the big powers' united front, hastened to squelch this proposal. It would be equivalent to sine die adjournment, he insisted, and France could never accept that.

Refers to German Bolt.

In the general commission, after President Arthur Henderson had proposed adjournment, Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign undersecretary, stressed the importance of achieving "the main purpose of the conference without being turned aside either by vain regrets or unprofitable recrimination."

The Americans expect to stand by with a helpful expression until Nov. 9 at least.

GERMANY ACTS TO PLACE BAN ON JEWISH STUDENTS

Must Get Special Permits to Enter Universities.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Jewish students will be required to obtain special permits to gain entrance to classes in German universities this year. So they were informed today as plans went forward for the opening of most universities Nov. 1.

A notice on the Berlin university bulletin board read:

"Non-Aryan students are to assemble in the auditorium for the purpose of having their membership books stamped. Unless such stamps are procured none will be permitted to register for lectures."

"If nation-wide agitation conducted by Nazi students is successful, the honorary degrees conferred by German universities during the days of the republic from 1918 to 1932 will be re-examined and withdrawn in many cases.

Jewish Professors Fired.

Nazis at the Stuttgart Technical university presented such a petition to the president of the institution, demanding immediate action.

Martin Mutschmann, the Nazi governor of Saxony, removed twelve professors, including a number of Jews, from Leipzig university and Dresden Technical university.

The recent decree of Bernard Rust, education minister, requiring candidates for professors posts to participate in military training was published. A period "of several months" must be served prior to April, 1934, before admission to the faculty.

Meanwhile Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, said that he would be pleased if the foreign newspaper correspondents would see not only the shadow but much of the light of the new Germany.

Guest of Press Body.

The minister was the luncheon guest for the first time of the foreign press association.

"I do not expect the foreign press to agree with us," said Dr. Goebbels, "but on the contrary we welcome a divergence of foreign opinion. But we ask that we be given credit for good will in serving the German people."

Details of a revolutionary reform of German jurisprudence were announced by Hans Frank, commissioner of justice, today. He said various sub-commissions already are busy revising the penal and civil code with a view to adapting them to the German conception of law.

The work, which is to be completed in four to five months, provides for the "heaviest punishment of crimes committed against the state, the economic life, the legal security, and the national defense."

American Named Chairman.

GENEVA, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The league of nations today appointed James G. McDonald of New York to be high commissioner o an organization, independent of the league, which will help Jewish refugees from Germany.

The United States accepted an invitation to name a representative on the governing body in a note to the secretary general which said that "the people of the United States have in times past invariably regarded with a sympathetic interest all the efforts to alleviate the plight of the unfortunate peoples who find themselves in destitute circumstances beyond their control."

Mr. McDonald is the chairman of the Foreign Policy association and vice chairman of the national council for the prevention of war. He is 46 and a native of Coldwater, O.

Germany Withdraws from International Labor Bureau

GENEVA, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The international labor bureau today received a letter from the German minister of labor officially informing the organization that the withdrawal of the reich from the league of nations includes withdrawal from the labor group.

New Salem Lives Again as Shrine to Abraham Lincoln

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Salem State Park, Ill., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—The pioneer village of New Salem, rebuilt as it stood one hundred years ago, when Abraham Lincoln came here "as a piece of driftwood floating down the Sangamon," was dedicated today as the most significant of all the Lincoln shrines.

Thousands climbed the hill to the little town and huddled under trees and blankets or crowded the doorways of the thirteen reconstructed log cabins to escape the cold rain that fell during the ceremony.

Built with the loving fidelity of this community, with every cabin furnished in the authentic manner of that rude time, the visitors were able to look upon the same scenes, to sense something of the same environment, that formed the youth of Lincoln.

Must Have Stood in Doorway.

Many times, as they did today, he must have stood in the doorway of the Lincoln-Berry store, while the rain beat upon the low roof and the water dripped from the leaves of the spreading locust tree in the front yard, to look across the green at the Rutledge tavern or the house of Dr. John Allen, the most prosperous citizen in the village.

Perhaps, if they were steeped in Lincoln lore, they could recapture something of his moods. This was a rude place. Nature in generous beauty had spread a panaroma of hill and trees and river, but Lincoln had lived too close to the soil to see all this. His memory was of hard work and a life of poverty and hardship. It was here that he met and loved Ann Rutledge and it was here after her death that he gazed at these same hills in desolation. It is said on cold and rainy days he grieved especially and spoke of her open grave nearby.

The village is a monument truly expressive of the man that went forth from it, just as the pyramids of Egypt are a reflection of that age of power and materialism.

Erected to Mold Lincoln.

The old town of Salem, Gov. Henry Horner said in his dedicatory address, "seems to have been erected by destiny to receive and mold the young Lincoln, and when it had performed this important function it seems to have folded its tent like the Arabs and silently stole away. This, perhaps, is a teleogical point of view that would not find common acceptance, but the fact remains, as pointed out by the speakers today, that here the character of Lincoln was formed. He was the human product of his social environment as well as the medium for making effective great longings of the human soul that had been ineffective since the days of the eloquent peasant of the Nile valley."

Lincoln lived here for six years, from the age of 22 to 28. He slept in the leanto back of the store. The old bed, with the rope springs, is there today. The calico for the women, the candy for the children, the plows and yokes and shovels for the men, have been put back on the shelves. The tools with which men and women faced the early days of life in the westward march of the American civilization are on every hand, gathered by the citizens from their attics and barns, restored here forever, a gift to the state, not only as a monument to Lincoln but as a memorial of the people from whom he sprang.

Bears Message for People.

There seems to be nothing more to say about Lincoln, and yet this has been said. Gov. Horner, who is a deep student of Lincoln and the possessor of a noted collection of Lincolniana, found this place unique and bearing a message to the people of today.

"In this sanctified spot," he said, "during the brief moment of its history as the little old town of New Salem, Lincoln first voted; here he lounged and labored and studied and clerked, wrestled and joked and matured. Here he met his first love and endured the tragedy of her death. Here he met his first political defeat. Here he thought through many of the problems of life and prepared himself for his career in the world beyond New Salem.

"These rugged dwellings, these evidences of a crude, though sturdy civilization, surrounded as they are by the beauties of nature, seem to draw us even closer to this gigantic figure who loved his fellowmen so unselfishly. Here little children will come and gain a clearer insight into the Emancipator's soul. Here the patriot will come and the scholar and student and Lincoln lover to browse and dream and hope.

Fountain of Courage.

"If it is courage we need to face the future, it is courage that we shall find here. To take new heart and courage we have but to remember the trials that beset Lincoln here.

"It is now nearly seventy years since Abraham Lincoln was called to the place which God has reserved to the immortals. Vast social and economic changes have since occurred. Old governments have fallen, new governments have risen. The greatest armed conflict in the history of civilization has been fought. Yet this nation, solidified, unified, sanctified by the blood of the martyred Lincoln, has forged and will continue to forge steadily ahead, safe upon the foundations of that liberty and freedom for all that he gave his life to establish.

"These are days of reconstruction and 'the greatest good for the greatest number' shall guide the nation in the future. This site hallowed by the memory of Illinois' matchless Lincoln appeals to the citizens of Illinois to remain true forever to the traditions of his life."

Wander Through Cabins.

And so, after Logan Hay, president of the Abraham Lincoln association; Frank E. Blaine, representing the old Salem Lincoln league; Paul Angle, representing the Illinois State Historical association; Robert E. Kingery of the department of public works, and others had spoken, the visitors from afar and nearby wandered through the cabins and looked upon the work of the restorers. These people from the cities were gazing upon the relics of a civilization which they had forgotten. They had never seen tallow candles, ox yokes, rope beds, hand sythes, gourds, muskets, andirons, except in antique shops. They might have been wondering over the dusty remains in a mummy case of 2,500 years ago. Or the potteries and crude weapons of the mound builders, who lived in these parts long before New Salem became a village by the old grist mill.

The Lincoln sextette sang a song about the deep river and God. These were Negro singers, come to add their offering at the feet of the Emancipator. A few members of the G. A. R. sat on the front rows until the rain drove them to cover.

Idea Flowered Long Ago.

New Salem turned out the Lincoln of that rough world anew, but the idea that flowered in the emancipation act was born in human consciousness long before this country was settled, as long ago as the black sand man, whose flexed remains were dug on the banks of the Illinois river a few years ago.

This was about 5,000 years. It came out of the Nile valley, drifted into Palestine on what seems like the winds of chance, the same sort of winds that carry the pollen of flowers into far fields. It came through Greece and through the words of one who lived in a little town in Galilee and finally to Lincoln. A deep river, indeed, as these colored folk said.

SHOWBOAT DARK AS KELLY, HEWITT REFUSE LICENSE

The showboat Dixiana, whose owners tied it up in the river near Clark street two weeks ago with the intention of presenting old fashioned melodramas in the floating theater, was still dark yesterday due to inability to get a city license.

Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt said that he doubted whether he has power to issue the license, and Mayor Kelly yesterday opposed the use of the river by the showboat or any other permanently docked craft. Mr. Hewitt said that even if he finds that he has power to issue the permit, the boat must first comply with all of the provisions of the city code as to fire protection, building regulations, and protection of theater patrons.

SARRAUT CABINET GIRDS FOR FRENCH BUDGET BATTLE

New Government Plans Tax Cuts, Economies.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 27.—[Friday.]—Albert Sarraut, France's new premier, at 2 o'clock this morning announced a cabinet, the character of which presages a definite break with the socialistic financial policy and a further fight for a balanced budget by means of drastic government economies and possible tax reductions.

Several members of the center parties are included in the Sarraut cabinet, notably Francois Pietri, new minister of colonies, whose presence indicates a new financial era based on the régime of governmental economy consistently advocated by this moderate group as opposed to the Socialist policy.

Paul-Boncour Remains.

On the other hand, Joseph Paul-Boncour remains in the foreign ministry, which means that France's conciliatory foreign policy will not be changed in favor of the nationalistic policy advocated by the center and right groups.

The possibility that the "neo-socialists," who broke with the Socialist party and voted for former Premier Edouard Daladier's budget, would join the new government, disappeared yesterday when Pierre Renaudel and Andre Marquet, their leaders, refused to take portfolios in the Sarraut government. They are reported to have refused to participate after Sarraut outlined a financial policy which they were unable to s llow.

Moved Toward Center.

The cabinet's orientation toward the center is indicated by the choice of Abel Gardey as budget minister and M. Laurent-Eynac as minister of commerce, as well as the choice of several undersecretaries, although the strength of the cabinet still is definitely within the Radical Socialist party of Edouard Herriot. Besides Paul-Boncour, other outstanding ministers to keep their posts are the former premier, Daladier, minister of war; Camille Chautemps, interior, and Georges Bonnet, finance.

Sarraut, in outling his plans before a party meeting yesterday afternoon, made no secret of his aims to form a cabinet for financial restoration, and the policy of lower taxes and more economies was boldly put forth as a keynote of the budget project he will present.

The final choice of the cabinet is considerably at variance with authoritative prognostications, indicating a large number of last minute changes. It was reported that Sarraut would take the ministry of interior, the key position in the cabinet, for internal political purposes and that Chautemps would be made vice premier. Instead, Sarraut retained the ministry of marine and made Edouard Dallmier, until recently minister of colonies, vice premier and minister of justice.

LINCOLN MONUMENT REDEDICATION SET FOR NEXT SUNDAY

Pana, Ill., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Plans were completed here today for entertaining between eight and ten thousand people next Sunday afternoon at the rededication of the "Lincoln in Action" monument at Rosamond Grove cemetery and the memorialization of the monument's donors, the late Capt. John W. and Mary F. Kitchell, central Illinois' best known philanthropists. This bronze life size monument, on a ten foot granite base, was unveiled thirty years ago Sunday, when the Kitchells were present to participate in the ceremonies. Their tombs are now in the shadow of their tribute to the martyred President. Central Illinois citizens and patriotic organizations have planned the rededication and the memorialization ceremonies.

J. Nick Perrin of Belleville, author of Perrin's History of Illinois, will deliver the address and Judge Thomas M. Jett of Hillsboro, former member of congress, will preside. Both were friends of both Lincoln and Capt. Kitchell.

Arrest Mother of Baby Deserted in Automobile

The mother of a nine day old boy which was abandoned in Oak Park yesterday morning was discovered last night by the police. She is Miss Ruby Snyder, 25 years old, 2125 Larrabee street. The infant was left in the automobile of A. L. Flohr in front of the Flohr home at 1136 North Elmwood avenue, Oak Park. He was identified at the county hospital as the child of Miss Snyder. The mother explained that she had hoped the child would find a good home. The police held her in custody.

FIND STATE IDEAS DIFFER WIDELY ON LIQUOR CONTROL

Delegates Agree Only on Rate of Taxation.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Delegates from five middle western states to Gov. Clyde Herring's conference on uniform liquor regulations today outlined five divergent schemes of thought on the subject, twitted one another about the relative merits of their bootleggers, and went away agreed that the only uniformity possible is the rate of taxation.

Indiana has already adopted a control law, and Nebraska cannot do so before the legislative session of 1934 because it is constitutionally dry, but control laws are being studied by commissions in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Iowa. Gov. Herring called the conference of these states in the hope that some degree of uniformity might be realized by the time repeal becomes a fact in December. The purpose of the conference, as stated by M. A. Tinley, chairman of the Iowa commission, was to promote temperance, prevent illicit drinking, and effect uniformity in taxation to discourage bootlegging.

Far from Agreed.

But the sentiment in the five states, as reflected by the delegates, is far from uniform, ranging in humidity from constitutionally dry Nebraska to dripping wet Wisconsin and Illinois, whose commissions, it is predicted, will recommend sale of both wine and spirits for consumption on the premises.

The most drastic plan of control, hitherto not disclosed, was that under consideration by the Iowa commission as explained by the Rev. Stoddard Lane, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church of Des Moines. This plan includes a state monopoly and tighter restrictions on the liquor traffic than either the Canadian or Swedish system favored by the Rockefeller foundation.

Individual permits to purchase liquor, based on the Ontario system, would be required, and they could be revoked by either the commission or a court of equity.

Iowa Idea Most Drastic.

The proposed plan is designed, according to Dr. Lane, to eliminate profit from the liquor traffic, to prevent a return of the saloon, and to prevent bootlegging.

There would be a commission of five members, appointed by the governor, and they would elect a state administrator with extraordinary powers and a salary sufficient to make bribes unattractive. The state would have a monopoly on the distribution of liquor, privately manufactured, through liquor commission stores which could not be set up without an affirmative vote of the local community.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH OPERATING CONFIDENCE GAME

Mrs. Mary Clark Brown, 44 years old, charged with operating a confidence game, was held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green and also was ordered to the psychopathic hospital for examination.

The complainant was Mrs. Grace M. Forschner, 422 Melrose avenue, Palos Park. She alleged that Mrs. Brown and she entered into a contract under which Mrs. Brown was to pay $70,000 for a house at 4800 Ellis avenue. To make a down payment of $25,000, Mrs. Forschner said, Mrs. Brown was to sell property she owned in Florida. While waiting for the Florida sale to be completed, it was alleged by the complainant, Mrs. Brown borrowed $1,000 from her.

When neither the $25,000 nor the $1,000 was paid, Mrs. Forschner filed a civil suit and also charge of operating a confidence game. She averred that Mrs. Brown worked on her sympathies by telling her the $1,000 loan was to be used in paying doctors to treat her 9 year old son for infantile paralysis.

U. S. TO OPPOSE CENSORING OF FOREIGN NEWS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Robert Thompson Pell of New York will represent the United States at the international congress of government press bureaus in Madrid Nov. 7, the state department announced today. Mr. Pell is now press officer of the American delegation to the disarmament conference at Geneva.

It is understood that he has been instructed to oppose, on behalf of this government, the proposal which will be brought before the congress advocating censorship of dispatches of foreign news correspondents by the press officers of the various foreign offices. It is expected that the British foreign office will support the United States stand against the proposal.

FAHRNEYS ADOPT GRANDSON, HEIR OF MEDICINE KING

Mr. and Mrs. Emory H. Fahrney of 400 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, yesterday adopted their 18 months old grandchild, Peter Parker Pickering, in proceedings before Judge Charles T. Allen of Woodstock, sitting in the Cook County court. The child is the son of Hugh Parker-Pickering and Mrs. Merry Fahrney Parker-Pickering, who were divorced on Sept. 27, and is the great-grandson of the late Peter Fahrney, millionaire patent medicine manufacturer.

The Pickerings were present in court with the child and the Fahrneys and made no objection to the adoption.

U. S. BAN ON LIQUOR ADS IN DRY STATES TO STAY AFTER REPEAL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Repeal will not lift the ban on publication or display of liquor advertisements in newspapers or elsewhere in dry states, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings ruled today.

Citing the Reed amendment, which forbids sending through the mails of any liquor advertisement addressed to a person or point within a dry state, the attorney general declared that this restriction will continue after repeal because it rests on postal laws and not on the eighteenth amendment.

In his decision, the attorney general pointed out that the Reed amendment requires the postmaster general to publish a list of states into which liquor advertisements cannot move through the mails. The postoffice department today was working on a statement for publication tomorrow which is believed to give the first such list since national prohibition.

DECISION UPSETS EFFORTS OF DRYS TO BALK REPEAL

Court Upholds Voting in Pennsylvania.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Dauphin County court today refused to prevent Pennsylvania from voting on repeal of the eighteenth amendment on Nov. 7.

The decision upheld the validity of the McClure act, which sets up a convention of 15 delegates at large to meet Dec. 5 at Harrisburg.

The decesion was given in an injunction suit by which national anti-repeal forces, led by Dr. William Sheafe Chase of the International Reform federation, Washington, D. C. The plaintiffs sought to keep the names of rival candidates for delegates off the ballots.

The ruling preserves the state's position among five others whose elections are set for the day which repeal forces regard as the climax of their campaign to erase the prohibition amendment from the constitution.

With 33 states already on record against the eighteenth amendment, repeal leaders predict the Nov. 7 elections easily will produce the three votes required to make up repeal effective.

The decision was the second legal reverse suffered by the drys this week. On Monday the United States Supreme court refused to review a similar case which anti-repeal forces had lost in the Missouri courts.

In both instances, dry leaders had attacked as unconstitutional the method of voting on repeal by state conventions. Such conventions, the drys contended, are nondeliberative and not in accord with principles of representative government embodied in the federal constitution.

JOLIET MERCHANT ROBBED.

Isadore Lewis, Joliet clothier, was robbed of $585 yesterday by four men, armed with a machine gun, who forced his car to the curb as he returned to his store in the Joliet mill district after drawing the money from a bank.

DOMINICAN HEAD ACCUSED OF PLOT ON CUBAN RULER

Seize Two for Planning to Kill President Grau.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 26.—The arrest of two men accused of plotting to kill President Ramon Grau San Martin, the bombing of the home of Col. Carlos Mendieta, leader of the Nationalista party, and continued strikes, disorders, and destruction of property both in Havana and the interior, marked the day in Cuba.

President Rafael Trujillo Molina of the Dominican republic has been charged by government officials with instigating the plot to slay Cuba's president as a result of police investigations climaxed by the arrest of Manuel Cuevas Rivera and Ramon Palaceque.

Says Documents Bare Plot.

Documents found on these men by Chief of Police Ulcicano Franco are said to show the men were complying with instructions from the Dominican president, whose friendship for former President Gerardo Machado is no secret here.

Disclosure of the alleged plot followed the bombing early today of the home of Col. Mendieta, in Vedado, a Havana suburb. Politicians who were guests in the house and the Mendieta family were asleep at the time. The entrance and Mndieta's palatial offices were demolished, but no injuries were reported.

Railroad communication from Havana eastward has been virtually paralyzed by the destruction of tracks. Only three trains have been able to reach their destinations this week. More tracks were blown up this morning. Two trains leaving Havana were derailed and shots were fired at passenger cars near Colon.

Firemen Gird for Trouble.

Havana firemen, fearing violence from former members of the force, ousted by the last two administrations, barricaded themselves in their fire stations today.

Police jailed about 200 men as labor agitators today. They are charged with making plans for a general strike to celebrate Red day Nov. 7. These were in addition to 150 arrested yesterday.

Some 2,000 public works employés threatened an immediate walkout today unless they get a month's pay of the 17 months' wages which are due them.

President Grau today signed a decree resurrecting Machado's system of identification and registration of foreign residents and visitors. This will affect 250,000 people in Cuba.

6 Killed in Camaguey Clash.

CAMAGUEY, Cuba, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Six men were reported killed today in clashes between soldiers and workers at the Jaronu sugar mill. Persons reaching here from Jaronu, a village 35 miles north, said two Spaniards were among those wounded in the fighting.

PRESS TO HONOR 1733 CHAMPION OF ITS LIBERTY

John Peter Zenger and His Deeds Recalled.

historic green where the drama of freedom began and chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, will also take part in the commemoration.

State After State Represented.

Seventeen states of the Union will be represented by members of the state publishers' associations and other newspaper bodies of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Florida, Missouri, Georgia, Kansas, Oklahoma, North Dakota, Washington, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, and New York.

The company will be comprehensive. The small town editor, whose clientele has much to lose from an invasion of the complete freedom of the press, will be on the scene, but so, too, will be the magnificoes of the profession or their representatives.

These Do Not Forget Zenger.

Among the notables uniting to honor the long-gone colleague who made it possible for American editors and publishers to breathe free air are Frank B. Noyes, head of the Associated Press; Ogden Reid, editor of the New York Herald-Tribune; Adolph Ochs, publisher of the New York Times; John C. Martin of the New York Evening Post and the Philadelphia Public Ledger; Paul Bellamy of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and the Cleveland Plain Dealer; Victor Ridder of the New York Staats-Herold; William T. Dewart of the New York Sun, and Cleveland Rogers of the Brooklyn Eagle.

Church of the Roosevelts.

The company will be welcomed to the village green by the Rev. W. H. Weigle, rector of the sentinel church of St. Paul's, which, he says, "is one of the oldest ,if not the oldest, Episcopal congregation in this country," and which in the eighteenth century counted ancestors of President Franklin Roosevelt among its communicants.

The aspect of the green is little changed since the midnight of just two centuries ago when the vigilant electors of Westchester county came early to it in order to make sure that no tricks should be played upon them at the election to be held in the morning.

Cosby Typical of a Bad Lot.

That election for member of the provincial assembly had been ordered by the provincial governor, William S. Cosby, one of the worst of a line of generally bad proconsuls whom the Stuart and the Hanoverian sovereigns of England had for generations been sending to administer the crown's business in the American colonies. Most of them were stupid and arrogant. Some of them were corrupt. Cosby was all three. What they most feared and hated was freedom of the press.

"I thank God," said Gov. Berkeley of Virginia in 1671, "we have no free schools nor printing, and I hope we shall not have these hundred years. For learning has brought disobedience and heresy and sects into the world, and printing has divulged them and libels against the government. God keep us from both."

Even Charles II. Disgusted.

Nor was Berkeley a tyrant in words alone. His bloody suppression of Nathaniel Bacon's uprising revolted even his autocratic master. "The old fool," exclaimed Charles II. when news of the punitive measures reached him, "has taken more lives in that naked country than I for the murder of my father!"

Cosby was a man of Berkeley's type—hating freedom, lustful for personal gain, and going to any lengths in the intimidation of judges and the illegal appointment of officials, and it was the record of him and his kind that prompted Bancroft to the devastating epitome:

The marvel is that our ancestors endured the tyrannies of these men as long as they did. The principal reason they had to endure was that they lacked a free press. A righteous and operative public opinion could not be wielded by the exposure of tyrannies and abuses.

In 1731 Cosby, who had been governor of Minorca, then a British possession, where he had left a foul record as a grafter, was appointed governor of the province of New York.

He did not reach his new post for thirteen months. Meanwhile Rip Van Dam, a sturdy and trusted Dutchman, was, as senior member of the provincial assembly, acting governor. Cosby's first official act upon arrival in New York was to demand of Van Dam half the salary and fees he had received during his thirteen months as acting governor.

Cosby, it should be added, had before this drawn from the British treasury large sums for governing a province which he had never seen, Van Dam, meanwhile, doing the work of governor.

Van Dam Trumpets Damns.

The Dutchman's reply to the new arrival's demand contained words that rhymed with his name, and he added: "If you will divide with me all the fees and salary which you drew while you were in England last year I will divide with you all that I received while I was acting in your stead."

"This is impudence!" said Cosby, and prepared to sue Van Dam.

Part of the preparation was to get the case before an equity court, a kind of court much feared by the people because it was constituted by the exclusive act of the crown governor, without the consent of the provincial assembly, and with the governor himself acting as ex officio chancellor. Lawyers considered it a tribunal of very doubtful authority.

Cosby Creates Special Court.

But Cosby went ahead, designating three Supreme court justices—Chief Justice Lewis Morris and Judges Frederick Philipse and James De Lancey—as equity judges to sit in the Van Dam case.

Van Dam's lawyers denied the legality of the court, and, to Cosby's amazement, Chief Justice Morris sustained their contention and ordered Van Dam's acquittal. Here was rebellion indeed. Cosby was furious and demanded that the chief justice make an explanation.

Morris' Noble Defiance.

The chief justice responded not with an explanation but with a dignified and austere defiance of which this noble passage is a specimen:

"If judges can be so intimidated as to not to dare to give any opinion but what is pleasing to a governor and agreeable to his private views, the people of the province must suffer in fortune or even life. . . . I have given you no cause to call my integrity into question. I have been in office almost twenty years.

"My hands have never been soiled with a bribe, nor am I conscious to myself that power or poverty hath been able to induce me to be partial in favor of either of them, and as I have no reason to expect any favor from you so I am neither ashamed nor afraid to stand the test of the strictest inquiry you can make concerning my conduct."

"And that," said the governor, "is the end of Chief Justice Morris"—and dismissed him.

But it was not the end of Morris, for he decided to offer himself as candidate for the provincial assembly at the impending election in Westchester county, that election to be held in the hamlet of Eastchester, which is now part of the city of Mount Vernon and only fifteen miles north of the Grand Central station at 42d street in New York City.

So now we come to the village green where tomorrow's celebration is to take place.

Cosby offered one of his henchmen as candidate in opposition to the dismissed Judge Morris and he set the election for Oct. 29, 1733, at Eastchester, but omitted to mention the hour at which it would be held.

A Watchful Electorate.

Hence the arrival on the green at midnight, Oct. 28, of the fifty citizens who, having experience of Cosby's deviousness, were determined to keep watch until dawn lest a snap election be held before any considerable number of electors had come in from the countryside to vote.

That they did and no chicanery was attempted during their watch.

In the morning three hundred more electors reached the scene. They came bearing banners lettered in gold with the words, "Liberty and Law."

With them arrived John Peter Zenger, the printer-reporter of the New York Weekly Gazette's staff, and that was a godsend for the cause of human liberty in general and the freedom of the press in particular, for he saw and took notes on everything that happened that day.

Cosby's henchmen tried to rush the election by a viva voce vote, but that was prevented and Zenger recorded the fact with copious detail.

Thirty-eight Quakers were illegally disqualified from voting on the ground that they—wishing to affirm, which was their right—would not take the oath. And Zenger, with numerous details and many names, recorded that infraction of the law.

Nothing escaped him. He did a masterly and authentic piece of reporting under difficult conditions and the more carefully one reads his account the more clearly one sees what a dangerous man he was—from Cosby's point of view—to have on the scene.

Sheriff in Scarlet and Silver.

Here is part of his report on the disfranchising of the Quakers by High Sheriff Cooper—Cooper, who, in Zenger's story, had ridden onto the green "finely mounted, the housings and holster caps being scarlet, richly laced with silver":

"Still he persisted in refusing the said Quaker to vote, and in like manner did refuse seven and thirty Quakers more. Men of known and visible estates. This Cooper, now high sheriff of this country, is said not only to be a stranger in that country, but not having a foot of land or other visible estate in it, unless very lately granted, and it is believed he had not wherewithal to purchase any."

Stupid business, that disfranchising of the Quakers, for they got their revenge a few hours later by joining Zenger's financial backers for the establishment of the Weekly Journal.

The Right Triumphs.

Morris was triumphantly elected over Cosby's henchman and Zenger wound up his story with this paragraph:

"The indentures being sealed, the whole body of electors waited on their new representative to his lodgings with trumpets sounding and violins, and in a little time took their leave of him and thus ended the election to the general satisfaction."

But, his assignment admirably covered, Reporter Zenger's troubles were only beginning.

But this reporter was up and dusting. Within a week he had his own newspaper on the street, printed in it his report of the Eastchester election, and began a series of bold exposures of Cosby's tyrannies and exactions. Those attacks brought him to prison, but, after many weary months, he was victorious. Tyranny could no longer find refuge behind the soggy bulwark of "the greater the truth the greater the libel. Zenger's jury decided "the greater the truth the greater the service" when you are exposing scoundrels.

Pending his acquittal on the charge of libel brought against him by Cosby's minions, he had sometimes to edit his newspaper from prison, and a document at once the most pathetic and most comical in the annals of the press is the open letter he addressed to his subscribers when he was in durance in 1734. Thus it reads:

"To all Subscribers and Benefactors who take my weekly Journall. Gentlemen Ladies and Others:

"As you last week were Disappointed of my Journall, I think it Incumbent upon me, to publish my Apology which is this. On the Lord's Day, the 17th of this Instant, I was Arrested, taken and imprisoned in the common gaol of this City, by Virtue of a Warrant from the Governor, and the Honorable Francis Harrison, Esq: and others in Council of which (God willing) Yo'l have a Coppy whereupon I was put under such Restraint that I had not the Liberty of Pen, Ink, or Paper, or to see, or speak with People, till upon my complaint to the Honorable, the Chief Justice, at my appearing before him upon my Habias Corpus on the Wednesday following. Who discountenanced that Proceeding, and therefore I have had since that time the Liberty of speaking through the Hole of the Door, to my Wife and Servants by which I doubt not yo'l think me sufficiently Excused for not sending my last weeks Journall, and I hope for the future by the Liberty of Speaking to my Servants thro' the Hole of the Door of the Prison, to entertain you with my Journall as formerly. And am your obliged Humble Servant."

Andrew Hamilton's Keynote.

Zenger's trial for libel was held in August, 1735. His superb champion at the bar—for he was more than mere counsel—was Andrew Hamilton of Philadelphia, then 80 years old, but as valiant and as shrewd as ever he had been.

This was his keynote, just as it is today the keynote of every American editor who is solicitos for the freedom of the press:

"It is an old and wise caution that when our neighbor's house is on fire we ought to take care of our own. For, though blessed be God, I live in a government where liberty is well understood and freely enjoyed, yet experience has shown us all (I'm sure it has to me) that a bad precedent in our government is soon set up for an authority in another; and therefore I cannot but think it mine, and every honest man's duty that (while we pay all due obedience to men in authority) we ought at the same time to be upon our guard against power, wherever we apprehend that it may affect ourselves or our fellow subjects."

In the course of his argument Hamilton lured Judge De Lancey—our old friend De Lancey of 1732 who had refused to stand by Judge Morris in defying Cosby's tyrannies—into this admission from the bench:

"All words are libellous, or not, as they are understood. Those who are to judge of the words must judge whether they are scandalous or ironical, tend to the breach of the peace, or are seditious. There can be no doubt of it."

"I thank your honor," said Hamilton.

And well he might be thankful, for he knew his case was won with the jury.

He declared that it was for the jury to decide how the words should be understood, and that, if they understood the words complained of by the attorney general to be scandalous and false, then they should say that Zenger was guilty of publishing a false libel, and not otherwise.

Putting It Up to the Jury.

Turning to the jury, he said:

"You are from the neighborhood and therefore know of your own knowledge that the facts are true as stated."

Thus was the knell of "the greater the truth the greater the libel" sounded, for the Zenger jury was not a jury of trucklers.

Hamilton closed with this peroration, which has become a classic:

"It is the best cause—the cause of liberty.

"I make no doubt but your upright conduct this day will not only entitle you to the love and esteem of your fellow citizens, but every man who prefers freedom to a life of slavery will bless and honor you as men who have baffled the attempts of tyranny and, by an impartial and incorrupt verdict, have laid a noble foundation for securing to ourselves, our posterity, and our neighbors that to which nature and the laws of our country have given us a right—the liberty both of exposing and opposing arbitrary power (in these parts of the world at least) by speaking and writing truth."

The jury, going through the formality of retiring, at once returned with the verdict of "not guilty," and the courtroom rang with cheers.

It took England fifty-six years to catch up with that verdict and to incorporate its significance into the law of a land where for ages it had been the established rule that it was for the judge to decide whether a publication complained of was or was not libelous, the jury being concerned only with the decision of the fact as to the printing and publishing.

Of the far-reaching significance of the Zenger acquittal in our subsequent annals Edward Channing wrote this pregnant summing up in the second volume—page 488—of his "History of the United States":

"The importance of this decision lay in the fact that the newspapers which were printed in the colonies after that time, came to be the vehicle of instruction on the constitutional status of the American colonists and on the rights of the Americans as men in the light of the law of nature and of theory. These articles were written by the ablest politicians and literary men of the day in America. . . . Had the newspaper press been muzzled, it is possible that the Declaration of Independence might have been written, but it certainly would not have been adopted by a Continental Congress in the year 1776, or, in all probability, for many years thereafter."

EUGENIA CANDLER WED; HONEYMOON FUND WAS STOLEN, HUSBAND SAYS

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 26.—(AP)—John H. Wilson of Miami and Kobe, Japan, and Miss Eugenia Candler, daughter of Walter T. Candler, were married and left on their honeymoon today shortly after Wilson reported a thief had taken $1,823 of honeymoon funds from his coat pocket.

The money—$1,000 in a single bill, $200 in $20 bills, $50 in smaller denominations, and checks totaling $573—was in a wallet in Wilson's inside coat pocket.

He said he believed the only access a thief had to the pocket was while he was in the wash room of a fashionable club. He hung a coat on a hook and while his eyes were full of soap a stranger said: "Here's a towel."

A railway ticket to the west coast was in the wallet but another ticket and the honeymoon passages to Kobe had been placed elsewhere.

Five Killed as Train Hits Auto; Girl Seriously Hurt

Saltillo, Miss., Oct. 26.—(AP)—A 14 year old girl, critically injured, was the only survivor today of a railroad crossing accident here that claimed the lives of her parents, a brother and sister and a friend. The five were killed when a fast passenger train struck their car last night.

MUSSOLINI LIFTS ITALY'S FASCISM TO WORLD PLAN

ROME, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Fascist revolution has been raised from a national plan to a world plan, Premier Mussolini today told the chief leaders of Fascism.

The leaders were assembled at party headquarters for instructions concerning the twelfth year of Fascism beginning Oct. 29.

Il duce told the group that the fact the movement has reached world importance demands of them higher duties and graver responsibility.

First Prize, $500. Second Prize, $250. Third Prize, $100. Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Prizes, $50. Seventh, Eighth and Ninth Prizes, $25. Next 250 Prizes, Portable Electric Sunbeam Mixmasters, Retail Value $21 Each. Open Only to Women of the Chicago Area. No Limit to the Number of Your Entries. The Simplest Contest Ever Conceived. Closes Midnight, Saturday, November 18th. Full Details Below.

Greater than most national contests, yet limited to housewives of the Chicago area. Sponsored by Procter & Gamble, to acquaint more women with American Family, the Flakes and Soap created especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region to give Double-Suds.

All you do is think of ten words or less that, in your estimation, best answer the question, "Why do more women in this Chicago Area prefer American Family Soap and Flakes to any other brand?" For example: "American Family's pure, rich suds save clothes, money and time," "No soap compares with American Family for this hard water," "American Family's double-suds can't harm the filmiest silk," "American Family's safe for the most delicate colors." Tear off the top of a package of American Family Flakes and cut out that part of an American Family Soap wrapper upon which is printed the circular trade mark (or make reasonably exact facsimiles. You don't have to buy). Attach them to a piece of paper upon which you have written your answer. Send them, together with your name and address, to American Family, 230 North Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Send in as many entries as you like. Penmanship doesn't count, neither does spelling. Remember, this contest closes at midnight on Saturday, November 18th. Start today.

FREE! 250 Portable, Electric Sunbeam Mixmasters. Retail Value $21

Mixes cakes and batters, mashes potatoes, juices fruits, makes mayonnaise, beats eggs, whips cream, etc. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Complete with fruit juice extractor, fruit juice strainer or mayonnaise oil dripper, and two handsome, opaque green glass mixing bowls.

WRAPPER SAVERS! You can enter this Contest without destroying the valuable coupons on the back of American Family Soap wrappers. Simply cut out the wrapper panel upon which is printed the circular American Family trade mark. The remainder of the wrapper will be redeemed as usual.

THE SIMPLE CONTEST RULES

(1) Tear top off box of American Family Flakes and cut out that part of American Family Soap wrapper upon which is printed the circular trade mark—or—make reasonably exact facsimiles.

(2) Write on a slip of paper not more than 10 words that, in your estimation, best answer the question, "Why do more women in this Chicago Area prefer American Family Soap and Flakes to any other brand?"

(3) Send Box Top, Wrapper (or facsimiles) and Answer, together with your name and address to American Family, 230 North Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois.

(4) In the event of a tie, identical prizes will be awarded tying contestants.

(5) The judges will be Miss Mary Meade, Mrs. Edith Shuck and Miss Mary Martensen, Home Economics Editors of the Chicago Tribune, News and American respectively.

(6) The opinion of the judges must be accepted as final.

(7) Contest ends midnight, Saturday, November 18th.

(8) Prize winners will be notified by mail as soon as possible after contest closes.

(9) Contest limited to women of the Chicago Area.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

RAILWAY BOURBONISM.

After months of consideration, the eastern railroads have finally decided that they will not for the present follow the lead of the southern and western railroads in reducing basic passenger fares. The passenger traffic managers have concluded that fare reductions would not sufficiently stimulate travel to compensate them for the loss of revenue on trips that must and will be taken irrespective of cost. The roads have announced that they prefer to maintain their present basic fare, but also to endeavor to stimulate passenger travel by offering excursion fares to points of interest and to resorts.

The vacationist has largely deserted the railway for the very good reason that he has use for his automobile at his destination. The private car is also better adapted to the requirements of the traveling salesman than the railway, because it can cover so many more towns in a single day and also because it can carry his trunks and avoid transfers to and from the railway station. This much of the traffic seems irrecoverably lost by the rails to the more flexible private automobile. There remain the business man, usually traveling on an expense account; the casual traveler seeking an outing, and the bus patrons.

The decision of the eastern roads not only lacks salesmanship, but clearly shows that forty-six years of regulation has not destroyed the "public be damned" attitude. A wartime level of passenger fares and an emergency Pullman surcharge are to be maintained in the face of modern trends. Here was an opportunity for the railroads to show initiative in the management of their own properties and they have declined to do so in the face of Commissioner Porter's assertion that he will move to have the interstate commerce commission examine the situation from the viewpoint that the decaying passenger service is imposing an undue burden on freight traffic.

The decision seems to hinge on the erroneous assumption often assumed toward freight traffic that passenger miles are a fixed quantity and a fare reduction means a loss of revenue. Nobody would question the statement that each generation travels more than the preceding one, and yet the railways are getting an ever decreasing share of patronage. The answer is that they are not giving the public what it wants. They offer no inducements to match the economy of the bus, the flexibility of the private auto, and the speed of the plane.

A great many people who took advantage of railway excursion rates to come to the Fair this summer became railway minded for the first time in years, perhaps many of the younger traveling for the first time. This advantage will be entirely lost on return of former exorbitant charges. Those passenger men who favored the move should force immediate reconsideration of the subject and those opposed will do well to reconsider the effect of a general order from the interstate commerce commission backed by public opinion.

EXTEND THE QUOTA RULE.

It is encouraging to learn that the inclusion of Asiatics in the quota system established by the immigration law is winning support in California. So important a public body as the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce indorses the removal of the present discriminatory and provocative rule of exclusion and a vigorous campaign of education is being carried on by the California Council of Pacific Relations, an organization represented in 58 cities and towns of the state.

THE TRIBUNE has always sympathized with the determination of the people of the Pacific coast to protect their social and economic conditions from serious invasion. It has always supported and supports now the principle of exclusion and its practical application in our immigration laws for the protection of American labor and agriculture from competition which would lower the American standard of living. We have also sympathized with the objection to unrestricted entrance to the United States for Asiatic peoples on the grounds of racial and cultural differences. We would freely grant the right and propriety of an exclusion policy adopted by Japan, China, or any other country on the same principles, but the American people would certainly and properly resent such a rule of exclusion as we apply to the Japanese, Chinese, and other Asiatic peoples, for it is unjustly discriminatory.

We think the intransigence of the dominant opinion in California which opposes the inclusion of the Asiatic peoples under the quota system is unreasonable and lacking in proper consideration for the peace of the nation. Under the quota the practical objects of exclusion would be accomplished. This is made obvious in the fact that under the quota only 185 Japanese and 105 Chinese would be admissible annually. Indeed, the San Francisco Chronicle asserts that fewer Japanese would have entered the country under the quota rule than have entered since the adoption of Senator Shortridge's unfortunate exclusion proviso of 1924.

Objection to the admission of Japan and China to the quota system is not based on practical considerations, so far as we can see, and ought not to prevail against the considerations which support the quota principle. The substantial interests, both economic and social, which exclusion protects cannot be injured by the adoption of the quota, whereas a reasonable cause of offense to the Japanese and Chinese would be removed. That it should be removed as soon as possible is in the interest of the people of the Pacific coast as of the rest of the country; in fact, we think it more to their interest.

But in any case the representatives in congress of other sections should face the fact that the present rule is one of the chief elements of discord in our relations with Japan and one which can be removed without substantial injury to our fellow citizens of the Pacific coast. We are not ready to assert that peace between the United States and Japan can be insured by the removal of this or any other cause of offense. Nevertheless it should be removed and every just and self-respecting effort made to cultivate amicable relations. There are highly respectable elements in Japan which have the same intelligent desire for peace as Americans generally feel and they should be assisted upon our part by the voluntary removal of all just causes of offense. In every pronouncement by Japanese public men the exclusion rule is put foremost. Other claims are less plausible. This at least can be removed without loss of self-respect or of proper protection of American interests.

RELIEF IN THE LEGISLATURE.

Motives in the Illinois legislature do not clear up as the assembly deals with the relief bills. Gov. Horner has asked that the state be authorized to issue $30,000,000 in bonds, the debt to be assumed by the counties to the extent that they take its proceeds. What they take becomes a charge upon their gasoline tax shares. As a county is fortunate, thrifty, and careful its charge will be less.

Conceding that relief funds must be obtained and that the state must show the federal government a good intent if it is to be regarded in Washington as making itself eligible for federal aid in this matter, the governor's bill has not been improved upon by other offerings in the legislature. If one county can improve its relief work, reduce expenses, and get better results than another it will benefit.

There is another view, expressed in the original Lantz bills, which is blocking the governor's program. Here the purpose appears malicious. It is proposed that Cook county shall be compelled to levy additional taxes to meet its relief accounts. The malice is apparently agrarian. The Chicago taxing bodies are now facing the problem of getting anywhere from seven to eleven million dollars out of already reduced expenses, and taxes must come down unless property owners are to be extinguished. Malice would appear more clearly if it is the purpose of these proposals to preserve the gasoline tax collected in Chicago for inequitable distribution elsewhere.

Editorial of the Day

BUREAUS AND THE PEOPLE'S RIGHTS.

[Bloomington Pantagraph.]

The highlight of the week in a swift changing political and economic scene was issuance by President Roosevelt of drastic new executive orders invoking the penal sections of the recovery act against those who violated their trade codes or any supplemental regulations issued by the head of the NRA, Hugh S. Johnson. To the general orders of the President, Johnson added several specific and more drastic regulations.

At about the same time Administrator Johnson forbade certain reporters to write further in critical vein of the matters they had heard at press conferences, on penalty of being barred from such meetings, and in one instance the ban was placed.

These developments emphasize, first, the new assumptions of power which bureaucratic agents have taken on; and, second, the dangerous lengths to which bureau regulations have been extended over the life and liberty of citizens.

The code submitted to NRA administrators by daily newspaper publishers of America has not yet been accepted by the administration. Since the newspaper industry is already carrying on with hours and wages generally more liberal than prescribed in the code, it is plain that the acceptance of the proposed code is held up by the NRA for other reasons, principal of which are the proposed guarantee of freedom of the press, and the provision to guard against censorship of newspapers through internal labor control.

The barrier proposed in the publishers' code against infringement upon the freedom of the press is only such as is written in the federal constitution. If the administration through its NRA bureau tries to limit such freedom, it thereupon invades the rights of the people and opens the way to government censorship, with fines and imprisonment as its method for enforcement of such censorship.

It may be assumed that President Roosevelt, in his sincere efforts to forward the recovery program, has no intention of himself transgressing the guaranteed rights of his countrymen to the maintenance of a free press. But he should warn his subordinates that they are not placed in their temporary stations to ride over the rights of the people, with the probable resultant revulsion against the program for recovery to which the President has thus far been able to rally widespread support.

Continuance of this lately assumed autocratic power by persons within the NRA will justify the publishers of the country by united action in refusing to sign any code whatsoever unless it includes the unabridged freedom of the press. This freedom must be maintained not alone in expressions of editorial opinion, but in the publication of facts as found by responsible newspaper writers, independent of officially prepared and usually biased government "releases." The people have a right to the news concerning their government, truthfully reported.

The preservation of this right the newspapers are conscientiously seeking to protect, that the fundamental basis of our democratic form of government may not be undermined by bureaucratic authority.

The overwhelming majority of the newspapers of the United States hold themselves ready to observe the requirements of the suggested newspaper code as to hours and wages, and with equal unanimity the press is giving its moral and material support to the recovery program, that it may have a fair and full trial; but newspapers cannot, in justice to the citizenship which they serve, consent to even the first steps toward abridgment of the people's prerogative of free discussion of public affairs, including actions of their government.

Bureau heads at Washington may be so nettled by trivialities of administration as to lose the larger outlook which public sentiment demands. Instead of exhibiting a picayunish concern over too many details, NRA should clean up the hundreds of codes yet to be approved and let the business of the country have a breathing spell to recover its own momentum, unharassed by constant fears of new governmental interruptions.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

OUR BENEFICENT GOVERNMENT is going to loan the farmers 50 cents on every bushel of wheat they've got in the warehouse. Which, fellow white collar workers, suggests an idea. Why not get the government to loan 50 cents on every white collar we own, either around our necks or in the laundry? We white collar birds ought to be looked after as well as the farmers. Huh? Anyhow, there's no harm in suggesting it.

HOW DOES IT WORK? Very simple! Very simple! It's just like this: Raising the price of an ounce of gold will cost you more dollars to buy an ounce of gold. But you say you don't want to buy an ounce of gold. Shut up and listen. If a dollar buys less and less gold as the time rolls on it will also buy less and less of the necessities of life, like pancakes and soft boiled eggs, football tickets, gasoline and cigarets. But says you: "I don't want to pay more for the necessities of life such as pancakes, soft boiled eggs, football tickets, gasoline and cigarets." Oh ho, so that's it! Then there's no use of trying to explain things to you. Get out of here! you're spoiling the party.

STRANGE RELATIONSHIP.

Who sends a book of poems forth must learn
He forms a strange relationship with men;
They read and know him as the pages turn;
Most intimately in the leaves is shown
His heart of hearts while they who freely look
Upon his very core remain unknown;
He can but wonder who may read the book.

He may not even speak their names, yet they
Have facile access to his inmost self.
He can but greet them in his thought and pray
That, when the book is laid upon the shelf,
They shall not think of him but muse instead:
"These are our dreams, our loves which we have read."

ADELAIDE LOVE.

MR. McKEE has gone and done it. In the hot mayoralty campaign now raging down in New York each one of the three candidates wanted to grab the dreaded word "communism" and hurl it at his foes. But they were a little bit afraid. The very mention of that horrible word down on Wall street and among our more conservative classes makes strong men scream with terror and faint dead away. But in politics there comes a certain point in a campaign where a candidate has to send the shivers up and down the spines of the voters. The custom began years ago. A candidate at a crowded political meeting heard the orators who were to sing his praises before he should appear on the program roar their loudest, but without arousing the slightest enthusiasm in the audience. The proceedings grew tamer and tamer and the candidate realized he was lost if something didn't happen mighty quick. So suddenly he jumped up and rushed down to the center of the stage and shrieked at the top of his voice: "My God! The gyasticutus is loose! Run for your lives!" Mr. McKee has turned loose the gyasticutus in New York.

SICK ROOM Bulletin from Washington: The dollar sat up last night and took a little nourishment. Pulse high but general condition weaker. The patient was unable to explain how he was hurt. May have been struck by a hit-and-run driver or somebody gave him a swift kick in the pants.

DR. HUGO ECKENER brought the Graf Zeppelin over Chicago yesterday. It was a great event, but it has one drawback; for now following the present custom we'll have to change the name of one of our streets either to Dr. Hugo Eckener avenue or the Graf Zeppelin road.

HALLOWEEN Monday night! These days they have parties with pumpkin pies and bobbing for apples and merry games to amuse the very young and keep them from deviling around in the street. Which is a fine idea, but I am glad that I was very young many, many years ago. During my life I have seen kings and queens seated on their thrones, gazed spellbound while some of the greatest battles in history were being fought right around me. I have been privileged to be present at some of the most cataclysmic events that the world has ever known, but never have I been able to recapture the wonderful thrill, the consciousness of triumph, the emotion of achieving my heart's desire that I felt the Halloween night I helped carry Squire Lawrence's big wooden front gate over to the commons alongside the Fourth ward school and chucked it into the bonfire. Such moments come only once in a lifetime.

BOB BECKER in our sprightly contemporary, the W. k. TRIBUNE, warns hunters not to get their ammunition mixed up and stick a twenty gauge shell in a twelve gauge gun. The twenty gauge shell often just ruins a twelve gauge gun and musses the hunter who fired it all up. And, Robert, while you're on the subject say something about the hunters, both twelve gauge and twenty gauge, who insist on crawling through a hedge or fence and then reaching back and pulling their gun through with the barrel pointing right at 'em. We hate to go hunting with fellows like that. We so often have to walk two or three miles to find a telephone so as to notify the coroner.

WORLD'S FAIR COMMENT.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual disease.

PROTECTION AGAINST DIPHTHERIA.

EXPERIENCE proves that if one-half the children in a given town are freshly immunized against diphtheria the disease will not become epidemic there. Cases will be imported and, from time to time, one or two other cases may develop, but the disease will not spread enough to become epidemic. In order that there should be a guarantee against diphtheria the proportion of children immunized must be reasonably well distributed throughout the town. If all the children should be immunized in one section and none in another, those in the neglected quarter would not be safe against the disease.

Protection is not indefinite. Unless there are enough immunizations each year to maintain the proportion protected at 50 per cent, epidemics can be expected. The greater the drop below one-half and the longer the low level is maintained, the greater the possibility of trouble.

While from a practical standpoint protection against diphtheria epidemics follows immunization of one-half the children of school age, safety is increased b raising the proportion of the immunized. Since diphtheria is most liable to occur in children under 6 years of age, the margin of safety is greatly broadened by immunization of the younger children—those not yet in school.

These conclusions, demonstrated elsewhere, have been confirmed by the experience of the Springfield, Ill., schools and general population. In that city just one-half of the school children have been cared for in this way, and the protected are fairly well distributed geographically as to age and also between public and parochial schools. In consequence diphtheria in that city has become of minor importance and should remain so as long as they keep to their present policy.

Such has been the experience of many other places, some of which have had no diphtheria for years in their school population, and almost none in the general population. Old fashioned epidemics should be nothing more than a memory from now on.

The Springfield experience with scarlet fever has been satisfactory, though not up to the diphtheria standard. Other cities with good health service in the public schools have had about the same experience. The pupils of the Illinois city are very well vaccinated against smallpox and, in consequence, that disease has not troubled them.

Their experience with chickenpox has not been so satisfactory. Chickenpox is a very mild disease and consequently it has been badly neglected. Nobody knows much to do against it, and almost nothing is done. In the year 1932-'33 chickenpox led all other diseases of its group in the number of pupils caused to be excluded from school. It did more than any other disease of the kind to depopulate the schoolrooms and to increase the inefficiency and per pupil per day cost of school maintenance.

BONE IN THE NECK.

Sunny writes:

1. During the last few months I have noticed that at the back of my neck a bone protrudes slightly. I imagine this bone is the terminus of my spinal column. At the opposite end there seems to be a lump. Is this caused by incorrect posture of long years' standing? This is bone and not fat.

2. Is there anything I can do to correct this?

3. Can a broken vein [on the face] ever be the root of cancer?

REPLY.

1. One of the backbones, the seventh, commonly projects backward. In ewe-necked and swan-necked people it is unduly prominent. A projecting vertebra at the other end of the column is less frequently encountered. Some part of this mild deformity may be the result of faulty posture. Some people are built that way.

2. Try improving your posture. However, the displacement, if such it be, is of no importance.

3. Probably not.

PIMPLES AND WARTS.

J. B. writes: I have little pimples or warts on my wrists, arms, and hands and face. They are not big and they go away after a while. Are they contagious? Can they be cured?

REPLY.

So far as I can judge your warts are of the mildly contagious kind. They are bacterial in origin. This is the kind that is most apt to be cured by persistent greasing with castor oil or spirits of camphor or by application of salicylic acid or calomel ointment.

GOOD AT ANY TIME.

L. W. writes: I have been told watermelons are not good to eat after Aug. 20, as they lie on the ground and absorb typhoid germs. Is this true? How about germs other than typhoid?

REPLY.

Watermelons are safe both before and after the date mentioned. They contain no typhoid germs. The only way for these microbes to get on watermelon meat is through handling sliced melon by persons with soiled hands or through the agency of flies.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FRIEND OF THE FARMER

[Inquiries on problems of farm management, financing or governmental regulations sent to this department must be accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope for reply.]

E. A. B. asks: Where can I apply for a federal farm loan on my ten acre poultry farm located near Michigan City, Ind.? I believe the amount of acreage is too small for a farm loan. Is this correct?

Answer: Application for a loan on farm land in Indiana is made by addressing agent, Federal Land Bank of Louisville, Louisville, Ky. The farm credit administration has announced the following which applies to the acreage of a farm:

"No special limitation as to size or type of farm which is eligible security for a commissioner's loan has been set. There are no hard and fast regulations on this subject. Each individual's application is considered on its merits. The past and prospective earning power of the property must indicate sufficient income to meet all annual expenditures including payments on prior mortgages, insurance, taxes, etc."

W. G. B. asks: My father has been renting his farm to a tenant on a crop share plan. My father has agreed to reduce the wheat acreage on the farm and expects to receive federal bonus payments. Does the owner, who pays the taxes and upkeep and other expenses, receive and keep all of the rent or bonus payments from the idle land or does he have to pay half to the tenant? Will the interpretation be the same for corn land taken out of production?

Answer: The question of sharing the wheat payments should have been determined when the reduction contract was signed and presented to the county wheat allotment committee in the county in which the farm is located. The question of sharing in the bonus depends upon the terms of lease between owner and tenant. The details of the corn and hog reduction plan have not been announced in detail sufficient to make an interpretation.

E. D. M. asks: I have been trying for months to get a farm and had hoped that section. 208 of the subsistence homestead act would help me, but so far I have been unsuccessful. Can you tell me what is being done in the middle west under this act?

Answer: Thus far the government has not completed or announced its plans for carrying out the subsistence act in the middle west. Plans under consideration have not been developed sufficiently to offer you the promise of a farm at this time.

WHEN IT'S NOT CHISELING.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—So distinguished an authority on lexicography as Mr. Vizetely says that, since President Roosevelt has used it, "chiseling" must be passed out of the vernacular and take its appointed place in the dictionary as a word made authentic by good usage. Thus the NRA becomes the latest victim of involuntary parenthood with the President as the attending physician. The word "chiseling" therefore invites examination.

As we come to understand the denotations and connotations of words by contrasts and analogies, let us recall that last week the Associated Press reported that Mrs. Effie Martin of Fresno, Cal., surrendered $85,000 in gold coin and certificates to federal authorities shortly before she appeared before a United States commissioner to answer to a charge of hoarding. In return for the gold coin, which is the only real money, and the gold certificates, which are a kind of warehouse receipt, she was given $85,000 in federal reserve notes, which are a kind of promise to pay on demand in gold—such redemption being indefinitely suspended. These $85,000 in reserve notes, in terms of gold and in fact, are worth approximately $59,500. That is the amount of gold Mrs. Martin could get for them in the market if she could find the market.

This was not "chiseling." It was repudiation [the government failed in its promise], intimidation [Mrs. Martin was arrested], extortion [Mrs. Martin was threatened], duress [Mrs. Martin was facing loss of liberty], abuse of legal process and violation of a constitutional right [security in liberty and property], now apparently obsolete but which every government functionary had solemnly sworn to uphold. But it was not "chiseling," which is plainly something small, mincingly mean, petty and low down.

A Spaniard could undoubtedly project the word "chiseling" through his teeth so that it would have as vicious and profane a sonorousness as, say, "Hell 'n' Maria," but not an American. It's a pusillanimous interjection. It does not roll and reverberate. Compared to the polysyllabic ponderosity of repudiation, intimidation, extortion, it seems effeminate, puny, pallid, sissy. The NRA would not and could not engage in such petty pilfering as "chiseling" connotes.

THE OLD AND NEW DEAL.

Cleveland, Oct. 21.—While we grope for the sun, let it be kept in mind that the one substantial and certain new hold on actuality which the country has gained, which can be said also to possess actual proof of workableness and favorable result, is the Reconstruction Finance corporation idea in creation and first experiment the idea of Herbert Hoover.

As good sense and fairness gradually grip Hoover's versatile enemies—versatile by reason of quick changes of attack on him—they, too, will come to full comprehension and admission that his method of administration was imbued with deep love for the people and saved the nation from disorder and maybe a replica of the French reign of terror.

President Roosevelt, with considerable relief, discovers favorable responses to his pleas for patience and understanding. Hoover laid the salutary foundation therefor with the people and has already forgotten the sniping tactics of his foes.

Believing that there are many of your readers who are interested in what the Lizars have done and would write to them, I want to call your attention to the mistake in their address, which is "Bexley" and not Biloxi, Miss. IF VEBLEN COULD VISIT THE FAIR.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—The substance of the editorial entitled "Dr. Karl Marx Visits the World's Fair" deserves careful study in order to avoid more confused thought on the part of confused America.

The Marxian philosophy has as many different interpretations as there are interpreters.

Why not have had Thorstien Veblen visit the Fair? Veblen was acquainted with the whole fabric of industrial America. Veblen had first hand knowledge of the work of men like Dr. F. P. Taylor, the dean of efficiency men; Dr. Harrington Emmerson, Adam Smith, James Watt, Steinmetz, and the greatest practitioner of the "Taylor" system, Mr. Henry Ford. These are the scientific men of a scientific age. Not Marxians.

Veblen preceded Howard Scott, and Scott visited the Fair in the flesh.

LEGEND.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—Reference to the "dry humus" sent in from Wichita by Mr. Allen concerning the execution of the little pigs brings to mind the following story:

The kingdom was rapidly falling into debt, and the loyal subjects were tearing their hair in an effort to remedy the financial situation.

One of the advisers to the king approached him and said, "For purposes of economy, why not kill all the thoroughbred horses in the royal stables?"

To which the king replied, "Why not kill all the jackasses in the royal court first?"

I should have used the term mountain canary in preference to the word jackasses because I feel that a true westerner uses appropriate names for his personal pets.

MILK DUMPED ON HIGHWAYS IN WISCONSIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—As members of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk pool, who are experienced strikers, gave their support today to the plan of the National Farm Holiday association to withhold all farm produce from markets, numerous milk dumping escapades and associated violences were reported to capitol officials from many parts of the state.

Gov. A. G. Schmedeman repeated an expression of sympathy for farmers and announced he would not call out the National Guard to maintain order, but would depend upon local enforcement agencies. He again warned against violence.

Steals Milk Pool Thunder.

The calling of the strike by the holiday association stole the thunder of the milk pool, officials of which were preparing to announce a strike during the colder winter months, it was learned from an authoritative source.

Milk pool officials had decided winter is the appropriate season for a milk strike because cream could be frozen and held for later delivery to markets. Because of their own plans, pool officials hesitated to support the holiday association, it is said. Although the pool has not yet officially entered the strike, members already are active in it.

The first serious violence in Dane county occurred today at Marshall, where about 300 pickets stopped trucks bound for the Marshall condensary and spilled about 400 pounds of milk. According to witnesses there was no scuffle between truck drivers and strikers.

A band of about 50 pickets stopped several trucks on their way to the Lodi Creamery company and the Nestle's Milk Products company. They threatened to dump the milk, but did not.

Farm Youth Arrested.

Wausau, Wis., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—A farm youth was arrested here today in connection with the farm strike, but was released a few hours later following questioning by District Attorney O. L. Ringle. It was the first arrest made in connection with the present strike in central Wisconsin and is believed to be the first in the state.

Frank Brandenmuehl, 19, was brought to Wausau by Under Sheriff John A. Kuntz when he was caught throwing spike-studded boards in front of an officers' car on the highway near the city limits where pickets had formed a line to turn back farm produce en route to market. He was released on his promise to refrain from further picketing.

Wausau tonight was facing a severe shortage of milk, as every highway leading into the city was picketed today and indications are that only a small per cent of the normal milk supply would be brought to the city tomorrow. Two local dairies did not receive milk today.

Local supplies will be exhausted by Saturday, it was said. Present plans call for farmers to furnish 2,000 quarts daily for distribution by the city health department to children and invalids. Consumers will pay 5 or 6 cents a quart.

Troops to Keep Highways Open.

Glenwood, Ia., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Sheriff William De Moss today deputized 50 National Guardsmen, under authorization from Gov. Herring, to keep highways in this vicinity clear of picketeers during the farm holiday.

Rudolph C. Hopp, state representative and farmer, said Gov. Herring authorized use of as many of the 165 militiamen stationed here as needed.

FOUR MEN BEAT EX-PRESIDENT OF BROOKFIELD

James F. Mansfield, undertaker and former president of the village board of Brookfield, is in St. Anthony's hospital suffering from a severe beating administered by four men early Sunday.

Mansfield said he was attacked as he was approaching his home at 3745 Grand boulevard, Brookfield. He said the four men seized and slugged him before he could draw a pistol he carried. He added that the assailants had taken his diamond ring and a stickpin, valued together at $1,700. His left jaw was fractured by a blow from a pistol butt.

The Brookfield police reported that their investigation showed facts somewhat different. They learned, they said, that Mansfield had drawn his pistol in the Forest inn at Brookfield and that this angered several patrons, who followed him later to the Tower inn in Lyons, of which Mansfield is part owner. He was beaten there, the police asserted.

FARMERS SAY U. S. CORN LOAN PLAN IS INADEQUATE

Illinois Group Meets in Peoria Today.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The government's proposal to lend farmers federal funds up to 60 cents a bushel for their corn at Chicago if stored under state warehousing regulations was denounced yesterday by spokesmen for farm organizations of the middle west.

The lending plan, as announced by George N. Peek, federal farm administrator, in Washington on Wednesday was characterized by Milo Reno, militant farm holiday association head, as a "half way measure" that farmers would not be content to accept. It also brought opposition from the Illinois Agricultural association, which has called a massmeeting of its membership at Peoria today. Congressman Henry T. Rainey is to speak at the meeting.

Call Loan Value Insufficient.

The Illinois farmers are expected to declare that the loan value for corn is insufficient, and that instead of being limited to 50 cents a bushel in Chicago the maximum should be 50 cents at the farm.

A considerable element of downstate farmers planning to attend the Peoria meeting is insisting that the limit must be 70 cents a bushel at the farm to assure farmers of meeting their obligations this winter. They maintain that the government's announced lending plans will mean a price of only 35 to 40 cents a bushel for corn in the country, which is approximately the current grain market quotation for corn at the farm.

Reno, the farm holiday leader, came to Chicago yesterday from his headquarters in Des Moines. He made a vehement protest against the efforts being made by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to give farmers better prices and declared that anything short of "cost of production" for farm products will not satisfy the agrarian population. A moratorium on farm evictions is also part of the demands of the farmers who have joined the holiday and strike efforts this week, he said.

Oppose Food Destruction.

"In order to borrow money on corn from the government," Reno pointed out, "the farmer must agree to the corn-hog reduction program of the administration. We are opposed to the destruction of foodstuffs while millions are going hungry or with insufficient food."

Reno declared that placing the farmer more in debt would not alleviate serious conditions in the country. Not one farmer in 50, he maintained, is in position to take advantage of federal farm loans.

Farmers from many parts of the country are expected to attend a national conference in Chicago Nov. 15 to 18, where the farmers' plight is to be discussed. The conference, called by Lem Harris, secretary of the Farmers' National Committee of Action, is to be held in the People's auditorium, 2457 West Chicago avenue, with plans to organize laboring classes and farmers for mutual support. A similar gathering was held in Washington last December.

The body of Mrs. Dora M. Clowes, 62 years old, was found lying beside the Burlington railroad tracks a half block from her home at 17 North Dover place, La Grange, early yesterday. She apparently had been killed by a train. Police were told that Mrs. Clowes had been despondent since the death of her husband three years ago.

29 INDEPENDENTS ADMIT VIOLATING MILK CODE HERE

Demand "Recognition" in Chicago AAA Area.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Standing solely on the plea for recognition of their "rights" in the federal milk code for Chicago, 29 of the city's independent milk dealers today frankly admitted they were underselling prices prescribed for the Chicago milk shed by the farm adjustment administration.

Of 115 independent distributors cited by the government for alleged violations of the milk pact, only 29 were represented at the "consolidated hearing" of the federal charges today. The 86 absentees, it was stated, were unable to finance a trip to Washington.

Attorney Joseph Green of Chicago appeared in behalf of the 29 dealers, members of the Independent Milk Distributors association of Northern Illinois. Only three of his clients were with him at the hearing—Norman R. Dietz, president of the association; Col. C. C. Miner, manager of the Thompson Dairy Products company of Woodstock, Ill., and Richard Ott, president of the Village Dairy Products company, Inc., Broadview, Ill.

Geyer Doubts "Strike" Here.

While the independents' "trial" was proceeding, Don N. Geyer, secretary of the Chicago Pure Milk association, declared that although milk producers in the Chicago area are becoming increasingly restless at the delay in enforcement of the milk code, he did not believe dairy farmers in the Chicago milk shed would join the Wisconsin milk pool in cooperating with a midwestern farm holiday strike.

"I am sure they will act independently of any outside movement, although their patience is exhausted, and I would not be surprised to see them refuse to deliver milk most any day," Geyer said.

"Price cutters in the Chicago area have caused a prolonged delay and have actually prevented any advance in price in the Chicago shed. In spite of efforts of the government, chiseling continues openly. No one can predict the developments of the next few days."

Peek Finds It Puzzling.

Farm Administrator George N. Peek asserted that the milk problem is the most difficult yet encountered by the farm adjustment administration.

"We will never get the answer," he said, "until we have public hearings in each individual milk shed to give the people a chance to express themselves."

Mr. Peek said no date had been set for the projected Chicago investigation, but that it would be "as soon as possible." There was no indication that the administrator will delay enforcement of the Chicago code or that he will hold up approval of the proposed code amendment raising milk prices to 11 cents a quart.

Demand More Time.

At the "consolidated hearing" Attorney Green asked that the proceedings be adjourned to Chicago, "where all the dealers involved" could answer the government. Only twenty-four hours' notice of today's "trial" was given the independents, he said.

"The respondents were ordered to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked in mid-September," replied John L. Tod, government counsel. "Respondent should have been preparing his case from that time on."

John H. Lewis, chairman of the AAA legal staff, who is presiding, denied Green's motion to transfer the hearing to Chicago.

The defense presented by Attorney Green today contrasted with the stubborn denial of government charges made at the defense of three larger independent milk distributors last week. Green readily admitted his clients have been selling milk below the code price. Otherwise, he averred, they would have had to go out of business.

Cites Three Grievances.

"At present," he said, "we do not deny that we have failed to comply with many provisions of the license. We are resting on our plea for a modification of the marketing agreement. Our entire case rests on the unreasonableness of three features of the license.

"First, it fails to provide a differential on the sale of cash and carry and delivered milk. Second, it requires all stands in or out of Chicago to conform to Chicago health standards. Third, it requires that farmers outside the Pure Milk association pay the same fee to the milk foundation as that required of members of the association."

Mr. Green said his clients were willing to conform to the health standards of Chicago if accorded Chicago health inspection, which, he charged, had been denied. Also that the independents do not object to paying a fee similar to that paid by members of the Pure Milk association if given a voice in selecting a depository for the fee. The milk foundation, he said, uses the fees for the betterment of others than the independents.

The independents, according to Green, are willing to abide by the letter of the milk code if Secretary Wallace will grant their requests for modification.

Deitz Called to Stand.

Seeking to establish a difference in the cost of delivering milk by wagon route and passing it across the counter, Green placed Mr. Deitz on the stand. The latter declared the cost of wagon distribution is from 3.6 to 3.7 cents a quart.

Under questions by the government counsel, it was indicated that Deitz spoke only from a casual knowledge of the milk situation and "not based on investigations into the cost of distribution."

MAYOR KELLY AND BUNDESEN LEAVE FOR WASHINGTON

Mayor Kelly and Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, left for Washington yesterday to confer with administration officials on the proposals to increase milk prices in the Chicago area. The mayor was accompanied by Mrs. Kelly.

Dr. Bundesen was invited to discuss the Chicago milk situation by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Mayor Kelly said he would aid Dr. Bundesen as well as transact other city business. The mayor declared he wanted to "get the facts about the whole milk situation" and that he would demand that public hearings on the milk code be held here immediately.

HINT OF BROKEN PLEDGE OF STATE HOLDS UP TRIAL

Promise to Bank Killing Defendant Told.

A defense intimation that the state had failed to keep a promise of leniency for Carl Grundhoefer, alleged slayer of Harry Mueller, cashier of the First National bank of Niles Center, halted the murder trial for a time yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge William V. Brothers. Co-defendants with Grundhoefer are John Scheck, under sentence of death for the courtroom murder of Policeman John G. Sevick, and Frank Keglovitz.

The unusual situation, in which Assistant State's Attorneys Mal Coghlan and Emmett Moynihan were cast in the rôle of witnesses arose after the state had rested its case against the three gunmen.

Prosecutor Moynihan, who obtained confessions [later repudiated] from the three defendants on the night of their arrest, was called to the witness stand by Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach. The prosecutor related a conversation with Grundhoefer the day after the confession in which the defendant asked what the state "would do for him since he confessed."

The Prosecutor's Story.

"If you plead guilty and testify for the state I will call that fact to the court's attention," Prosecutor Moynihan said he told Grundhoefer.

"Did you make him any promise?" Attorney Bachrach asked.

"I believe I told him that I would recommend consideration," the prosecutor answered.

After some further questioning Prosecutor Moynihan was excused and Assistant State's Attorney Coghlan called to the witness stand. Attorney Emmett Byrne, representing Scheck, objected to the first question put to Prosecutor Coghlan, concerning conversations with Grundhoefer and his testimony in the murder trial of Scheck. The judge sustained the objection and the state and defense attorneys crowded around the bench, apparently at a loss as to the next move.

Judge Brothers called a recess, after which he and the attorneys adjourned to chambers. After some discussion there Attorney Byrne agreed to withdraw his objection and the hearing before the jury was resumed.

Prosecutor Coghlan took the stand.

Questioned About "Promise."

"Isn't it a fact that Grundhoefer said that Moynihan and Capt. Gilbert promised him consideration?" Attorney Byrne asked.

"It is true, but I believe the phrase he used was that 'He was to be taken care of,'" Coghlan answered.

Q.—Did you tell Grundhoefer that if promises had been made by any one in authority you would see they were lived up to? A.—I talked to him along similar lines.

Prosecutor Coghlan denied emphatically that 14 years had been considered as the proper sentence for Grundhoefer, and the questioning was taken up by Attorney Bachrach.

Q.—Did you intend to ask the death penalty for Grundhoefer? A.—I did not. I expected a full measure of help from him.

Q.—And you knew at that time that he was the alleged actual killer? A.—I did.

State's Witness Balks.

The state suffered a setback in the murder trial of James Ryan, alleged Touhy gangster, when the state's only witness refused to identify Ryan as a killer.

Ryan is charged with shooting to death John Rinella, owner of a roadhouse in Higgins road near Des Plaines, because he refused to buy beer from the Touhy gang. Wesley Maitland, 60 years old, a janitor in the roadhouse, took the witness stand, shifted about nervously, and then said that he could not identify Ryan.

The prosecution said that he had positively identified the defendant on a previous occasion. Judge James F. Fardy rejected a defense motion for a directed verdict and the case was continued until today.

Sentences imposed yesterday brought to 484 the number of criminals sentenced since the beginning of the Criminal court's war on crime. Among those sentenced are:

ALBERT WARD, 35 years old, colored, sentenced by Judge Harry B. Miller to serve 1 to 20 years for indecent liberties with an 11 year old colored girl.

MRS. MARY EWING, 28 years old, colored, sentenced to 14 years by Judge Walter P. Steffen for the murder of her husband, Garland.

CHESTER SEVICK, 18 years old, sentenced by Judge Harry B. Miller to 1 to 20 years for the theft of the automobile of J. A. Wilson of Oak Park.

EDWARD FLYNN, 58 years old, sentenced by Judge Michael Feinberg to 1 year to life for burglary of the room of Edward Pierce in Bentmere hotel.

HARRY GROMPIN, 31 years old, sentenced by Judge Feinberg to serve three consecutive sentences of 5 years each for rape of three girls 12 to 14 years old.

SAM MUSCIO, 17 years old, and HARRY GIOL, 18 years old, sentenced by Judge Feinberg to 1 to 20 years each for automobile larceny.

INDIANA WARRANTS EXPECTED AT PEORIA FOR 7 BANK SUSPECTS

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Warrants are expected tomorrow for seven persons held here as suspects in the robbery last Tuesday of the Western State bank at South Bend Ind. Chief of Police John B. Kuespert of that city telephoned today from Peoria, where he is active in the questioning of the prisoners. He asked that seven warrants, charging bank robbery, be sent here to him.

Those for whom warrants are being obtained are: Mrs. John Buetnas of South Bend; Samuel Harris, St Louis, Mo.; Joseph Alexander, Pana, Ill.; Louis Badgett, Galesburg, Ill. Howard McDonald, St. Louis, and Donald Potter, Champaign, Ill.

In addition to them, some of whom are wanted for Illinois bank robberies the police are holding Floyd Logue, 40, Shelbyville, and Gladys Chow, Pana.

Awaiting grand jury action are Newton Cain, Pana; Dominick Jacks, Niagara Falls, and Hedley Casady of Kewanee. Casady was the first to be arrested in the roundup. He admitted participation in bank holdups at Laura, Modesto, and Cullom, and implicated others.

FIND EXECUTIVE OF ELECTRIC CO. WITH THROAT CUT

Suicide of Oak Parker Puzzles Police.

The body of John H. Kasley, 53 years old, an executive of the Western Electric company, who disappeared Wednesday morning, was found yesterday in a clump of bushes near Ridge road between State street and Cottage Grove avenue in Thornton township. He apparently had committed suicide by slashing his throat and face with a knife. Clasped in his right hand was the four inch knife blade with which he had inflicted several wounds.

The county highway police were puzzled as to the motive for the suicide. Kasley's widow had not been questioned late yesterday but friends quoted her as saying, "It is as much a mystery to us as it is to the police." The Kasley home is at 179 Linden avenue, Oak Park.

No Serious Business Worries.

Business associates of Kasley, who was superintendent of inspection at the Hawthorne works of the Western Electric company in Cicero, said that he had no serious business worries and that they knew of no private troubles that might have worried him.

The search that resulted in the finding of the body was started after county highway police had found Kasley's car in the forest preserve, about a half mile from the scene of the suicide.

Kasley was last seen alive by F. A. MacNutt, manager of the Western Electric Queensboro plant in New York City. The two had driven from the Oak Park Arms hotel, where MacNutt was staying, to the Hawthorne works, where both were to attend a conference. MacNutt said yesterday that Kasley was silent during the ride and spoke but once as he halted the car in front of the plant.

Expects Kasley to Follow.

As MacNutt got out of the car Kasley said: "Well, good-by," according to MacNutt. The latter said that he thought nothing of the remark at the time and entered the building expecting Kasley to follow after he had turned his car over to a garage man.

When Kasley did not appear at the conference an investigation revealed that he had not entered the plant and that his car was missing from its usual parking place. Kasley had worked for the Western Electric company for 30 years.

JAIL MAXIE EISEN AGAIN ON CHARGE OF INTIMIDATION

Maxie Eisen, fish market racketeer and public enemy, was in jail again yesterday. He was arrested on a charge of intimidating a colored attendant in a parking lot at Des Plaines and Fulton streets where one of his agents formerly had a fish market. The attendant, Fred Stone, told police Eisen told him to get out of the lot "at the cost of his life." Before his arrest yesterday Eisen had been at liberty on an appeal bond from a six months' sentence for vagrancy.

BILL IS DRAWN TO BAR NUDISTS FROM ILLINOIS

A bill to bar nudists in the state of Illinois has been drawn by the regular Democratic organization of Forest Park for presentation at the next session of the legislature. It proposes an amendment of the state law on disorderly conduct under which nudists would be subject to a maximum fine of $200 or a maximum jail term of six months.

HIT THAT COLD

WHERE IT LIVES—

in the System!

Don't fool yourself about a cold! It's nothing to be taken lightly nor treated lightly. A cold is an internal infection that will quickly spread within the system unless promptly checked. The wise thing to take for a cold is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.

First of all, it is distinctively a cold remedy and not a "cure-all." Secondly, it is an internal treatment. Thirdly, it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling, and tones and fortifies the entire system. That's the treatment a cold requires and anything less is taking chances. All druggists sell Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and reject a substitute.

PLAN 2 WEEKS' PAY IN CASH FOR TEACHERS

McCahey Sells $668,000 Worth of Warrants.

The school board will distribute two weeks' pay in cash to 18,000 teachers and other employés of the system within a week or ten days. This was announced last night by school trustees, who said that the board had all but $350,000 of the $1,971,000 needed for the pay roll. The $350,000 is to be obtained from the state common school fund.

James B. McCahey, president of the board, sold $668,000 worth of 1933 educational fund tax anticipation warrants yesterday to the Illinois Bell Telephone company. This amount, with other cash on hand from warrant sales and other sources, gives the assurance of the pay day, which will be for the last half of February.

Trustees Push Plans.

"The trustees are pushing all plans that give any promise of success in getting pay days for teachers," said Mr. McCahey. "Our recent warrant sales show that the public realizes this board of education is not going to swell its budgets and spend more than comes in."

The total pay roll for the last two weeks in February is $1,971,576. It will be distributed, according to the classification of employés, as follows:

Teachers	$1,599,801
Civil service	320,943
Building employés	35,381
Playground employés	16,351
Total	$1,971,567

The back pay rolls of the board for this year totaled $17,125,000 up to Sept. 1. With an estimated $2,000,000 owed to the teachers and other employés for September and $3,500,000 for October, the board will owe $22,665,000 by Nov. 1.

Distribute Tax Warrants.

The last pay day occurred Sept. 3, when pay checks totaling $2,078,000 were distributed for the first two weeks in January. A few days later the board began the distribution of 1933 warrants amounting to $4,049,775 for the last half of January and the first half of February.

All salary obligations for 1932 were cleaned up on May 18, when Mayor Kelly concluded successfully a series of conferences with loop bankers and obtained $12,467,629 in cash for the teachers.

BEG YOUR PARDON

A facetious paragraph in the Woman's Features section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Oct. 22, under the heading of Sauce for the Goose, by D—D—, told of a supposed incident during an insurance men's convention. According to the paragraph, after an evening at the Fair a number of celebrants returned to their hotel and one man burst into another's room. The paragraph identified the intruder as the governor of Indiana. Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana was not in Chicago at the time of the alleged incident. THE TRIBUNE regrets the use of his name in connection with the story.

PLASTERERS AND LATHERS VOTE TO CALL OFF STRIKE

More than 200 plasterers and lathers who have been on strike since Oct. 1 were expected to return to work today following an agreement yesterday between their unions and employers that the strike be called off at once and their differences be submitted to a trio of mediators for arbitration.

The mediation board will be composed of the presidents of the Contracting Plasterers' International association, an employers' organization, and the lathers and plasters' international union. They will convene in about a week.

The main points at issue are whether the present scale of $12 for an eight hour day is to be paid for a shorter working day and also which faction, workers or employers, is to have control of foremen. The unions want foremen to have the right to hire and discharge employés and for their organizations to have complete control over them.

Gas Heat puts a stop to this drudgery for thousands

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas... we will install it at our expense and remove it at our expense, if you don't like it.

RAW FOOD AND GAS

YOU wouldn't eat raw food. Your steak, potatoes, coffee all have to be cooked. Yet the gas heat that makes your meals palatable and eatable costs only a fraction of the price of the raw food.

While food has been going up the price of the cooking has constantly gone down during the past ten years.

And in addition, gas water heating and refrigeration are the common thing in thousands of homes.

Now gas heat will warm thousands of homes without trouble or bother, dirt or nuisance.

For 83 years there has been continuous, 24-hour-a-day gas service to Chicago—an enviable record of service of which the thousands of stockholders and employes can be rightfully proud.

The greatest of World's Fairs ends November 12. Be sure to see it.

SHOVELING coal and ashes is a dirty, messy job. Plain drudgery, week in, week out, all winter long. And so unnecessary in the twentieth century. Automatic gas heat banishes all furnace slavery. It's just as simple as turning on an electric light. Be modern. Install gas heat in your home now. Then you can fire your furnace from your easy chair.

Gas heat ends days and nights of back-breaking coal shoveling . . . dirty hours of hauling ashes . . . the nuisance of chopping kindling . . . the anxiety of watching fires, setting dampers. Your home is kept spotlessly clean—free forever from dust, grime and soot. Just set the thermostat for the temperature you want and you'll have it—even, correct day and night. Gas heat brings new comfort, new convenience, better health through even heat for the entire family.

Every home can afford it

Now at new low cost, every home—even the most modest, can afford to heat with gas. Cost of gas heat is one-half of what it was in the 1930-31 heating season. But we don't ask you to purchase any equipment to install gas heat. Just tell us that you want it and we'll put it in at our expense. During the nine heating months of the first year you pay only $3.00 a month rental for the equipment in the average home. This charge will be included with your gas bill. You pay nothing during the summer months.

If at any time during the first year you decide that you don't want gas heat you order it out. And out it comes. We replace your former equipment in good workmanlike order. If you decide that you can't do without the comfort of gas heat in your home, the rental you paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

APPEALS BOARD MOVES TO FORCE ASSESSMENT CUT

Assessor Balks, Relying on High Court Opinion.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $292,836, making a total of $81,422,352 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Oct. 26	$ 30,904	$ 49,616
Uncollected ...	16,837,964	44,858,415
	1930.	1931.
Oct. 26.....	$ 68,817	$ 153,409

Efforts to force County Assessor J. L. Jacobs to apply a 15 per cent reduction to the 1931 assessed valuations of the 430,000 homes and two and three flat buildings in Cook county were made anew yesterday by the board of tax appeals. In a letter signed by Fred W. Brummel and George F. Nixon, the members of the board, the assessor was asked to indorse certificates of error for each of the properties. The certificates of error could then be presented by the property owners to County Judge Jarecki for his decision on the reduction.

Assessor Jacobs declared that he would not endorse the certificates. He said he relied on the opinion of the Illinois Supreme court, handed down last Saturday, which ordered the board of appeals to expunge its order of March 22, directing the assessor to reduce the valuations by 15 per cent. The Supreme court did not rule on the merits of the proposed reduction, but held the order void because it requested a blanket reduction on the basis of an individual complaint.

Will File a Test Suit.

After the assessor's position was made known Henry G. Zander Jr., president of the Chicago Real Estate board, announced that he would file a test suit before Judge Jarecki on Nov. 13 on a certificate of error to force the reductions on the properties. Although the collection of 1931 real estate taxes may be slightly delayed because of the new action, it was believed that Judge Jarecki will give the matter an early hearing and that the collections will be accelerated immediately afterwards.

Of the 430,000 property owners involved only 54,000 had filed complaints with the board of appeals. The other 376,000 did not file because they were informed by the board of appeals that the blanket reduction would apply to them. The reduction order was sustained by the state Supreme court on June 7, but was voided last Saturday with three new judges sitting in the court.

Gives Opinion on Reductions.

The legality of individual reductions as opposed to the blanket reduction order was stated in an opinion given to the appeal board yesterday by State's Attorney Courtney through his tax expert, Attorney Hayden N. Bell. The opinion said:

"In our opinion it is the legal duty of the assessor to enter these 54,000 changes unless and until a court of competent jurisdiction decides otherwise. In giving this advice we have in mind that these 54,000 changes were made on complaints and within the formal jurisdiction of the board. To defeat this jurisdiction it is not enough to show it was erroneously exercised, but a showing must be made that no true grounds for individual complaints existed and that false grounds were fraudulently feigned by the board for the purpose of usurping jurisdiction.

"In our opinion, in the case of the 54,000 changes, such a showing could hardly be expected to be made. The pendency of the void order [of 15 per cent reduction] in the board of appeals during the time for filing complaints would be a sufficient reason under the decisions for not applying the rule requiring exhaustion of remedy before the board as a condition for the jurisdiction of the court. In our opinion, if relief is given to any one, it should be given to all in the like situation."

To Cover All Cases.

Mr. Zander and H. H. Haylett, business manager of the Chicago Real Estate board, declared that the filing of a test suit in the County court should suffice for all of the 430,000 tax payers. The suit cannot be filed before Nov. 13 because Judge Jarecki does not take jurisdiction on 1931 delinquent tax properties until that day.

Judge Jarecki takes jurisdiction when County Treasurer McDonough files petitions for judgments of sale against the properties. The treasurer has indicated that the penalty date for the second installment of 1931 taxes is Nov. 20, thirty days after the Supreme court ruling.

Cowboy, Thrown by Steer at Rodeo, Dies of Injuries

No More Piles

You Can End Your Awful Misery Quick Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your Piles will go only when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID, with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

Ickes' Attitude on U. S. Loan Mystifies Sanitary Trustees

Mystified but unawed by the avowed opposition of Public Works Administrator Ickes, the sanitary board pushed forward yesterday on the project of Trustee Howard W. Elmore for sale of the main drainage canal and the Sag channel to the federal government to procure funds for construction of the sewage treatment works ordered by the United States Supreme court.

On motion of Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the board's finance committee, the trustees unanimously approved an order to negotiate for an impartial appraisal of the canal by engineers and for introduction of necessary legislation, both at Washington and Springfield, for carrying out the sale. Trustee Elmore's proposal is to ask congress to authorize the purchase by special enactment at the forthcoming January session.

Ickes' Attitude Amazes Board.

While refraining from open criticism of Administrator Ickes, the trustees privately expressed amazement at his attitude. They were at loss to understand why he should project his views of the matter at all, since the sale of the canal is a proposition for consideration by congress alone and has nothing to do with the 3 billion, 300 million dollar public works fund which he administers.

The resentment of the trustees was curbed to some extent by the knowledge that the PWA has not yet finally authorized the initial $8,000,000 grant out of a $120,000,000 loan sought by the trustees for building the sewage works. Negotiations for the loan have apparently reached an impasse, Mr. Ickes insisting on government control of the district with power to levy further taxes or water rentals to pay off the loan, while the trustees are insisting that the community can carry no further tax burden.

Insinuations that the trustees were opposing the Ickes plan because of a desire to retain full control of the sewage works contracts were denied by Mr. Woodhull. He also commented on Mr. Ickes' claim that certain preferred interests, notably the packers and power companies, were receiving too much consideration from the district now.

Problem of Tax Burden.

"Mr. Ickes is represented as saying that the plan for sewage works construction under federal supervision would mean no heavier taxes for the average citizen, providing the big water users at the stock yards were made to pay their just share," Mr. Woodhull observed. "The district has been attempting to force the packers to assume their share since 1928.

"An order was entered that year empowering our engineers to go into the packing plants, determine the amount of sewage the plants were discharging, and assess the packers on that basis. The companies immediately went into court and procured an injunction preventing the district from carrying out the order. The case has been dragging since, but not for lack of diligence on our part.

"As for the district's reciprocal contract with the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, I doubt whether any trustee would object to its termination, if it can be done legally and feasibly. Under that contract the company now gets about $700,000 a year from the district. Mr. Ickes' objection seems to lie in the fact that the district is buying power from the utility company while, at the same time, it sells power to the city and the parks.

Doubts Any Saving.

"I recently sat down and tried to figure whether the district could save anything by terminating contracts with both the utility company on one hand and the city and parks on the other. From my calculations, it appeared doubtful that anything could be saved."

On motion of Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, the assembly at Springfield yesterday passed a resolution calling upon Secretary Ickes for advice as to what legislation he deems necessary for granting a sanitary district loan. Representative Edwin B. Bederman, Chicago, presented another resolution asking appointment of a committee to investigate the district pay roll. It was apparently inspired by the discovery that United States Senator Dietrich's law firm and that of Lieut. Gov. Donovan have been retained by the district in lawsuits.

In a long distance telephone call to Washington, Thomas J. Bowler, president of the district, was told by Lloyd Landau, chief legal counsel for the PWA, that the contract for the $8,000,000 loan was almost completed. Attorney Landau said that he expected to bring the contract to Chicago Monday or Tuesday and to begin work immediately on the legislation required for the larger loan.

I. C. C. WILL RULE ON PLEA FOR 5C TRACTION FARE

Promises Revaluation Decision in 10 Days.

The Illinois commerce commission took under advisement yesterday the motion of counsel representing the Chicago-Cook County Car-Riders' association for an inquiry into the values of the surface and elevated companies' properties, a revaluation of which, it was asserted, would show justification for 5 cent fares. The lower fare, it was contended, would greatly increase the number of riders and therefore the revenues of the companies. A petition for the inquiry and lower fares had been filed recently by the car-riders' group.

At the conclusion of a two hour hearing, participated in by traction company attorneys and spokesmen for a number of citizens' groups, Chairman Benjamin F. Lindheimer of the commerce commission announced that a ruling would be given within 10 days as to whether the commission has the right to order a revaluation inquiry.

In Federal Receivership.

The Chicago Surface lines and the Chicago Rapid Transit company are in federal receivership. Thaddeus R. Diedul, counsel for the United Home Owners of Illinois, which was allowed the right to intervene yesterday, conceded at the hearing that the commission has not the power to order reduced fares because of federal injunctions protecting the present rates.

Attorneys for the transit companies outlined the financial affairs of the traction systems and held that lower fares would be confiscatory. They warned that the opening of a valuation inquiry at this time might jeopardize, and perhaps nullify, the steps being taken to merge the two systems.

"If this proceeding is carried on in earnest, said Attorney Harry J. Dunbaugh, counsel for the Rapid Transit, "the city unification ordinance, the deadline for which is Jan. 31, 1934, cannot be accepted.

Assails Car-Riders' Group.

Attorney Harry J. Weber, counsel for the street car company, referred to the car-riders' group as a "paper organization that is usually used as a front by some cheap politician to further his own interest." He said that the return on the investment of his company was 5.21 per cent in 1931, 4.31 per cent in 1932, and 3.53 per cent in 1933. He declared that reducing the company valuation by one-third would mean a return of 5.1 per cent.

SEES PERMANENT U. S. PLANNING OF PUBLIC WORKS

Relief to Continue Years, Municipal Body Told.

The extensions of federal government into the fields of public works and relief will be in effect for a longer time than the public believes, speakers yesterday told delegates representing 30 state leagues of the American Municipal association. The organization opened a three day session at Judson court on the University of Chicago campus.

Henry Hunt, general counsel of the public works administration, came from Washington to give the delegates—many of them municipal officials—information to speed their applications for federal easy money. He answered many questions good humoredly, and then said: "I think you've been very mild, gentlemen."

Hunt gave it as his view that long-range planning of public works will be a permanent purpose of the government.

"The permanent planning board of the public works administration, headed by Frederick A. Delano, is the body which will work toward this end," he said.

Mr. Delano is an uncle of President Roosevelt.

Ready to Enter Competition.

As to competition of government owned projects, with existing public utilities, Mr. Hunt said the administration has adopted a "rough and ready rule not to hesitate to embark in competition to give the people reasonable rates."

The delegates were then permitted to fire questions at the general counsel. One of the first was about the rigidness of the Jan. 1 deadline date for the submission of applications for public works easy money.

"Just among us girls," Mr. Hunt confided, "I think it's to stimulate action rather than bar applications after that date."

Another delegate said he had heard "whispering" that some three or four hundreds of millions of dollars not allotted by Jan. 1 would be awarded to federal projects.

"The federal departments will make strong demands for that money," Mr. Hunt admitted. "Whether they can be resisted or not, I don't know."

Hopes for More Easy Money.

Mr. Hunt voiced the hope that more "easy money" would be supplied. The present total of three billions of dollars is not more than the deficiency of public works spending in the last few years, he said.

Frank Bane, director of the American Public Welfare association, explained the setup for administering the $500,000,000 emergency relief fund. He appended several definite statements as to the permanence of the federal government's place in the situation.

Mr. Bane held that regardless of "what we may expect from the NRA, the AAA, and other plans," a large part of the relief problem will continue as a present difficulty for the next 2, 3, 4, 5, or even 10 years."

Ousted Receiver Ordered by Judge to Pay $1,000

Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan yesterday ordered Anton Myers, 7313 Pingree avenue, who was removed as receiver for a building at 4020 South Michigan avenue, to pay $1,000 to the building's account. Evidence given before Judge Sullivan in several hearings showed that Myers was negligent in his management of the property.

PREPARE TO OPEN U. S. INQUIRY ON BANKRUPTCIES

Congressmen to Scan Bar Report.

Congressman Tom D. McKeon of Oklahoma, chairman of the subcommittee of the house judiciary committee, and a staff of investigators arrived in Chicago yesterday to prepare for the opening on Monday of the investigation of bankruptcies and equity receiverships. The hearings will be held in the United States courthouse. Fifty witnesses are to be called to the hearing and any one named in testimony will be given a chance to be heard.

The other members of the committee are to arrive on Monday for the executive session, at which plans will be made for procedure at the hearing, which is expected to last a week. They are Congressmen John C. Lehr of Michigan, Warren J. Duffey of Ohio, U. S. Guyer of Kansas, and William E. Hess of Ohio.

"We are not going after any individuals," Chairman McKeon said yesterday. "We are interested in the general conditions surrounding the receivership and bankruptcy situation and facts that will lead to remedial legislation."

Will Consider Bar Report.

It was indicated, however, that the report of the Chicago Bar association concerning the actions of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward in receivership cases would be considered at the hearing. The report stressed the frequent appointments by the judge of the law firm of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson, with which the judge's son, Harold C. Woodward, was associated, as counsel in receivership and bankruptcy cases.

Carl R. Latham, chairman of the bar association committee which made the report, said yesterday that the association had no intention of offering testimony in the matter.

It is believed that the congressional committee will make a decision on the matter at the executive session on Monday. The report of the bar association pointed out that fees allowed the firm of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson in ten receivership cases and four bankruptcy cases totaled $256,400, of which $178,150 was allowed by Judge Woodward, $60,750 by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, and $17,500 by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley.

The Bar's Recommendation.

The report of the bar association committee said in part:

"The committee recommends that in order to avoid any possibility of misconstruction by those uninformed as to the details of any particular judicial action, no judge, state or federal, should appoint as receiver, trustee or counsel, or otherwise, any close relative or any member of any firm with which such relative may be connected."

HOTEL TO SEEK U. S. ORDER TO CUT TAX PENALTIES

Assistant State's Attorney Hayden N. Bell, in charge of the tax collection department of the state's attorney's office, was served with notice yesterday that attorneys for the receiver of the Stevens hotel will appear before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today on a petition to cancel half of the hotel's tax penalties for the years 1929 and 1930. The attorneys were enabled to make the plea in the federal court because the hotel is in a federal receivership. According to County Treasurer McDonough, the hotel owes $866,868 in taxes for the two years, including penalties of $153,079.

Attorneys for the hotel recently informed County Judge Jarecki that they would make a large payment on the taxes in compliance with their promises of last summer, but they have delayed the payment.

New York, Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Robert Barbour, president of the Linen Thread company of Paterson, N. J., and a brother of United States Senator Warren Barbour of New Jersey, who was indicted by the grand jury of New York county yesterday for perjury before that body, gave himself up today. He was accompanied by his counsel when he called at the district attorney's office and surrendered to Acting Lieutenant William Sullivan.

The indictment is based on testimony given by Mr. Barbour before the grand jury on Sept. 22 against Rita Martini of the Hotel Marseilles and Fred D. Kaplan, her counsel, who had started suit against him for $100,000, alleging an assault with a whip on Miss Martini.

Mr. Barbour charged that the suit was part of a plot to extort money from him by threatening exposure of some things which might be damaging to his reputation.

In the course of his examination before the grand jury it became material whether he had given Miss Martini any money, in addition to $100 which he sent her by wire to Rome, N. Y. He swore that he had not sent or given her any money in addition to the $100 and denied other statements.

Barbour, who is 47 years old and weighs 300 pounds, was taken from the district attorney's office to police headquarters, where he was photographed and finger printed. Then he was arraigned in the Court of General Sessions before Judge Charles C. Nott.

He entered a plea of not guilty and got a week to prepare his defense. The district attorney asked that bail be fixed at $2,500, which was done. The bond was furnished by a bonding company.

ARTIST STILL IN JAIL; FAILS TO PAY ALIMONY

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—McClelland Barclay, artist and illustrator, was unsuccessful tonight in a court effort to obtain his release from jail after he had been arrested on a charge of being $35,000 in arrears in alimony payments to Nan Barclay.

The artist appeared in a special session of the Superior court tonight to ask that he be freed without posting the $35,000 bonds demanded for his release by counsel for Mrs. Barclay. Judge Fredrick M. Peasley, however, denied the request.

When You Buy ASPIRIN

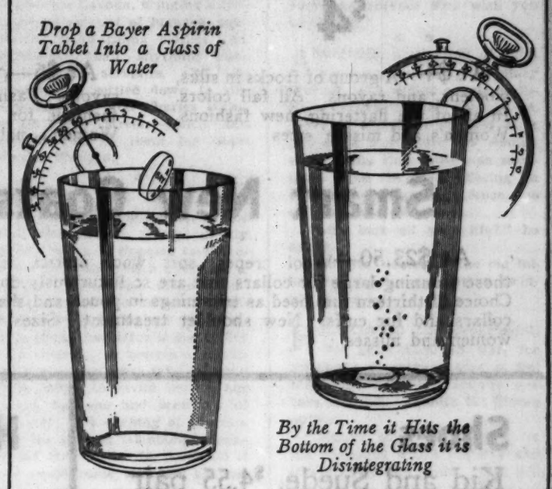
IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH

A Genuine BAYER Aspirin Tablet Starts To Disintegrate and Go To Work



What Happens in These Glasses Happens in Your Stomach

Quicker Relief Now From Pain

There is now a quicker way to ease pain. A way that often brings relief from even a severe headache or neuritis in a few minutes. Millions are now employing it—the fastest safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence, to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glasses, above, tell the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. This unique Bayer discovery means quick relief from pain for you and yours. Fewer lost hours from headache, neuralgia or the pains of rheumatism. And safe relief—for Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

When you buy, though, see that you get the GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN. The best way is never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER ASPIRIN."

Do jangled nerves make you say things you'll regret?

How many times in the course of a week do you snap at someone? If you check very carefully you will probably find that it happens more times than you realize.

For one of the dangers of jangled nerves is that the victim so seldom knows about his own condition. It not only hurts others—but himself as well.

The more alert you are, the more high-strung and alive, the greater danger there is of jangled nerves.

Get your full amount of sleep every night. Eat regularly and sensibly. Find time for recreation. And smoke Camels—for Camel's costlier tobaccos never get on your nerves.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand of cigarettes!

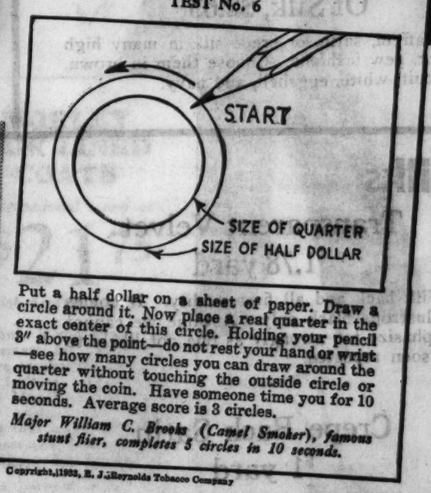
TEST No. 6



Put a half dollar on a sheet of paper. Draw a circle around it. Now place a real quarter in the exact center of this circle. Holding your pencil 3" above the point—do not rest your hand or wrist—see how many circles you can draw around the quarter without touching the outside circle or moving the coin. Have someone time you for 10 seconds. Average score is 3 circles.

Major William C. Brooks (Camel Smoker), famous stunt flier, completes 3 circles in 10 seconds.

Mrs. Whitman to Introduce New Husband

Former Betty Brown Will Return Home Today.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE hostess and her husband will share interest with guests for whom the party is being given at the luncheon Mrs. Allen Earl Whitman is giving today at the Casino for Miss Virginia Chapman and J. Brooks Fenno Jr., for it will be the first time the former Betty Brown's friends have seen her since her marriage in New York Monday and the first time most of them have met her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitman are arriving this morning from the east just in time to be welcomed by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown, rush up to the Browns' apartment on Lake View avenue to change their clothes, and be at the Casino by 1:30, the time the luncheon will start.

The party was planned originally just for members of the Chapman-Fenno wedding party, but after Miss Brown's sudden marriage her mother invited some of her daughter's other friends, so it will be a combination party for the bride and bridegroom and the bride and bridegroom-to-be.

Mrs. Brown has invited some of her and Mr. Brown's friends to meet their new son-in-law Sunday afternoon at a tea from 5 to 7 o'clock at their home.

The Chapman-Fenno bridal party and a few other young people will dine and dance tonight as the guests of Harold F. McCormick in his handsome old house on Rush street, which hasn't been the scene of a dancing party in many a year. The young bride-to-be is a cousin of Mr. McCormick's. This afternoon after they leave the Casino Miss Chapman and Mr. Fenno and the young people who will attend them tomorrow will go to Mrs. Freeman Hinckley's apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive for tea.

Two Debutantes Will Bow Tonight.

Carter H. Harrison Jr. and Ernest K. Hughes will remain in the background this evening when their attractive daughters, Miss Lucy Harrison and Miss Kean Hughes, make their bows to society at a dinner dance at the Casino. Receiving with the two buds in the reception hall of the smart little club will be only their two mothers, Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Hughes.

Although Miss Hughes' grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Burton, are really giving the party, they will be an absent host and hostess, for they returned to their home in New York several weeks ago. Miss Hughes' cousin, Miss Anne Whitehead, has come, however, from her home in Louisville especially for this evening's festivity. Arriving the middle of the week, she has been spending the last couple of days at the Hughes' home in Barrington.

The party is set for 8 o'clock and from then on until the wee small hours the gayety is certain to be pitched at a high key with two such popular debutantes as hostesses.

Miss Hughes will be in town at the Lake Shore Drive hotel until the beginning of the new year and in Barrington after that . . . to enjoy a whole winter of festivity with her sister debutantes. Miss Harrison is planning, however, to go abroad after the Christmas holidays with Mrs. George R. Carr. Mrs. Carr and Miss Harrison had planned to leave around Nov. 1, but Mrs. Carr has postponed her departure.

Give Tea Today for Mrs. Coleman.

At tea this afternoon Mrs. Francis Johnson is entertaining for Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, retiring president of the woman's board of the Passavant hospital. Just a week ago Mrs. Johnson, who has served for many years as the able vice president of the board, succeeded to the presidency as Mrs. Coleman became the honorary head of the group.

The party this afternoon is to be held in the apartment Mrs. Johnson has taken for the winter at 1430 Lake Shore drive. The guests will be the members of both the men's and women's boards of the hospital. Russell Tyson heads the men's board.

English Union Will Entertain Author.

All of those who have read "Gay Life" by Chicago's distinguished visitor, E. M. Delafield [in private life Mrs. Dashwood], will be just a step ahead of the rest of their friends this afternoon at the tea the English Speaking union is giving at the Tavern. Mrs. Dashwood, we understand,

Plan Benefit Dance at Century Club Luncheon

Dressed in smart new winter costumes Mrs. Rollin D. Weary (left) and Mrs. Harold Cudney attended the luncheon of the junior board of the Chicago Home for Convalescent Women and Children yesterday noon at the Century club. Both Mrs. Weary and Mrs. Cudney are working hard on the benefit dinner dance the board is to have the evening of Nov. 10 in the Joseph Urban room at the Congress hotel.

Modish Wool Hose Awaits Gridiron Fans

BY RHEA SEEGER.

You may not take your football games as feverishly as those who keep warm by frantic rooting and stomping, so understanding people have sent out some wool hosiery that will do wonders toward keeping the most controlled and chilly rooter warm and snug from the knees down.

Heretofore most wool hosiery has been thick, clumsy and bulky, but these new arrivals are as slim and as smart as anything in silk. Three attractively patterns are available . . . a chevron design, a flattering lace mesh and a new square design. . . . You can find them in tweed, tan, beige and ginger brown shades. They are perfect for sturdy walking brogues and can be used with glowing cozy results on the wandering extremities of the golfers who never stop chasing balls till the snow flies.

Then there are some tweed lisles, newly unpacked, with lace or embroidered clocks,

Some lisle and celanese mixtures are tremendously slim appearing on the foot and ankle and are considerably warmer than filmy silks. The very cold blooded gal will cheer wildly for the newest angora lisle, literally just what they are named—a thin, warm, cozy sock with just enough angora fuzz sprinkled over the surface to match the fashionable angora dresses that faithfully keep you warm.

Whigham-Young Nuptials to Be Held in N. Y. Today

New York, Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Miss Sybil Whigham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Whigham, whose marriage to Robert Young will take place tomorrow afternoon in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's church, will have Miss Jean Hollins for maid of honor. Earle S. Potter will be best man for Mr. Young. Among the Chicagoans invited to the wedding are Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn, Thomas Leiter, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow, and Mr. and Mrs. Prentice Porter.

The Chicago Cactus society will meet at the Garfield park conservatory on Sunday afternoon.

Sidney Blackmer, Actor, Undergoes Operation

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Sidney Blackmer, film actor and husband of Lenore Ulric, the actress, underwent a delicate operation in a hospital today. His surgeons said they believed the operation was made necessary by a football injury Blackmer suffered several years ago. Dr. Frank Walls Young said Blackmer's condition was satisfactory and that he would be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

Stock Returns to Orchestra; Honor Brahms

Celebrate Centennial of Composer's Birth.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mr. Stock was back on the conductor's stand of the Chicago Symphony orchestra last night, seeming rested and vigorous after his layoff because of illness last week, and quite in readiness to play a program to the memory of Johannes Brahms, who was born one hundred years ago last May 7.

An all Brahms program, for that matter a program exclusively of the works of any one composer, can easily be made wearisome to the ear. It takes a musician like Mr. Stock to keep it interesting as he did last night. He never flagged for an instant. As a matter of fact, when he had finished the symphony, the fourth, the audience voluntarily organized an ovation that could hardly have been heartier had Mr. Stock been a visiting conductor.

Three compositions were played, the symphony just mentioned, with the "Academic Festival" overture as a curtain raiser, and the piano concerto in D minor with Egon Petri as soloist in the second part. Mr. Petri, be it added, was quite a different pianist from what he had been Tuesday afternoon. Losing nothing of his authoritative manner, his playing was more alert, warmer, in almost every way more in touch with his auditors.

When one looks back at the joyous mood pervading the concert, it becomes increasingly difficult to realize that people used to be repelled, or thought they were, at Brahms' music. On one side one reads about its crabbedness; on another, about its lofty peaks, with an atmosphere too rarefied for ordinary humans. Perhaps they felt so because they did not have Mr. Stock to play it for them. About the worst you can say of it now is that his orchestration is sometimes too thick, but even that objection disappears by the time Mr. Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra get through with it.

Ruth Huebner was to have appeared on Miss Jessie B. Hall's Young American Artists series last spring, but for one reason or another her debut was postponed until last night at Curtiss hall.

She then disclosed a soprano voice of good quality and excellent training, with a range and power that put the aria, "Ritorna Vincitor" from "Aida," well within her capabilities, and with a knowledge of song literature that enabled her to make a good showing in the elder works of Scarlatti, Bach and Handel, the lieder of Franz and Schubert, and a group of American songs.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

IF, between 12 and 1 o'clock any day this week you saw a handsome coach-and-four being driven through Washington park, a pair of Dalmatians trotting underneath, it is the equipage of Mr. Harry Sifton of Toronto, here with his family, a party of guests, and nineteen jumpers for the horse show. Mr. Sifton is on the box each day when the coach is taken out, and the dogs are two of the four in his coaching outfit.

Coach-and-four Linguist—Wire—Hint.

Mr. Sifton, son of the late Sir Clifford Sifton of Ottawa, owns what are said to be the largest training stables in the country, at Toronto. Mrs. Sifton, "Molly" to her friends, rode her favorite mount in the show last night. They arrived in town late last week from Canada, bringing a tremendous amount of luggage, containing more riding clothes and equipment than anything else, four house servants, and six guests, and settled down in the apartment of Mrs. Charles Irvin, at 20 Cedar street, which she turned over to them for their stay in Chicago.

HEARING Mrs. James Miller, assistant commissioner to the Fair from Brazil, change swiftly from French to Spanish to Portuguese in talking with guests at a cocktail party the other afternoon, brought to mind an incident a week or so ago that further shows her astonishing ability as a linguist. A hostess at a buffet supper party had tried to reach Mrs. Miller to invite her to her party, but she had been out of the city. The evening of the supper the hostess telephoned again, found Mrs. Miller in, and said if she could come she (the hostess) would send a car for her. Mrs. Miller was not able to and the hostess told her that several guests would be very disappointed, including one at her elbow that moment, who was clamoring to be introduced—even over the telephone, if necessary. The telephonic introduction took place, and the guest, starting the conversation in English, slipped into French, then into German, then into Italian. Each time Mrs. Miller answered him in the tongue in which he had addressed her, making no comment on the change of languages. Then, as a final bit of humor, he addressed her in Hungarian. He had her there, but, without understanding what he had said, she made reply in Rumanian, which he did not understand. So honors were even when the conversation was concluded.

VARIETY reports that George S. Kaufman was watching a play, and after the first act ran to a telegraph office and wired the star:

ANOTHER illustration of rural humor is forwarded by Mary Stucker, who visited a famous Indiana beauty spot this autumn. A party of motorists stopped at a gift shop, and while the women went inside their husbands sauntered down the road. Seeing an old man working near a fence, one of them addressed him.

"Live here all your life?" he asked.

HOUSEHOLD hint department. We don't have to wait for somebody to manufacture a dial telephone with a vacuum cup base after all. Juanita W. Bierau writes:

"Simply paint the bottom of the telephone with a 'rug stay' and it will never slip again. This will not mar the piece of furniture on which the telephone sits, and it allows the instrument to be picked up easily, but it will not permit it to slip when dialing."

See how I pass everything right along to you.

Notable Fair Art Exhibition to Close Wednesday Night

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Only a few more days remain in which to enjoy A Century of Progress Fine Arts exhibition in the Chicago Art Institute. The exhibition closes at 10 o'clock next Wednesday night. Then the greatest collection of old masters which has ever been assembled in this country will be taken from the gallery walls and shipment to their owners will then be the order for the Renoirs, Rubenses, Cezannes, Titians, and all the other brilliant works which will keep the memory of the Fair green in years to come. Two hundred private owners and forty-two museums made the exhibit possible.

The color reproductions which THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE has run from time to time during the weeks of the Exposition have preserved many of the most distinguished of the pictures for us. This coming Sunday another page of color reproductions will increase our enthusiasm. The page at first glance will be rather startling. Its beauty becomes real only with familiarity. The "Bather" by Auguste Renoir will occupy the upper left hand corner. Renoir is known for the luminous quality of his paint. He was a brilliant colorist. His flower paintings and figure studies out of doors, as well as his gorgeous still life compositions glitter like so many jewels in the memories of those who see them only to admire.

John Singer Sargent is more famous for his portraits than for his nudes. Yet there is much that is graceful about the "Nude Study of an Egyptian Girl" which will be reproduced Sunday on THE TRIBUNE color page. The studio sketch, probably in the painter's mind it was little more, is from the Charles Deering collection and was lent to the exhibition by Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and Mrs. R. E. Danielson.

The third painting to complete the page is an exquisite bit of color from the talented brush of Cecelia Beaux, the only American woman painter to have ever won the Carnegie International first prize, a distinguished honor. The "After the Meeting" is a friendly moment when tea and conversation and a running piano accompaniment are the order of the day.

COOKERY SCHOOL OFFERS TREATS FOR STUDENTS

One Is Appearance of Vincent Lopez.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

By way of paraphrase, just for once —"The carnival's coming, hooray, hooray!" It's THE TRIBUNE'S third annual cookery carnival, so popular in two previous "terms" that school will be reopened again Nov. 7 for a three weeks' semester, complete with the "prexy" of other years, Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, culinary expert, whose courses are always elected by thousands in practically every state in the union.

Her faculty for this junior year of instruction in Chicago is certain to be the most popular any school ever signed. As a bellringer of sorts, the student body will have the thrill of hearing Vincent Lopez, for whom any introduction would be superfluous. Everybody knows the orchestra leader who has mesmerized millions with his baton, his aggregation of musicians, and his piano solos. Lopez has consented to officiate at the initial session, not actually wielding a school bell, but as the initial performer at the Trianon ballroom.

Other Popular Professors.

Other "professors" certain of their popularity as the fun gets under way and the easiest lessons any one ever learned progress include community song leaders widely known in Chicagoland, if not in the entire country. There will be, for instance, Edgar Nelson, D. A. Clippinger, George L. Tenney, Harry Walsh, Carl Craven, Noble Cain, Richard De Young, and Frank Bennett with his attractive wife, Catherine, at the piano.

There will be dancing stars and singing stars, popular announcers from W-G-N radio station, and TRIBUNE writers with signatures familiar to every reader of this newspaper. There will be a famous magician concocting cakes out of paper and pulling rabbits out of cakes, or similar antics. There will be humorous, colorful, and sensational features each of the three weeks.

John Pane-Gasser, opera singer who thrilled thousands with his program at a previous carnival, will sing again for the great audiences the cookery school has always drawn. Frieda Savini and Olga Kargau, both opera stars with well established reputations, are scheduled for appearances.

Stripe Will Sing.

One of those afternoons when Mrs. Chitwood has concluded a class period, devoted perhaps to the proper method of flipping an omelete to achieve that perfection of golden fluffiness that makes it melt in the diner's mouth, there will be introducted the spectacular young singer, Julian Stripe of Waukegan, who sang his way to the championship of Chicagoland in the Music Festival of last summer. It's worth going a long way to hear the little fellow with the big voice.

Still another treat in store this term will be the grocerettes. In uniforms of white satin such as no chef would dare to don in the most spotless kitchen, Lorraine Nevens of Evanston and Lois Grider of Wilmette will circulate through the classes, showing the students the contents of the generously packed baskets of groceries that will be distributed to the holders of lucky numbers.

Four South Side Classes.

Mrs. Chitwood is already in Chicago preparing for her forthcoming courses. The first week she will lecture from the stage of the Trianon ballroom at 62d street and Cottage Grove avenue for four consecutive afternoons, beginning Nov. 7. The doors will be thrown wide early in the day. Entertainment will start at 12:30 o'clock and the first "class period" at 1:30.

The west side sessions will start Nov. 14 for four consecutive afternoons at the Guyon's Paradise ballroom on Crawford, near Washington boulevard. On Nov. 21 north siders will get their innings at the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue, for another four days.

Each day of "school" will wind up with the distribution of the weighty baskets of foodstuffs to some lucky women holding the proper stubs of tickets. And at the "commencement day" exercises each week awards valued into hundreds of dollars will be made to adorn some housewife's kitchen long after the carnival is only a memory.

Marvels of Cookery.

Those who have been "students" in other years will not have to be told of the marvels of cookery Mrs. Chitwood demonstrates with such facility and success. She has made the art a profession and is always probing further into the cuisines peculiar to different nations and countries, while embellishing her American menus each season with further surprises. It is a revelation, to experienced and amateur cooks alike, to watch her hands darting among the ingredients for a masterpiece, which presently evolves magically into perfection before the eyes of less skillful cooks.

ON PROGRAM

VINCENT LOPEZ.

PHIL HARRIS.

FRIDA SAVINI.

The Tribune School of Cookery, which opens Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 7, at the Trianon ballroom, will present these principals on its south side program of entertainment. Vincent Lopez is now playing at the Chez Paree and Phil Harris at the College Inn, Hotel Sherman. Miss Frida Savini is a concert and operatic soprano. Maestro Lopez will be heard the opening day and Mr. Harris and Miss Savini on Wednesday, Nov. 8.

DELAYED MEALS CAN STILL HAVE TASTY GOODNESS

Creamed or Oven Cooked Dishes Keep Well.

BY MARY MEADE.

It's no fun waiting dinners for tardy members of the family, especially when the food keeps getting more and more unattractive as the moments crawl on. So, to save wear and tear on the nerves, when you have a hunch that hubby's going to miss a train or play a few more holes of golf than he planned, spirit up a chummy meal which may be served any time it's called for. Settle yourself in a comfortable chair with a good book and banish such items as late dinner worries.

Creamed dishes for the main course are a good bet, and oven cooked dinners usually keep better than top stove meals. Salads crisping in the refrigerator and ready-to-eat desserts may complete the setting.

For a first suggestion here's a casserole of meat and macaroni that's simply prepared and easily reheated:

CASSEROLE OF HAM AND MACARONI.

2 cups macaroni broken into 1 inch pieces
1 cup thin white sauce
¾ cup chopped cooked ham
1 tablespoon minced parsley
Salt and pepper to taste
Grated cheese

Drop the macaroni into boiling, salted water and cook until tender. Drain. Combine the macaroni, meat, and parsley and place in a buttered casserole. Pour over this the white sauce, sprinkle generously with grated cheese, and heat in the oven until the top is browned.

TUNA FISH A LA KING.

1 tablespoon butter
1 cup mushrooms
1 tablespoon green pepper, chopped
4 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon celery salt
2½ cups milk
2 cups tuna fish
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon pimiento, cut in small pieces

Melt the butter and add mushrooms and green pepper. Stir and cook for 5 minutes. Mix the flour and seasonings, and add to the first mixture. Cook 5 minutes. Add the milk slowly, and when the sauce is thickened add the tuna fish, parsley, and pimiento. Reheat and serve on toast or in nests of mashed potatoes.

Grilled dinners call for only last minute broiling.

MIXED GRILL WITH SALMON.

6 salmon fillets
4 large cooked sweet potatoes
4 large ripe tomatoes
Dash of salt and pepper
1 tablespoon flour
3 tablespoons fat
Paprika

Pre-heat the broiler oven 10 minutes. Meanwhile arrange on a greased broiler rack the salmon fillets, sweet potatoes which have been sliced crosswise, and the tomatoes which have been skinned and cut in halves. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and flour. Dot with butter and sprinkle with paprika. Broil until all are a rich brown and the fillets are tender. Serve with lemon slices.

Escalloped potatoes may be cooked with such meats as tenderloin, sausages, and chops. Their flavor is improved and they're also applicants for reheating.

PORK CHOPS WITH POTATOES.

6 medium sized potatoes
4 pork chops
2 cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook the pork chops in a little fat until slightly browned. Place a layer of sliced raw potatoes in a buttered casserole. Season with salt and pepper. Add the pork chops, seasoning, and top with another layer of potatoes. Cover with milk and bake for 1 hour in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.].

SURVEY REVEALS 244 VARIETIES OF CANNED FOODS

Canned foods now available to Americans number 244, according to a recent survey of the kinds of edibles to be found in canned form. This includes vegetables, fruits, meats, soups, fish and shellfish and specialties.

Housewives who wonder how the commercial canning methods affect the nutritive value are advised that the commercial processes result in about the same qualities as those found in home cooked foods.

LABOR COSTS AND TAXES BOOSTING PRICES OF FOOD

Find Farmers Benefiting Only a Little.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Increases of 10 to 18 per cent in retail food prices in Chicago stores in the last six months have been caused more by increased labor costs, the NRA, sales taxes, and federal processing taxes than by increased prices paid to farmers for their products, a survey this week discloses.

The increase in farm prices of representative foods has varied from 5 to 14 per cent, the survey shows, indicating that distribution costs have increased the margin (called "spread" by economists) between what the consumer pays and what farmers receive.

Cost of Meat Distribution.

A notable example of this was given in a meeting of meat packers in Chicago this week. F. E. Mollin, secretary of the American National Live Stock association, who has been conducting a study of meat prices over a period of years, said that one of the major causes of overproduction on farms and underconsumption in meats has been due to "almost prohibitive costs of distribution."

"Prior to 1920," he said, "the consumer paid an average of 179 per cent of the cost of live hogs for his pork products. From 1920 to 1930 this was increased to 232 per cent, and since 1930 the sky has been the limit.

"The 1921 price of live steers was only 3 per cent above the 1913 average, whereas wholesale beef prices were 25 per cent higher and the retail price of plate beef 16 per cent, sirloin steak 64 per cent, and rib roast 55 per cent above the 1913 average."

Consumers Demand Service.

The reply of the distributors of foodstuffs is that consumers today are demanding more services with their foods than ever before. Costs of transportation have mounted, wages are higher, and where a purchaser once took a large piece of meat at a low price today the demand is for a smaller piece, with frills and without fats, and other services, such as delivery and credit, have been added to the cost of each item.

The survey of other foods discloses a comparable situation to that of meats existing in cereals, fruits, and vegetables. Bread, pastries, and many other items. Officials of two local retail food concerns declare that taxes have been a principal item in the increased food costs, and that few retailers are able to show any considerable profits, even when retail prices have advanced in recent months.

Very few items in a typical range of food commodities selected by THE TRIBUNE for price comparisons are listed at lower prices this week than a week ago, or are even cheaper than a month ago. Potatoes, lard, grapefruit, oranges, and family flour are the only bargain foods noted in a list of thirty-two foods.

On the other hand, few foods have mounted appreciably in price in the last fortnight, fresh eggs, sugar, beefsteaks, and some cuts of pork being the exceptions. The price increase in each of these cases has been slight.

The new crop of California oranges is arriving now in larger quantities, so that most local grocers offer a larger sized orange, or one with more juice, at the same price charged for lesser quality heretofore.

BYRD TO TAKE 500 POUNDS OF HONEY ON TRIP

Honey producers are claiming a share in the outfitting of Admiral Richard Byrd's new south pole expedition. The New York State Honey Producers' association reminded the admiral that men called upon for hard physical work appreciate attention to the so-called "sweet tooth." Accordingly, 60 gallons or about 500 pounds of honey are being included in the ship stores. The honey was selected as one of the suitable cold weather foods because of its ability to keep in good condition in any climate.

GOBLIN SALAD FOR BEWITCHED GUESTS IS TREAT

BY DOROTHY MASTERS.

Ghosts may clutch at you with evil talons and shadowy witches may pluck at your coat sleeves, but, granting the haunting terror of all such weird apparitions, the chances are that most people won't be too frightened to eat when Halloween time comes around.

The pumpkin holiday is one that old and young look forward to with glee, and to neglect its recognition in the menus of the day is to rob it of much of its pleasure.

If there are to be parties then, of course, there'll be lots of scurring for unique decorations and refreshments, for of all the celebrative fun not a small share comes from eating orange and black dainties, wise owl cookies, pumpkin face sandwiches, or whatever the hostess' originality can produce.

Goblin Salad Recipe.

So if you've been searching around for something different to serve your bewitched guests maybe we can help you. Here's a simple yet delicious refreshment suggestion:

GOBLIN SALAD.
4 tablespoons granulated gelatin
1½ cups hot water
1¼ cups sugar
2 cups sweet cider
¼ cup lemon juice
2 cups raisins
Whipped or marshmallow cream

Dissolve the gelatin with the hot water and add the sugar, cider, and lemon juice. Allow to thicken a little, then stir in two cups of raisins which have been boiled for five minutes, drained, and chopped. Pour into flat, round molds, or into a pie or cake pan to a half-inch depth, and cut with a cookie cutter when ready to serve. Apply the marshmallow cream or the whipped cream with a pastry tube, making a simple pumpkin face.

Jack-o'-Lantern Salad.

Or a simpler cider relation is available in:

JACK-O'-LANTERN SALAD.
1 package lemon flavored gelatin
1 pint of cider
3 apples, diced
1 cup nut meats, broken

Dissolve the gelatin either by heating the cider or by adding one-half cup of hot water before the cider is poured in. When the mixture is practically cooled, add the nuts and apples and pour into a flat mold for cutting in circles. Apply the whipped cream or the marshmallow decoration to make a pumpkin face.

Then for the accompanying sandwiches cut the bread into circles with a cookie cutter and with a sharp knife cut out a pumpkin face in the top layer of each sandwich. Spread with a cream cheese tinted orange to give the effect of lighted pumpkin face when the stenciled top is put on.

Halved Peaches for Color.

Halved peaches will give color to the buffet or party table. They may be placed on the plate rounded side up and punctured with cloves to resemble jack-o'-lanterns.

Cookies, of course, offer countless possibilities in decoration and color. They can easily be cut into owl, pumpkin, or witch shapes and a little orange icing on a chocolate goodie is something your party will be remembered for.

EVEN ROMANS GREW TURNIPS OF GIANT SIZE

Pliny was a turnip fan and included this modern vegetable in some of the historical works concerning both conquests and more ordinary life in the time of the Roman empire. It seems the Romans were able to grow turnips large enough to weigh 40 pounds.

The Greeks are credited with finding the turnip growing wild and bringing it under cultivation. Even before the middle ages, centuries ago the vegetable was generally known. In England it was in great demand before the potato was discovered and imported. Germany found more varied uses for the turnip during the last war than had previously been exercised. The population ate turnips in soups, bread, and coffee, and in boiled, fried, and other forms.

Chicago markets provide turnips the year around.

HOW TO SERVE TENDER JUICY SEA FISH

Old fish have no taste. 40-Fathom Fish have that tender, juicy fresh-caught flavor of the sea because they fairly fly from the cool depths of the ocean to your dealer.

40-Fathom Fish are the cream of the catch—boned and free from heads, tails and all waste—the flaky, white tenderloin of the sea—ready for the fire without even washing—easy to cook as bacon.

Neither you nor your dealer can tell whether fish have the delicious fresh-caught flavor when you buy them. But you can make sure of getting that fresh-caught taste by asking for 40-Fathom Fish. See that you get them in the 40-Fathom wrapper with the name and picture of Old 40-Fathom on the wrapper. Fish not in this wrapper is not 40-Fathom Fish. Get 40-Fathom Fish in the 40-Fathom wrapper or don't buy them.

STEW OF BEANS, MADE THIS WAY, IS CALLED GOOD

Here Are All of the Details.

An appetizing, economical, and hearty meatless dinner is bean stew, in which both dried lima and navy beans are used.

1 cup of dried lima beans.
1 cup dried navy beans.
6 cups of cold water.
Small piece of bacon rind.
2 slices of bacon, cut in small pieces.
4 potatoes, cut in small pieces.
½ onion, cut in small pieces.
2 cups of tomatoes.
1 tablespoon of salt.
3 tablespoons of flour.

Wash the beans and soak them overnight in cold water. In the morning pour off the water and add six cups of fresh cold water. Cook the beans with the bacon rind for about one and one-half hours; then take out the bacon rind, add the potatoes, onions, tomatoes, and salt, and cook all for one-half hour longer. In a separate pan, cook the pieces of bacon until they are a light brown; add the flour, and brown it; add some of the liquid from the vegetable stew; stir this mixture until it is smooth, and then use the thickening to thicken the stew. One-half cup of macaroni broken in pieces or one-half cup of rice may be used instead of the potatoes.

This recipe was made and is used at the state college of home economics at Cornell university, which suggests that a complete and well balanced meal is furnished by this dish and an apple and raisin salad, whole wheat bread, and milk for the children.

CLOROX does the jobs you dread

EVEN when annoyances come in bunches—by the dozen—don't worry! All over the house, in laundry, bathroom and kitchen, Clorox does the jobs you dread—quickly, easily, efficiently. This modern bleach, stain-remover, deodorant and disinfectant, all in one, is a "whole cleaning crew" in itself.

Clorox makes snowy-white washes without boiling—stainless drainboards without scrubbing—spotless linoleum, tile and enamel—"sweet-smelling" refrigerators—shining sinks, basins and bathtubs—sanitary garbage cans—clean, odorless toilet bowls. The worst stains—berry, fruit, beverage, ink, blood, medicine, even scorched spots and mildew—vanish from white and fast-colored cottons and linens when Clorox is used.

Remember, Clorox both cleanses and disinfects in one operation—it has positive germ-killing power. Its absolute purity and germicidal power—controlled through its exclusive manufacturing process—make it invaluable for the many uses given on the label. And because Clorox is concentrated and a generous bottle costs so little, its use is true economy. . . At your grocer's

SEABURY ASSAILS McKEE FOR HIRING FIRED EMPLOYE

Asks if It Isn't Because He Feared Expose.

New York, Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Today's high bid for headline honors in New York City's head clicking municipal campaign was supplied by Samuel Seabury, fusion campaign chairman, in the form of a demand upon Joseph V. McKee, recovery party candidate for mayor that he tell why he reinstated Francis T. McEneny, chief examiner for the board of aldermen, after having once removed him from office.

"Will he not tell us," Mr. Seabury demanded, "whether it is not a fact that the real reason was that Mr. McEneny served upon him an affidavit in which he made serious charges against Mr. McKee?

"Is it not a fact that upon Mr. McEneny's agreement not to file the affidavit Mr. McKee reinstated him, thus furnishing the basis for Mr. McEneny's suit?"

Bar Affidavit at Inquiry.

McEneny was removed from office by Mr. McKee on the ground that he had concealed his own interest in the sale of a piece of real estate to the city. His reinstatement was Mr. McKee's last act as president of the board of aldermen.

The affidavit referred to by Mr. Seabury was, according to State Senator John J. McNaboe, the same document that Mr. McNaboe tried to introduce in evidence before the Hofstadter legislative committee while Mr. McKee was on the witness stand. McEneny now has pending a suit for back pay.

Mr. Seabury's interrogations were part of a statement in which he said Mr. McKee would be better engaged in explaining the McEneny incident than in trying to garble the campaign utterances of F. H. La Guardia, the fusion candidate for mayor.

The reference was to Mr. La Guardia's assertion earlier in the week that Mr. McKee and Edward J. Flynn, Bronx Democratic leader, must share the blame for the suicide of Louis H. Willard, Hofstadter investigation witness.

Fresh Attack by McKee.

"La Guardia is irresponsible and unworthy of trust," McKee insisted in his new statement. "Every one of his other utterances must be open to serious doubt, because he has shown, and his chief sponsor has admitted, his inability and his lack of truthfulness."

From the start of the campaign Tammany's one hope has been that Mr. McKee and Maj. La Guardia would become embroiled in a battle which would split the so-called independent vote, leaving Mayor O'Brien a chance of election.

Now See Chance for O'Brien.

It was definitely learned that Tammany calculations of "campaign drifts" showed hope for Mayor O'Brien. Intricate analysis of reports by district captains, it was said, gave Tammany a firm belief that Mayor O'Brien still has a chance to squeeze through. The latest appraisal of district reports, it has been learned, indicates Mayor O'Brien's election by a scant 50,000.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who was governor general of the Philippines during part of the Hoover régime at Washington, joined the fusion forces tonight at a meeting held at Arcadia hall. Col. Roosevelt was making his first appearance on the stump since the Hoover campaign in 1928.

CARUSO GETS 2½ YRS. FOR BEATING FARMER IN ITALY

BOLOGNA, Italy, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Enrico Caruso of Hollywood, Cal., son of the late tenor, today was given a suspended sentence of two and one-half years after being found guilty in the Court of Assizes of assaulting and seriously injuring a farmer. The attack on the farmer, Battista Monari, was alleged to have occurred Oct. 8, 1930.

A brother, Rodolfo, was acquitted. Enrico was not present at the trial, but Rodolfo attended.

ASHES OF IBANEZ TAKEN HOME BY SPANISH CRUISER

MENTON, France, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Honored by two nations, the ashes of Vicente Blasco Ibanez, Spanish novelist, were dispatched to their native land today. They were placed on the Spanish cruiser Jaime, which sailed for Spain, accompanied by three French and two Spanish cruisers.

The ceremonies were attended by the writer's widow, the Senora De Ibanez, the son, Don Siegfried Ibanez, and an old family servant, Senora Casulda Jiminez. The exercises stressed the subject of Franco-Spanish friendship.

Former King Alfonso of Spain exiled Ibanez for his republican agitation, and he died in France in 1928.

Mrs. Elisha Dyer Dies; Newport Society Leader

Newport, R. I., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Elisha Dyer, a summer resident of Newport for forty-five years, died suddenly of a heart attack today at Wayside, her Bellevue avenue villa. Mrs. Dyer was a native of Baltimore, a descendant of the famous Betsy Patterson, a Baltimore belle. Elisha Dyer's father was governor of Rhode Island. Mr. Dyer was the best man at the weddings of John Jacob Astor and Hamilton Fish Webster, and was also a famous cotillion leader.

COAL KING'S RARE OBJECTS OF ART SOLD AT AUCTION

Uniontown, Pa., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Under a mammoth circus tent on a weed grown estate where once played some of the world's most glamorous social lights an auctioneer today barked out the epiloque of a drama of the rise and fall of a king of coal.

And as piece after piece of the treasures collected from all over the world by the late J. V. Thompson fell under the hammer the husky voiced hawker shouted, "Why they're going for a song—going for a song!"

The sale is to satisfy the one time multimillionaire's creditors, and will continue until the entire contents of the famous old Oak Hill mansion are disposed of. The home already had been sold and will be converted into a convent.

The highest price paid for any article was $2,400 for a beautiful Kirminshah rug the coal operator bought for $20,000 while on a honeymoon in Constantinople with his Broadway show girl bride, the late "Honey" Hawes.

Among the prominent persons present were Mrs. A. W. Robertson, wife of the chairman of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company; Dr. C. H. Burton of Baltimore, and Richard K. Mellon, Pittsburgh banker.

Mrs. Whitman to Introduce New Husband

Former Betty Brown Will Return Home Today.

is to use this story as the theme for her brief and informal remarks.

Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley, Mrs. John Holabird, and Miss Harriet Borland will be hostesses at the tea with Miss Grace Telling, who is the directing genius of the union. Miss Borland's sister, Beatrice, has already expressed regret that she isn't here to meet Mrs. Dashwood, but Spain is a little too far away, she agrees, to return for an afternoon.

Miss Beatrice Borland, you will recall, went abroad in September with her mother, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, and her younger sister, Martha. Miss Martha is studying this winter in Paris.

One of the Arthur Meekers—Mrs. Meeker or Arthur Jr.—will introduce Mrs. Dashwood this afternoon, and Victor Elting will drop in late to talk about her.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank is to be Mrs. Dashwood's luncheon hostess this noon at the Century club, after which they will enjoy a performance by Chicago's Symphony orchestra. Tonight the Meekers are to be her dinner host and hostess at their Lake Shore drive apartment.

Mrs. Marcella Hahner has asked several of her friends to meet Mrs. Dashwood at luncheon tomorrow noon. On Sunday she will travel out to the country to be the luncheon guest of the Fairbanks at the Butternuts, their Lake Geneva house, and the dinner guest of the Walter S. Brewsters at their home in Lake Forest.

Party Tonight Will Aid Boys' Clubs.

Tonight the great dining room of the Union League club will be very gay with all the parties that have been planned for the Halloween dance that is to benefit the Union League Foundation for Boys' Clubs. Elliott Donnelley is chairman of the party. Mr. and Mrs. George A. Poole Jr., the J. Beach Clows, the Donnelleys, the James R. Addingtons, the Edwin E. Tullises, the Barrett Scudders and the junior Calvin Fentresses will be there to help make the party a success.

Late last night Miss Carolyn Erminger, daughter of the Howell B. Erminger, boarded the train for Minneapolis where she is to be the house guest this week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Karl de Laittre, and her fiancé, John de Laittre. Tomorrow evening Mr. and Mrs. de Laittre are entertaining for Miss Erminger, following the usual Saturday night symphony concert in St. Paul. The party is to be held at the attractive home of the De Laittres on the shores of Lake Minnetonka.

Although Miss Erminger has not yet definitely set the date for her wedding she has decided that it will be either the first or second week in April.

On the evening of Nov. 7 she is to be one of five Smith college alumnæ serving as flower and cigaret girls for the performance of "Bittersweet" to be given at the Grand Opera house. The Evanston-North Shore Smith College club has taken over the theater for that evening to benefit its scholarship fund. Miss Eleanor Cushman is chairman of the flower girls. The others who will be venders are Mrs. Henry H. Brigham, Miss Jean Armstrong and Mrs. Ruben Perin.

Contemporary Club to Open Season.

The Contemporary club, the third of the three fashionable women's clubs that hold their meetings in the Fortnightly clubhouse at 120 Bellevue place, will have its first meeting of the season this morning at 11 o'clock, followed by luncheon. Miss Mary Walsh is the new president. The Fortnightly had its first meeting yesterday afternoon and the Friday club met for the first time last Friday morning.

Any day now the Illinois highway authorities are going to be the reason for the Albert Day Farwells moving bag and baggage out of their lovely Lake Forest house. A state highway is to be constructed directly through their Longfield, which is due west of the electric tracks on Deerpath avenue.

As yet Mr. and Mrs. Farv .. haven't been notified of the exact day that work is going to start nor have they decided where their new home will be. It almost goes without saying, however, that it will be in Lake Forest, for how could the four times mayor of the blithe little village move from its environs?

Afflecks Move to Winnetka.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Affleck, who moved to Lake Forest from Winnetka several years ago, are back in their Winnetka house at 800 Humboldt avenue for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Rosenthal have returned from a summer spent at Biarritz and with their daughter and son-in-law, the Raymond Tartieres, at Rois chateau Fortoiseau at Dammaire, Les-Lys. Mr. and Mrs. Rosenthal have brought home with them their grandson, Jacques Tartieres, who will spend the winter here.

Many of the city's older families will be interested to hear this morning that Bishop Ernest M. Stires, former rector of the Old Grace church, is coming to Chicago for a brief visit on Nov. 6. The House of Bishops of the Episcopal church meets here on that date.

Others who will be here then to renew acquaintance with their former parishioners include Bishop Frederick Budlong, now of Connecticut and formerly rector of Christ church, Winnetka; Bishop Herman Page of Detroit, who served St. Paul's on the south side at one time, and Bishop H. P. Almon Abbott of Lexington, Ky., once the rector of St. Chrysostom's.

Y. W. C. A. Holds Annual Meeting.

Mrs. Henry M. Babson, Mrs. Robert G. Peck, Mrs. Herbert Philbrick, and Mrs. Frank M. Thomas were elected new members of the board of the Young Woman's Christian association at the annual meeting held last night at the Harriet Hammond McCormick memorial, 1001 North Dearborn street. Reëlected for another term were Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, Mrs. Albert H. Wetten, Mrs. Allan M. Clement, and Mrs. Harry H. Lobdell.

Sixty-nine thousand girls were served by the Y. W. C. A. last year in health and general education classes, clubs, employment bureau, residences, and summer camps, according to the report made at the meeting by Miss Ida Winston Sarvay, executive secretary of the association. This is an increase of nearly 17,000 over last year's figures.

An exhibition of sketches by Katherine Wolcott is opening today at the Cordon club in the Fine Arts building. Tea will be served from 4 until 6. Mrs. William E. Vogelback is chairman of the social committee.

Very clever and unusual invitations announced the NRA party that the Evanston Country club is having tonight.

Prince Spada Potenziani, Italian commissioner to A Century of Progress, and his daughter, Donna Myriam Potenziani, landed in New York yesterday and are expected to arrive in Chicago tomorrow for their second visit to the Fair.

An engagement of interest to many families along the north shore is that of Miss Roxane Neal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stowe Neal of Detroit and Ann Arbor, to Byrne Mennel Badenoch, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Alexander Badenoch of Evanston. The announcement was made by Mr. and Mrs. Neal yesterday in Detroit.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—The secretary of war and Mrs. Dern have announced they will present their youngest daughter, Miss Betty Dern, to society at a reception on New Year's day at Highwood, the home of Mrs. Henry C. Corbin, which the Derns have leased as their Washington residence.

Attorney General Cummings left today on a trip, and Mrs. Cummings went to Ring trip and Mrs. Cummings went to their home, "Ruthven," at Greenwich, Conn. She will spend the weekend with Mrs. Weeks, widow of Judge Bartow S. Weeks, in the latter's New York home.

Mothers Should Read Ahead on Care of Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

We must admit that some women who become mothers take to it like a duck to water—and others don't. Some have the gift of managing children without thinking it all out. They seem to know intuitively how to accomplish what one needs to with a child and keep him happy and active and contented. All this, too, quite without any previous experience with babies or children and also without having read or studied. It's a gift with them.

Other women who become mothers have not this natural ability to understand and manage children. The result is discord, the mother pulling one way and the child another, and real behavior difficulties.

To be sure there are degrees of this lack of capacity. Some "muff" it pretty thoroughly, while others are on the wrong tack only part of the time. The latter are very easily helped by suggestions coming from more experienced mothers or from reading.

But even the mothers who have a gift for managing children will sometimes find themselves "in a jam," due to the need for a deeper knowledge when boys and girls leave their young childhood behind them.

To those who want to gain by reading I have a suggestion to make. Don't try to study or read about your child only at his present age, learning to understand him now and to solve his immediate difficulties, if any. But keep several steps ahead. Try to form a picture of what lies ahead.

By that I don't mean peering into the distance for trouble—I mean rather learning what happens in growth and development and changing needs as the baby merges into the little child who walks and talks, the little child who merges into the in between, and the in between into an adolescent.

We have written-in-full booklets on all these ages except the adolescent. On that we have reading references. Also on child management in general we have excellent references. Any one of these will come to you through the mail for a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Wrong Choice.

She was perilously close to tears as she finished, put down the instrument and, turning to her mother, cried petulantly:

"Mamma—WHY did you have to go and marry a guy with a violin?"

Junior League Bargains Last Only 3 Hours

Collections of Weeks Sold in Wild Rush.

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

At 6 o'clock yesterday morning hungry bargain hunters began assembling outside the store at 459 North Michigan avenue, where the Junior league opened its annual fall second hand clothes sale at 8 o'clock. Six stout policemen held the ropes that kept the bargain hunters from rushing in before the sale was open, but when the police slackened the ropes in the shoppers rushed. "Look, Ann—HOSE!" were the first words spoken by a shopper, and she cried them in tones of incredulity and ecstasy to her companion, whereupon they both plunged immediately into the middle of a table laden with stockings and socks.

Soon the neatly stacked tables were all disorder and the "pick-up" girls were as busy as bees diving behind counters and under customers to retrieve hats, shoes, gloves, lingerie and other articles that were scattered about in the melée. Piercing cries of "Edna" rent the air. These came from salesgirls calling Miss Edna Doering, who was chairman of pricing, to verify or change the price of a garment.

Other frequent calls from the hard working salesgirls were for "Katie" and "Honoré," who were Miss Catharine Noyes and Miss Honoré White, chairman of the sale and in charge of the sales, respectively. These two received all the complaints. The girls in the wrapping room couldn't speak a coherent sentence, so tired were they from trying to keep pace with business.

It seems all out of proportion that three weeks of hard work were needed to prepare for a sale that lasted three hours, but such was the case. However, a profit of $1,075 proves its worth. Three weeks before the sale took place Junior league bags were left at the homes of all the members and their friends. These were collected later by girls working under the direction of Miss Eleanor Cushman, who took care of suburban collections, and Miss Peggy Wilder, with her co-chairman, Miss Carolyn Erminger, who directed the city collecting.

The bags were deposited at the Drake hotel, where Miss Doering, assisted by Miss Peggy Wiley as co-chairman, took care of the sorting and pricing. Several girls helped daily with this difficult task, among them Miss Noyes, Miss White, Miss Roslyn Paine, Miss Marie Louise Gardner, Miss Eleanor Janney, Miss Wilder, and Miss Jane Rowe.

Wednesday, the day before the sale, the clothes were carried on neat racks to the store where these same girls, augmented by others during the day, spent a good ten hours arranging them and cleaning the place. Because of the cold Miss Noyes did her work wearing men's long underwear over her own—a contribution from somebody's husband to the sale—and most of the other girls borrowed heavy socks to keep their feet from freezing. Miss White wore white bunny slippers that turned a dirty gray very shortly and Miss Doering kept on her short leopard coat. Miss Jean Armstrong and Miss Wilder, who "manned" the cash registers yesterday, did their share of sweeping. Miss Armstrong was also the highly efficient business manager of the sale.

There were sixty-six salesgirls on the list. Among them were provisional members of the league, Miss Janney, Miss Paine, Miss Gardner, and the Misses Jean O'Brien, Jean Hyman, Jean Wilhelm, Nancy Morse, Barbara Ann Bastien, and Virginia Ashcraft, who are all debutantes this year, and the Misses Marion Gordon, Elizabeth Bunting, Helen Johnson, Susan Badgerow, Joy Fairman, Veronese Beatty, Gwendolyn Juergens, Nancy Traylor, Alice Bremner, Ellen Truax, Claire Beneke, Helen Dawes, Betsy Needham, Lois Truesdale, and Mrs. James Taylor, Mrs. James Norris, Mrs. Arthur Hellyer, and Mrs. John Beadle.

Miss Dorothy Heinke was in charge of wrapping.

Two Religious Groups Open Sessions Here

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The two final religious conventions to meet during A Century of Progress opened yesterday assembling a combined number of delegates in excess of 2,000. Of this number 1,500 were called to order at the Woodlawn Baptist church, 6207 University avenue, as the 98th session of the Illinois Baptist state convention by the convention president, the Rev. B. E. Allen of Rockford. At the Congress hotel more than 500 representatives of the Federation of Lutheran Brotherhoods were convened as the 4th biennial convention of that organization.

The Baptist convention during its three days' sessions will consider the various missions and philanthropic problems facing the denomination. Last night the Rev. John H. Carstens of Rock Island delivered the annual convention sermon. Mrs. George C. Moor of New York, president of the Women's American Baptist Home Mission society, outlined the needs of home missionary and educational work of the Baptist church as represented by both the northern and southern branches.

Representatives of the 17 Baptist associations of Illinois make up the convention. State officers will be elected tomorrow morning. The convention will close with a special service in the University of Chicago chapel Sunday afternoon when the centenary of Baptist work in Chicago will be observed. Prof. Edgar J. Goodspeed, author of the Short Bible; Dr. Austin K. de Blois of Philadelphia, and Albert J. Beaven, president of the Rochester Colgate Theological seminary, will be the principal speakers at the centennial services.

Last night the 450th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther was observed by the Federation of Lutheran Brotherhoods at a banquet at the Congress hotel. Dr. Herman Preuss of Minneapolis spoke on "The Miner's Son and the Lutheran Church." John L. Zimmerman of Springfield, O., revived the history and influence of the Lutheran church in the American colonies, and the Rev. S. C. Michelfelder of Toledo, O., outlined the work of Lutheranism today.

Tomorrow night the 500 delegates will assemble at the Hall of Religion at the Fair from which a tour of the entire Exposition will start. The Lutheran Men's Association of Chicago, of which the Rev. Dr. Paulus List is president, is host to the convention. Dr. W. W. Penske of Toledo, head of the federation, has been presiding at the convention sessions.

Fill Ballroom for Lecture by Abbe Dimnet

Mrs. Dickinson Entertains at Afternoon Tea.

There wasn't a place for another person to sit in the Woman's Athletic club's lovely ballroom yesterday morning, in fact a number of women were standing in the hall, when the Abbé Ernest Dimnet of Paris spoke, not about Mussolini, however, but about conditions in France today.

Somewhere there had been a mixup and the charming white headed abbé did not know until he read it in the papers yesterday morning that his subject had been announced as "Benito Mussolini—A Study of the Founder of Fascism." It was too late to do anything about it then, so he gave the lecture he had prepared, which was interesting, of course, but a disappointment to many in the audience who had looked forward to hearing this scholarly Frenchman talk about Il Duce.

Mrs. Alfred C. Tyler introduced the speaker to the 450 women who were there, but many of them did not need to be introduced for him, for they feel that they know him well, not only through hearing him speak here many times before, but through his books, which cover a wide range—from the art of thinking to the art of making salad, in fact.

Among the many things the abbé said that occasioned conversation over the luncheon tables was his pronunciation of Marcel Proust's last name. He said it as if it were Prue, whereas every one else, French or otherwise, we and all of the other listeners have heard speak of this distinguished writer, has called him Proost. We were so intrigued by this point that we asked the abbé about it later at tea and he admitted that Proust himself pronounced his name in the way that it is heard generally, but that he, the abbé, refused to Anglicize it to that extent.

The abbé disappointed some of his feminine listeners a second time by not staying to luncheon after the lecture, but he really was the loser to miss the delicious tomato juice cocktail, squab stuffed with wild rice, peas, salad and dessert that were served.

In the afternoon Mrs. Welch Dickinson was hostess at a tea for the abbé in her East Walton place apartment in which the Frenchman must have felt very much at home, for it is furnished with lovely things Mrs. Dickinson bought and used in an apartment in Paris when she was living there. Pouring at the tea table in the green and white dining room were Mrs. Jefferson Jackson, Mrs. Daniel Taylor, Mrs. Holbrook Clarke, Mrs. William E. Vogelback, Mrs. Benjamin F. Affleck, and Mrs. Clair E. More.

LAXATIVE SAM says:
THE BIGGEST DISCOVERY I EVER MADE COST ME A WHOLE DIME!
Do you know what it means when some laxative you like suddenly requires double doses to get the same results? You're laxative stale and the system needs a change! Try Chocolate Cascarets. They contain cascara, a natural laxative from the bark of a tree. They bring a thorough, muscular movement of the bowels. One always works; it cleanses and sweetens the whole system; you feel better for days! Give them a little time, and Chocolate Cascarets will have you as regular as clockwork. Their real chocolate flavor is luscious. Their action is perfect. You'll be off strong laxatives for life! One taste, one test, explains the stampede to Chocolate Cascarets. Your druggist has them.

Why? Because Colgate's is one toothpaste that removes all the 7 stains that discolor teeth. For Colgate's has TWO cleansing actions. Most toothpastes have only one.
Colgate's has an emulsive action that loosens some stains, then, a gentle polishing action that polishes away stains that are left; leaving teeth gleaming.
Special. For a limited time only you can get the large 25c tube for 19c. Go to your dealer's—take advantage of this offer now!

Women Urge That All Unfit Be Sterilized

Improve Spiritual Quality of Home, Plea.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

A definite program for bringing back the American home to the spiritual level of an earlier generation in which everybody went to church on Sunday and parental authority was respected was proposed yesterday in the last and largest of a series of six regional conferences of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hotel Sherman. Sterilization of the unfit, supervision of moviegoing by children, abolishing of dance marathons, planned home financing, and other objectives are set forth in the "home recovery program."

Mrs. J. Paul Carter presided at the department conference in which the various items of the program were recommended by Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, who is chairman of the American home department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. A resurgence of spiritual life in the home, Mrs. Seymour asserted, is of tremendous importance to future generations as well as to the present.

Birth control has never been approved or disapproved by the state federation, but the members are in favor of sterilization of the unfit, according to Dr. Lena K. Sadler, public health chairman. "To save the next generation from insanity, imbecility, crippled bodies, the lame, the halt, and the blind," is the way the home recovery program phrases its recommendation.

"Stop the marathons," the program urges further. "They are a disgrace to our civilization, and we as mothers should protest until they are ended.

"The movies have come to stay. Do you let your child go or do you go along? Do you select the right ones or just escort the children to the door and hand them a ticket? This reaction stimulates the good or bad in children.

"Start an educational fight against narcotics, firearms, and alcohol. Narcotics are sold to minors in cigarets and other forms. As beer returns so return the saloons with curtained windows and doors. They are here now. 'Stand fast and pray.' As the eighteenth amendment is repealed we shall return to deserted homes, undernourished children, unhappy homes."

Prof. Andrew A. Bruce of Northwestern university declared before the law observance section that railroad detectives never arrest a man unless he is guilty and follow up the case by obtaining plenty of evidence to convict, while Chicago police have a record of only 20 per cent fo convictions in proportion to arrests because they fail to secure sufficient evidence to bring into court. Short term election of judges contributes to unsatisfactory law observance, he added, recommending that they be elected for life, subject to impeachment, and divorced from all politics.

Mrs. William F. Farrell, president of the Illinois federation, presided.

Calls on Church to Lead in Trend to Collectivism

The new deal in religion was interpreted as a transition from individualism to collectivism yesterday by Dr. Matthew Spinka, librarian of the Chicago Theological seminary, in a lecture at Joseph Bond chapel on the University of Chicago campus. The philosophy of individualism is declining in economics, society and religion and is being supplanted by a new culture of collectivism, he said. Dr. Spinka urged Protestant churches to meet the change and lead toward the new culture or face gradual decline.

Make 17 Dolls for One Scene of Harvey Film

Seven Likenesses of Star Are Required.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—There is a scene in "I Am Suzanne" in which the human principals, including Lilian Harvey, Gene Raymond, Nigel Bruce, Georgia Caine and a flock of subordinates, enact an elaborate St. Moritz ice revue. The same scene is shown a second time in the film, but this time on a miniature ice rink with puppets. The puppets have been made during the last few weeks, seven figures of Miss Harvey being required, and several marionette figures each of ten other actresses and actors.

Temperament (mother's, not child's) seems to have cut short the film career of Marlene Dietrich's little girl, Maria Sieber, after two or three days of shooting. The child's sequence as the infant Empress Catherine of Russia were completed, but the studio was informed it should not try to recall Maria for any retakes or added scenes because a school board permit probably would not be forthcoming.

Miss Dietrich objected to having Maria go to school on the lot while she was working, as the state compulsory education law requires for all minor children who play even one day in pictures. The law makes no exceptions—saying a minor may be at a studio for eight hours in one day, but may work only four, going to school three hours and spending one hour in recreation. Marlene decided her child was an exception whether or no.

Rachel Smith, the studio school teacher who gets her assignment from and is responsible only to the school officials and not the studio, decided not even the daughter of "Blonde Venus" rated as an exception. Miss Smith is about the only person about the Paramount lot who has been able to make anything stick against Joe Von Sternberg, director, under whose directions Marlene performs her film activities.

Lupe Velez may marry Johnny Weissmuller in Nevada next Monday, as she said earlier this week, or if not Monday, she may marry Johnny in some other state. Some one broached the topic to Velez yesterday and Lupe snapped: "I may not marry him at all."

By NORVAL RICHARDSON

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila, known as "Bun" O'Reilly, an American, makes a comfortable living abroad by helping fellow countrymen out of difficulties. Fred Crawford, a Paris newspaper man, is her friend and counselor. Bun agrees to help James B. Finlay, an elderly wealthy American, to find his young wife, Helene. He wants no publicity. He had met Helene after the war in Bucharest. He had installed her family, the Boblanoffs, in a villa on the Riviera at Grasse. Her brother, Perenx, he had brought to America. No trace can be found of Helene and her parents since the last time she returned to visit them. Bun's suspicions are aroused by Finlay's niece, Mrs. Craymer, and her ominous appearing butler. A recent newspaper picture showing Helene standing with a tall woman in a group at Biarritz is the only clew Bun has to go on. That same night Finlay is murdered. Bun's apartment is broken into by a masked man and woman; her maid, Liberté, bound, and the money Finlay had given her as advance payment stolen. Bun meets Finlay's son, Robert, when he arrives from America. His unlikeness to his father and his desire for secrecy puzzle her. She feels under obligation to continue the search. In Biarritz the photographer who took the group picture identifies the tall woman as the Countess Vernadon, who has a villa at Grasse. Bun motors to Cannes. There she meets the real Robert Finlay and learns that the other was an impostor. Bun is attracted to him, but believes he's in love with Helene. He urges her to continue the quest with him. Mrs. Craymer appears at the hotel. That night Bun and Robert call on Countess Vernadon at her dreary villa. She denies knowing Helene. As they are leaving they see a woman fall from a window. They offer to send out a doctor from Grasse.

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

DISTURBING REFLECTIONS.

"Our friends in Grasse are hardly what would be called cordial," Finlay commented. Anyway, let's stop here in this hotel for a little while and see if that old grouch lives up to his promises."

They went into the empty lounge and ordered coffee. Before it was brought they heard a car come out from the house across the road and pass in the direction they had come. A few minutes later they were on their way back to Cannes.

A clock was just striking midnight when Bun ran her car into the hotel garage and she and Finlay entered the lobby. She went straight to the elevator. Holding out her hand to Finlay she said:

"I think we might call this a day—and the half of a night. Do you feel we've accomplished anything?"

He held her hand and looked straight into her eyes. "It has been an important day to me in many ways—meeting you most of all."

It was a nice, friendly look—the sort she liked, straightforward and open.

Bun held the scarf under her nose and waited.

She let her hand rest in his a moment longer than was necessary. "Do you think it will lead toward anything?"

His eyes had not wavered. Did they mean anything personal, or was she just hoping they did? 'Don't you?"

Her glance fell. "I don't know yet. I'll think it over in the small hours of the night and let you know in the morning."

"Do you rise early?"

"I can—when it's necessary."

"Then meet me down here at eight. Shall we breakfast together?"

Bun nodded and stepped into the elevator. "Right-o. Then at eight tomorrow."

She found Liberté sitting bolt upright in her sitting room, sound asleep and snoring loudly. Always ready to get some fun out any situation, Bun approached her quietly and held the scarf which she had picked up in the garden of the Villa des Roses under her nose and waited. Liberté's snores became gentler, then ceased. Her head came forward slowly; then with an entirely unexpected movement, her arms went out in a wild gesture and grasped Bun in a tight embrace.

"Lib!" she cried. "It's me. Don't you know me!"

But Liberté's embrace did not relax; if anything, it tightened. Bun struggled vainly to escape. At last Liberté seemed to regain consciousness; her eyes opened wide; her hands fell to her side—and Bun breathed easily once more.

"Where did you get it, Mademoiselle?"

"What, Lib?"

"That scent. The room is full of it." She sprang at the scarf which had fallen to the floor, picked it up, sniffed at it loudly, then thrust it at Bun's nose. "Whose is it? Where did it come from? It is the same. Don't you recognize it?"

Bun quieted her—at least tried to—and finally told her of the night's adventure.

"Then you saw her yourself! And was it not this Madame Craymair—as I told you?"

"No, Lib. Mrs. Craymer is probably asleep in her room—and has been for hours."

"Probably yes—certainly no. To prove that I am right, Mademoiselle should go to her room—just to find it empty."

"I shall do nothing of the sort, Lib. I'm too tired. And I've got a busy day before me tomorrow. Besides, you've fairly squeezed the wind out of me. Set the alarm clock for seven—and don't fail to call me."

But Liberté was not so easily to be got rid of. She had to recount first that she had watched Mrs. Craymer all during the evening. At least she had found out where her room was and had watched that. It was on the next floor, just above Bun's suite. "That's her balcony," Liberté pointed to the one above them. "She was sitting out there earlier in the evening. I heard her moving about. She is alone. If there were a maid," here Liberté's face fell, "it would have been easy. As it is, I have to do with the help of these hotel waiters. And I do not trust them. She may pay them to keep silent. But there are ways. I shall find out yet."

"Find out what, Lib?" Bun asked as she undressed.

"Everything. Everything that Mademoiselle thinks means nothing. But she will see!"

It was not so easy to go to sleep as Bun had thought. She tossed for an hour and more. The incidents of the day kept coming back, repeated themselves in details that took on significance as she thought them over. Finlay stood out from the mass of impressions—clear cut and efficiently calm. Was there some hidden meaning in his saying the day had been important to him—principally on account of his meeting with her? Did he mean her to take that as personal? The meeting had been important for her, too; ridiculously important, she admitted with a restless toss of the head. How utterly silly she was! Like a school girl. What he had meant was that she had led him toward some clews. That was all. The expression in his eyes when he had spoken of his step-mother came back with convincing evidence. Bun threw a pillow across the room in an access of impatience. Of course this Helene—even her name was suggestive—was the sort of woman that all men fell in love with! Even Fred, while merely looking at her photograph, had shown that ridiculous cow-like expression that all men wore when they looked at a beautiful woman. If the old man had loved her, how much more reasonable that these two younger ones should feel her charm!

Bun turned on the light over her dressing table and looked at herself closery. What chance did she have against such a face as that in the photograph? None. Her own countenance looked back at her out of the mirror entirely too alert, too capable, too much alive. She had a certain style, she knew that well enough, but there was none of that languishing, melting look in the eyes that appealed so to men's imaginations. The whole trouble with her was that her feet were on the ground; that other women's were in the clouds.

She turned away with a sigh, switched off the light, and wandered on to the balcony. The moon was gone now; but there was a penetrating luminous light in the sky—and a stillness that was almost uncanny. She looked down at the empty esplanade. Not a soul was in sight. Yes—one man, strolling slowly along, stopping now and then to gaze at the placid sea. Her attention centered upon him as apparently the only person in the world beside herself awake at this hour. Was he restless, too, like her! Was he wandering about thinking of impossible situations and chafing at his own helplessness! He came slowly toward the hotel and stopped on the sidewalk just opposite. Something familiar—was it his swinging walk, the easy carriage of his head, a trick of digging his hands deep in his pockets?—caught her attention and made her lean intently on the balcony rail. Surely—it could not be Finlay; and yet it must be!

Coiffure Artist Puts Character Into Hairdress

Movie Makeup Operators Play Important Role.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

HOLLYWOOD.—[Special.]—Overheard in Edie's hairdressing cubicle on the Metro lot: Says Vivienne Segal to Mary Carlisle: "What number eyelash are you wearing?" Says Mary to Vivienne: "No. 3, I think. Anyway, it isn't street length and it isn't screen length! It's in between." Thus are the famous Hollywood lashes measured in their own home town.

A call comes for Garbo's wig—the wig she is using in Queen Christiana. It's needed on the set in eight minutes. A golden brown, maybe a little lighter than that it turns out to be, and an exact color copy, Edie tells me, of Garbo's own hair. It is a long wig, with hair straight to within a couple of inches of the end, where soft, flat curls abound. It is cut in different lengths to give contour to the head.

If Garbo is remote to you and me, you should see how she is protected here in her work surroundings, and what awe and curiosity she arouses. Some one asked lightly what number eyelash Garbo used. "They're her own lashes," Mary Carlisle argued. "I got a good closeup and I looked. They are her own!" "But they can't be," argued another. "No human being could have eyelashes like that!" Part of that glamorous woman's glamour that even her eyelashes remain a mystery!

But it was of hairdressing as we see it on the screen that I went to see Edie about—what important work belongs to these makeup and coiffure people whose handiwork is seen on the screen, their names never. Getting the hair into its "character" part is an art in itself. So much depends upon coiffure to build a type. A sophisticated character calls for one style hairdress; a lovable type another; a hoyden, still another, and so on. The sophisticate, for example, wears her hair without wave on top and without curls. The ingénue may be a perfect wreath of curls.

Shadow waves, on the whole, are preferred. These are wide and soft, with no "ridge" showing, for this creates an ugly, hard line. The movement at present is to push the hair off the sides of the face, showing the natural hair line down the side of the cheek. No hair pulled over temple or cheek! It give a "cleaner" look, as Edie describes it, a rule applicable to off the screen face treatment as well as on. Crooked parts are less hard than straight parts, although here again it depends on type.

Swagger Coat with Bold, Bright Bars Is Flattering to a Lissome Figure

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Going off by the Imperial Airways, coming in to the Gare de Lyon, and running out in the chateaux country, women are swaggering around in striped woolen coats. The swagger coat lines, put behind bold bars of contrasting color, have a new kick that fashionable Parisiennes like.

Of course, this kind of coat, illustrated in our sketch, is a long way from being the people's choice in the way of a topcoat. It is a minority candidate in sports coat fashions, and therefore dearer to women with a complex about exclusiveness. You have to be slim and tall to get away with stripes running around your body, but if you are this coat has the grande chic and plenty of it.

The model herewith from Mainbocher is made of dark brown and grege striped wool, all the stripes running horizontally except those on the flaps of the set in pockets. It fastens on two tabs of cloth that button on two grege buttons, and at the neckline it ties below a ruffled collar of beaver fur. Two tabs of the fur fall on the chest, below the striped ties.

The bulk of the fullness of this coat lies in the back, and is put there by an inverted box pleat down the center.

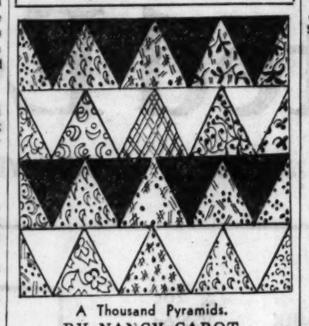
Coverlet Pattern Almost as Old as Pyramids on It



A Thousand Pyramids.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"A Thousand Pyramids" is an old, old quilt design, so ancient that no two quilt authorities can agree on its origin. It can be made up all in prints or skillfully varied, as it is illustrated above. This is another "economy" quilt, because it makes good use of scraps left from others.

For a quilt pattern of this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels, and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

Institute Plans to Advise Youth On Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

HOLLYWOOD.—[Special.]—An interesting experiment is being worked out in Los Angeles, namely, the Institute of Family Relations, the first American institution of the kind, and, we believe, the only one in America. In Vienna, Austria, the department of health established in 1922 a clinic for advice on marriage.

This proved so successful that there are now more than two hundred such clinics on the continent. Nearly all of them are official in character and supported from tax funds. Their development has been one of the striking successes in social work abroad during the past decade.

The American institution, conducted on a much broader basis than the foreign ones, was started here in 1930 as a nonprofit philanthropic foundation. The work of this organization falls in three divisions—public education, personal service, and research. Lectures are given to all sorts of groups. In southern California much effort has been devoted, with good results, to encouraging education for family life in the public schools, and not for girls merely but for boys as well. There are now separate and appropriate boys' courses in home making in four of the high schools of Los Angeles county.

Pre-marital conferences are no small part of the work. Encouraging the proper preparation before marriage actually occurs is recommended. It is deemed wiser to prevent difficulties than to straighten them out after marriage when they may already have done harm.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

FORDNEY SOLVES ANOTHER CASE.

The cigaret stubs and piece of broken glass which lay on the bloody towel in the waste basket Prof. Fordney put into his pocket. Funny, he thought, that he should be working on this particular case. How well he knew about Mrs. Allan Armstrong's affair with Roger Ruthland and her apparent grief over her husband's murder, was, he believed, insincere.

"Allan came home from the office very unexpectedly this afternoon. He was agitated and distressed about something—said some one was out to 'get him.'" As Mrs. Armstrong spoke Prof. Fordney glanced across the comfortable, orderly living room at the dead body lying near the grand piano.

"We were alone in the house," continued the woman, "and while he was talking a masked man opened the French windows, stepped inside, and stated in an undertone, 'I meant what I said!' Without a struggle, even a warning, he shot my husband. Allan dropped there just as you see him. I tried to stanch the blood with that towel I threw in the waste basket. While I was confident he was dead I wasn't sure so I called the doctor first, then the police. I just couldn't stay in here so I went outside and awaited your arrival."

Observing that the marks in the rug in front of the piano did not correspond with the present position of the piano bench, Fordney inquired, "Disturb anything? There was no struggle?"

"No," she replied to both questions. "I know, Mrs. Armstrong, that you have not truthfully stated the details of what happened!"

HOW DID HE KNOW?

This Powerful VAPOR Stops Cold Suffering right where it starts!

Everybody knows that bed is the place to CURE a cold. But when work or social duties prevent you from staying in bed, get busy with Vapex as fast as you can.

No Dosing. Nothing to Insert in Nose.

The instant you inhale this safe and pleasant vapor from your handkerchief, it penetrates 'way back into the hidden passages of the nose and throat. Vapex—and only Vapex—can do this, and at the same time SOOTHE the hot, inflamed membranes and NORMALIZE the secretions. Immediately that oppressive stuffiness is cleared, and sneezing, sniffling and eye-watering are checked.

Only the two men who discovered Vapex during the war, know its formula. That is why Vapex cannot be duplicated and why you should refuse any of the 75 imitations which may be offered you.

Then I hold this Vapexed handkerchief over my nose and breathe in deeply.

I like Vapex because it's pleasant to use; saves me from having to dose myself.

REAL Vapex costs but half a cent an application. A handy bottle usually lasts all winter and should be in your medicine chest NOW!

AWARDED THE GOOD HOUSEKEEPING SEAL OF APPROVAL FOR SAFETY AND EFFECTIVENESS

PRESS FREEDOM IS NOT IN PERIL, SAYS NRA LEADER

Declares Courts Would Not Abridge Liberty.

Prof. Lindsay Rogers, deputy NRA administrator, yesterday denied that the national recovery program challenges the freedom of the press. In an address before about 700 delegates to the United Typothetae of America convention at the Palmer house he asserted that the courts of the land would be unanimous in preventing newspapers from being licensed under the recovery act.

Prof. Rogers is a member of the law faculty at Columbia university. He presided over the recent newspaper code hearings in Washington.

"There is a section of the national recovery act which authorizes the President in certain cases to license industry," Prof. Rogers said. "The powers of the President are carefully circumscribed.

Section Stands Apart.

"The licensing section has been considered as standing apart and does stand apart from the section dealing with the presentation and approval of codes, but the President has not used the authority conferred upon him and there has been no public demand that he do so.

"Nevertheless, the section has been used by those who seek to conjure imaginary hobgoblins of interference with liberty of the press. Those who use the word 'license' should make it clear to the unsuspecting that no responsible, intelligent person has ever thought of the possibility of newspapers being under the licensing provision of the act.

"If such a proposal were ever made the judges of the land would be unanimous in preventing it. The word 'licensing' should not be brought into any discussion of the formulation of a code on hours and wages for the newspapers of the United States."

Quotes Words of Milton.

Prof. Rogers quoted the words of Milton: "Give me the liberty to know and utter and to argue freely according to conscience above all other liberties."

"That was what Milton demanded and those immortal words, quoted by Col. R. R. McCormick in his speech on this subject barely more than a week ago, rightly demand liberty of the press above all other liberties," the speaker declared.

He asserted that the constitutional guarantee of liberty of the press did not, however, mean liberty to refuse to submit a code. Newspapers, he said, are in precisely the same class as is any other industry whose employés' wages and hours are to be governed by the recovery act. The code deals only with hours and wages, he declared.

"Cannot Waive Rights."

"In my opinion," Prof. Rogers said, "publishers cannot waive their constitutional rights by presenting and urging the approval of a code covering hours and wages. No law of congress or executive order would be valid if it abridged the liberty of the press.

"In conferences following submission of the newspaper code I expressed only two opinions. The first was that the language of the section relating to not waiving rights under the first amendment covered more than the first amendment and that it was not prepared in accordance with the standard Napoleon imposed on the draftsmen of the Napoleonic code—that is, that it should be so clear that not only the well intentioned would understand but the ill intentioned could not possibly misunderstand.

"My second suggestion was that perhaps the declaration could best appear in the preamble of the code instead of its present resting place where it was sandwiched between two provisions which are not relevant to the liberty of the press. And in all this I submit there is no challenge to the freedom of the press."

Refers to Code's Words.

Prof. Rogers said that statements had been made that the freedom of the press hangs in the balance in regard to the selection of a code and that press associations have broadcast the alarm all over the country.

One premise followed in support of that statement, he said, resulted from the words on the front of the drafted code which are to the effect that the code in its present form, merely reflects the proposal of the industry and that none of its provisions are to be regarded as having received the approval of the national recovery administration.

He declared that some persons had become apprehensive upon reflecting that the NRA has not approved the constitutional guarantee of the freedom of the press, but he asserted that the words on the front of the code carried no such significance because that statement is placed on the cover of every code published.

AWARD 11 COUNTY ROAD CONTRACTS TOTALING $500,000

Director Kingery of the state department of public works announced yesterday that eleven contracts, involving $500,000 worth of work, have been awarded under the $17,500,000 NRA road money allotted to Illinois. The metropolitan area jobs, with the successful bid and bidder, are:

ROOSEVELT ROAD—Paving, Central avenue to Cicero avenue; $36,562, Arcole Construction company.

HARLEM AVENUE—Paving, east half, Chicago avenue to North boulevard, Oak Park; west half, Central avenue to Chicago avenue, River Forest; $53,932, Suburban Paving company.

The other projects are downstate.

SECOND DIVISION ELECTION.

The Second Division association will elect officers for 1934 in a meeting this evening at 14 North Michigan avenue. Leonard Cole, the retiring president, will deliver a report from the memorial committee at the meeting.

WHY WE ARE 74

Price had a lot to do with it, no doubt. But you can't stay in business for nearly three-quarters of a century on price alone. The fact that we have been able to hold a steadily growing number of customers, generation after generation, is entirely due to the quality of the food we sell.

Our 74th Anniversary Sale offers many food bargains. They are real bargains. Bargains, first, because the food is the best obtainable. Bargains, secondly, because the price is the lowest possible.

N. U. OFF TO COLUMBUS FOR OHIO STATE GAME

THRILL FANS, BEAT CHICAGO, MICHIGAN AIM

Maroons Fear Both Will Happen.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Michigan's football team, conceded to have better than an even chance to win the Western conference championship, will make its first appearance since 1927 on the Midway Saturday when it plays Chicago. Only by a reversal in form without parallel in recent seasons can the Wolverines lose the game. Chicago, with marked candor, concedes the decision, and while Michigan will not as frankly assert it expects to win, apparently there is no doubt of the outcome in Ann Arbor.

Michigan will have every advantage. Comparisons of weight, experience, speed, passing, and kicking favor the Wolverines. Michigan executes those fundamentals, blocking and tackling, on which attack and defense are built, better than the Maroons. In short, except for intangibles, Saturday's game is no contest.

Thrills Are Guaranteed.

These intangibles, luck in fumbles and a fighting spirit of an aroused eleven, might overcome a complacent Michigan team if there was not such a wide difference in experience and ability. Fortunately Chicago will be undefeated until 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, notwithstanding predictions, and although the result may be a sure thing with prohibitive odds, the thrills of the game do not depend on the result.

Let us hasten to observe, according to those adages, that a game isn't lost until the last man is out or until the final whistle has blown, that Chicago might give Michigan a worrisome afternoon. This observation also is a coverup in case the unexpected happens and Chicago whips over a third strike on the Wolverines.

The Maroons have a fair first team with a better than average ball carrier in Berwanger. It has more weight in the line than in recent years. The boys have a better team spirit, but it is discouraging to meet Purdue in the first conference game and then come back against Michigan.

Maroons Want Dry Field.

The opinion on the Midway is that Chicago might have done better against Purdue with fair weather. Consequently yesterday's drenching rain was greeted with groans at Chicago. The boys desire a dry gridiron and that goes double for the loyal fans who took a bath last week at the Purdue game and don't wish to risk exposure again to see Michigan.

Granted sunshine and some warmth, a crowd of more than 20,000 is anticipated. Three thousand are expected from Ann Arbor and Detroit and this number includes the Michigan band of 110 musicians. The band and football team will be quartered at the Hotel Windermere East tonight and tomorrow.

Only on rare occasions has Michigan piled up large scores. No team knows better how to protect a touchdown advantage, and since the Wolverines play percentage football they take few chances after going into the lead. Since 1919 Michigan has played Chicago six times, winning five games. The Maroons triumphed in 1919 by a score of 13 to 0, but they have not been beaten badly in any subsequent game. The highest total was 16 to 0 in 1930, but a year later Chicago lost by only 13 to 7 and last year 12 to 0.

May Get Moral Victory.

Defeat by a score of two touchdowns to one Saturday would be construed as a moral victory for Chicago in view of Cornell's humiliation by the Wolverines, 40 to 0, and Ohio State's impotence last week when the Buckeyes lost, 13 to 0.

Michigan now has won 13 consecutive games since the 1931 scoreless tie with Michigan State. The record is 16 victories and one tie since Ohio State whipped Michigan, 20 to 7, in 1931. Michigan's defensive strength is attested by the fact that its opponents have scored only three touchdowns in 17 games. Northwestern scored last year and so did Princeton, and Michigan State got a touchdown in the opener this season.

Smith May Do Kicking.

And most of the boys who have kept the opposition helpless will be ready to stop the tricky offense which Coach Clark Shaughnessy prepared for Purdue and couldn't use because of rain and wet grounds.

Chicago's most glaring weakness has been the lack of a consistent kicker. When your best isn't any too good and he's against a boy by the name of Regeczi it shouldn't take many exchanges until the game is played in Chicago territory. There's some talk of Smith getting a berth on the first eleven to help out in the kicking, which heretofore has been done largely by Berwanger.

Michigan, 35; Illinois, 0.
Michigan, 21; Princeton, 0.
Michigan, 22; Indiana, 0.
Michigan, 0; Michigan State, 0.
Michigan, 6; Minnesota, 0.
Michigan, 16; Wisconsin, 0.
1932.
Michigan, 26; Michigan State, 0.
Michigan, 15; Northwestern, 6.
Michigan, 14; Ohio State, 0.
Michigan, 32; Illinois, 0.
Michigan, 14; Princeton, 7.
Michigan, 7; Indiana, 0.
Michigan, 12; Chicago, 0.
Michigan, 3; Minnesota, 0.
1933.
Michigan, 20; Michigan State, 6.
Michigan, 40; Cornell, 0.
Michigan, 13; Ohio State, 0.

The Chicago-Michigan series began in 1892, the year A. A. Stagg organized football on the Midway.

Sophomore Tackles to Play.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Northwestern's home loving Wildcats boarded Pullmans last night for the first time this year and set out on their only 1933 football jaunt, to Columbus. Tomorrow they will play the Ohio State Buckeyes, also a disillusioned team.

While the game will have a slight also ran flavor, it promises to be a spirited and interesting one. The Wildcats have been showing improvement since Iowa horrified them with a 7 to 0 victory. The Buckeyes are pretty churned up about the 13 to 0 spanking they got before 93,508 paying customers at Ann Arbor last Saturday, and probably have been reminded of some of the mistakes they made against Michigan.

Columbus Is Lucky.

Northwestern undertakes its only game abroad with no jinx complex about the Ohio State premises, for no Hanley coached team ever has lost at Columbus. Two years ago, the week after Ohio State had trimmed Michigan, the Wildcats went to Columbus and administered a 10 to 0 licking, same being accrued on a dash by Rentner and a drop kick by Olson, the Wildcats the while stopping Cramer, who had been a sensation at Ann Arbor a week earlier.

In beating Ohio State at Columbus they did something they could not do last year on their home lot. Hinchman and a few others ran them a bit ragged for a 20 to 6 Buckeye victory at Dyche stadium.

Thirty-two players, a few short of the Purple traveling squads of previous years, left last night at 11:35 o'clock from the union station and were due to arrive in Columbus this morning. Weather permitting, Coaches Hanley and Willaman this morning will play their annual challenge golf match, then arrange for light workouts of their squads.

Purple Drills in Rain.

Because the Wildcats include several cripples and some of the Buckeyes were buffeted around too much by the rough Wolverine linesmen, it is not expected that today's workouts will involve any strenuous endeavor.

The Wildcats will be housed at the Columbus Athletic club, a nice place where they can sharpen up on their pool playing, swimming, and reading such times as they are not in their football suits.

Augustson to Play.

In all probability Roy Augustson will alternate with Olson at quarter back. Jakie Sullivan may fill in at Leeper's post, and the two sophomore tackles, Irwin Kopeck and Joe Chambers, will get a chance. Otherwise, few changes will be made.

Following is the squad which made the trip:

Ends—Manske, Jens, Kostbade, Berg. V. Anderson and Thoma.
Guards—Whalen, Kawal, Tangora, E. Anderson, A. Lind, Goldstein.
Centers—Hajeck, Fuller, and Hyink.
Quarter backs—Olson, Augusson, Lind.
Half backs—Sullivan, Leeper, Cruice, Maroney, Staxul and Lenhardt.
Full backs—Duval and Sutton.

Several social events have been planned for the lads during their stay in the Ohio capital.

OHIO STRESSES OFFENSE.

Columbus, O., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Defense was forgotten today as Coach Sam Willaman sent the Ohio State squad through its last hard scrimmage before the Northwestern game on Saturday.

A revamped lineup met freshmen, spending the entire drill on offense. It was none too impressive, although it scored three touchdowns.

Pincura was used in the backfield, bringing praise for his driving. Following the practice it appeared as though Rees and Pipolo would start at the ends, with Conrad and Rosenquist, tackles, Gallus and Delich, guards, and Vuchinich, center.

In the backfield Kabealo and Wetzel will alternate at full back with the latter starting. Pincura will be quarter and Smith and Heekin at the halves.

All Ohio players are in condition to start the game except Don Wilson, an end, who was injured in the Vanderbilt game.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

FOOTBALL TOMORROW.

WITH Michigan anticipating a comparatively calm afternoon at Stagg field, although Chicago intends to dispute that anticipation, principal Big Ten interest tomorrow centers on Iowa's appearance at Minneapolis and Northwestern's invasion of Columbus. Both these contests are regarded in the toss-up class, with Gophers and Buckeyes slight favorites. Purdue generally is expected to inflict another defeat on the hapless Badgers.

OSSIE SOLEM.

Because Iowa leads the conference with victories over Northwestern and Wisconsin and is one of the three unbeaten, untied elevens in this circuit, the Hawkeyes have a following undreamed of before the season's opening. Minnesota, tied by Indiana and Purdue, took Pittsburgh in an intersectional game, so will not lack for supporters.

We saw Minnesota defeat Iowa last year, 21 to 6, and the Hawkeyes never had a chance because they had no offense. Their touchdown was scored on an intercepted pass. Now Coach Solem offers Crayne and Laws as ball carriers, and Wisconsin and Northwestern will tell you they are all of that. One is inclined to think Iowa has the more varied offense, although Alfonse has helped the Gopher attack which was able to run the Purdue ends. Minnesota so far has not seemed able to coördinate its power into enough touchdowns for the energy expended.

At Columbus it should be a battle royal. If Ohio State bounds back from its disappointing Michigan defeat and its heavy line functions the Purple will take its second defeat of the year. If Ohio State lets down after the game it most wanted to win, those oncoming Wildcats are likely to claw their way to victory. Northwestern, against Indiana, showed its first real attack, and was impregnable on defense. If it is still improving at the same rate as since the Iowa debacle, it is a good football eleven. Northwestern also has a habit of winning in the Ohio stadium.

In the east, Army and Yale, Harvard and Dartmouth are the standouts. The Wake leans toward Army and Dartmouth as winners by close margins. On the coast, Southern California goes to Berkeley in the headliner. If California ties or defeats the Trojans, tied a week ago by Oregon State, it will be a decided upset.

NOTRE DAME NO. 1 ELEVEN TO OPEN GAME WITH PITT

Shock Troop Plan Not So Famous Any More.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 26.—There isn't much talk hereabouts of shock troops, a battalion famous in Notre Dame's football history—at least until last week. The 1933 shock boys were serving Saturday when the touchdown by which Carnegie Tech whipped the so-called Fighting Irish went across, and a bigger, better foe—the Pitt Panthers—is immediately ahead. The regulars will have to take care of the impending menace.

Hartley Anderson, the coach, doesn't say that in as many words, but it probably is only because he hasn't had the time. He's too busy complaining about blocking, or rather the lack of it, about injuries of which he claims many, and a general run down condition of his talent. But he's preaching "pep" to his assorted warriors, and there is at least a faint hope that they'll respond this week-end with a show that will add considerable polish to Notre Dame's record for the season. Thus far there have been one tie, one victory and one defeat.

Iron Out Defects.

Things are pretty tough when a Notre Dame regular eleven and its several subsidiaries receive a dose of real scrimmage on two successive days. Scrimmage usually is reserved for the game itself. But the lads were sent through this bruising preparatory work both Tuesday and yesterday. Anderson thought he noticed an absence of some of the things the youths were doing wrong against Carnegie. Anyway, he eased off on the practice program today by confining it to dummy scrimmage of their own plays and the same against the sort of tricks the Panthers are expected to expose here this week-end.

Anderson appeared to be giving his undivided attention to the first stringers; hence the conclusion the shock troops will see action Saturday only after the regulars have made things safe or flopped entirely. Wayne Millner was at left end, Ed Krause at left tackle, Rocco Schiralli at left guard, Tom Gordon at center, Joe Pivarnik at right guard, Tom Roach at right tackle, Hughey Devore at right end, Tony Mazziotti and Frankie Gaul at quarter, Nick Lukats at left half, Ray Brancheau at right half, and Don Elser at full.

Still Must Prove Himself.

Mazziotti, an Italian contribution to the Fighting Irish brigade, is the highly touted sophomore who still must prove he's as good as his advance notices. He's the lad the publicity experts said would be another Frank Carideo at quarter back. But an injured knee has kept him out of three games, and whether he'll have a chance to prove himself Saturday is doubtful. Gaul may start at quarter and Mazziotti may be brought in when and if a favorable situation arises. Mazziotti, with two good legs to carry him, might go a long ways in answering Anderson's cry for effective blocking.

Mazziotti has three known companions on the hospital list. Dominic Vairo, an end, has hurts which may restrict him to a spectator's rôle at the Pitt battle. Andy Pliney, half back, who maintained a good record in yardage gained from scrimmage in the first three games despite the absence of blocking, and Lukats both are wearing proof that recent foes hit them pretty hard.

Pitt Well Fortified.

If you have any doubts about the worthiness of the Panthers just stop and ponder over a few facts. The Pitt team whipped Notre Dame last fall by 12 to 0, and nobody outside of Pittsburgh expected that. That trimming wouldn't mean anything if it weren't for the fact that only three of Pitt's last year's regulars have vanished from the field of action. On top of this they have splendid reserves for every position.

One consolation for Notre Dame is that tradition, if nothing else, gives it an edge for Saturday. It isn't a Notre Dame habit to lose a football decision on its own lot. That's hoppened only twice in thirty years. Carnegie Tech did it in 1928 and Southern California in 1931. Even two consecutive losses to the same team are a rarity for the Fighting Irish. That also occurred in two instances—Carnegie in 1926 and 1928 and Southern California in 1931 and 1932.

LOOK OUT, WOLVERINES!

An Evolution in Hobbies: Politics No. 3 for Getz

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 26.—It is with regret that I read of the decision of George Getz, the famous Chicago amateur baboon fancier, to abandon baboonery and devote himself to another hobby—politics. Mr. Getz has been a man of hobbies ever since he became a millionaire in the coal business.

It is not for me to say that, as he hops from one hobby to another like a rider in the old pony express, he is riding down from clean and lofty altitudes into some steamy and malarial bogs, but I do not think his second hobby or his third one is an improvement on his first. His second hobby was the prize fight industry.

But first it was baboonery. Mr. Getz went to Chicago from some Pennsylvania Dutch settlement, strictly on his own, as a boy of ten or thereabouts, which would have been about the same time that Edward Riley Bradley, the J. P. Morgan of the gambling business in America, was lighting out on his own from the same general region at a like age.

Foremost Amateur Baboonist.

Possibly, without actually recognizing the longing, Mr. Getz always wanted a baboon of his own. As soon as he could afford to do so he established a private zoo at Holland, Mich., and made a trip to Africa to bring them back alive. He soon became one of the foremost American amateur baboonists, and there was distinction in his position because comparatively few of his fellowmen knew anything about these creatures beyond just what they had gathered from their idle reading of the Sunday supplements.

Thus Mr. Getz could speak freely on the subject, and I am certain that he enjoyed himself because I have seen his eyes glow with pleasure as he expatiated on his pets during train rides, following the world series or some other sport event from city to city.

Startles Tex Rickard.

Tex Rickard, the late prize fight promoter, had met many unusual characters in his time, but it took him quite a while to convince himself that Mr. Getz was real. Here was an independent millionaire who wished to devote himself to the uplift of his community and who actually believed that a prize fight between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney would contribute something to the culture of the city of Chicago. But when he heard Mr. Getz describe his private zoo, "and all them aoudads and umauts," as Mr. Rickard put it, he had a dreadful moment of misgiving.

Mr. Getz, himself, unintentionally contributed to Rickard's unhappy doubt when he referred to his keeper. But on inquiry Mr. Rickard learned that, for a fact, Mr. Getz did have a private zoo and that the keeper, whose mention had really given him a start, was an animal keeper employed on the place at Holland, Mich.

"But," Mr. Rickard said afterward, "what would any man think, after digging up a live one like Mr. Getz, with money to spend on a big fight, to hear him talking about a lot of pet baboons and rhinoceroses and then start telling about his keeper?"

Hobbies Become More Extreme.

It seems that once a man's taste in hobbies starts off in a certain direction

GROVE SOLD TO BOSTON RED SOX FOR $200,000?

Bishop, Unnamed Player in Deal, Report.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 27 (Friday). —(AP)—The Washington Post said today that Robert Moses [Lefty] Grove, star of the Philadelphia Athletics' pitching staff, has been sold to the Boston Red Sox.

While details of the trade were lacking, it was said to be an outright purchase by the Boston club, with reports that Max Bishop, veteran infielder, and another pitcher will be included by Manager Connie Mack in shipment to Boston. The cash return to the Athletics was estimated at $200,000.

The Post said details of the deal have been consummated, though announcement was not expected for several weeks. It added:

"Owner Yawkey's determination to place a winning team in Boston was expressed near the finish of the 1933 season coincident with his announcement that he was spending $350,000 to improve Fenway park in expectation of the larger crowds the Red Sox are likely to draw with a contending team in the American league race.

"The last three seasons have seen the Philadelphia club put much red ink in its ledgers even in its latest pennant winning year of 1931, when Mack declared that the team lost money despite its championship and a share in the world series."

BROWNS' FATE IN DOUBT

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Affairs of the money losing last place St. Louis Browns of the American league are to continue, at least temporarily, under the direction of L. C. McEvoy, vice president, and Rogers Hornsby, newly acquired manager.

This became known today with the filing of the will of Philip De Catesby Ball, late owner of the club, who spent thousands of dollars vainly attempting to create a winner. Executors named by Ball declined to say whether the Browns would be placed on the market.

Ball apparently made no provision for the management of the club after his death. No mention was made in the will of the St. Louis property or of minor league farms at Milwaukee and San Antonio, Tex.

Estate to Widow, Children.

After a few small bequests to relatives and friends, Ball left the remainder of his estate to his widow and two children. The value of the estate was not estimated.

Mrs. Harriet Ball, the widow, is to receive one-half of the property. Quarter shares are to go to the daughter, Mrs. William R. Cady, and the son, James P. Ball, Fayetteville, Ark. Mrs. Cady's portion was willed outright. The widow's and son's portions are to remain in trust, under the supervision of Louis B. Von Weise, and Miss Ella M. Jacoby, trustees.

Says They'll Carry On.

Speaking of the Browns after the will was read, Von Weise, Ball's close business associate, said, "We will try to do what we think Mr. Ball would have considered for the best interests of all concerned.

"Mr. McEvoy is out there at the office and we have Mr. Hornsby, and the club can function and will do so.

"The organization exists to handle the Browns and there is the board of directors to decide any questions that may arise."

The surviving members of the board are McEvoy, Walter Fritsch, Von Weise, and Sol Swarty. Ball owned 87 per cent of the stock and closely dictated all policies during his life.

Ignorant of Sinclair Deal.

Baseball men generally believe the club eventually will be sold. It was rumored, after Ball's death last Sunday, that the magnate had agreed with Harry F. Sinclair, wealthy oil man, to give him first chance to purchase the property.

McEvoy, however, said he knew nothing of such an agreement.

William Harridge, president of the American league, has offered to aid the family in disposing of the franchise if they wish to do so. He declared, however, that he did not believe the team would be moved from St. Louis.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

SOME time ago we opined that newspaper cameramen working at college football games had the most dangerous assignment in sport, what with coaches pushing them in the face and breaking their equipment for obstructing the view.

We were wrong. That honor belongs to reporters who cover heavyweight wrestling matches. An evening at the Stadium ringside is all you need to be convinced. If you sit within the first five rows, make sure that you are in perfect physical condition, because in all probability you will have to do some fast leg work. I can assure you it is not a pleasant experience to spend two hours ducking huge flying objects. The situation is akin to having the flying buttresses of Tribune Tower fall on your head in a bad dream.

GEORGE ZAHARIAS.

The first wrestling card I have seen in years was at the Stadium Wednesday night. Thanks to Harvey Woodruff, who gets around to these events once in a while, I sat back far enough to avoid danger. Although my brilliant ping pong victory over Babe Didrikson indicated I am in the pink, it would do me no particular good to catch one of those man mountains in my lap.

I enjoyed watching the defensive tactics of Charles Bartlett, who was up in the front line trenches getting the grunt by grunt story for TRIBUNE readers. Mr. Bartlett is a young man and he has that old speed. More important, he anticipates the offensive tactics of the wrestlers. When George Zaharias took a full windup preparatory to hurling Joe Devito over the ropes, Bartlett knew what to expect—a hard, fast one. There aparently is no deception in Mr. Zaharias' pitches. So the experienced reporters had no trouble escaping. They had more difficulty with Everett Marshall. Like Guy Bush, he mixes 'em up. First he would toss Ostapavitch out of the ring in a straight line. Then he would use a wide curve. There was considerable confusion in the press row while this bout was in progress.

Zaharias was the hit of the show. He is a disciple of the sports school which teaches that if you get enough people to hate you, your financial future is secure. It is obvious that Zaharias makes a deliberate bid for unpopularity, punching his opponent on the face and body, sneering at the crowd and crawling beyond the ropes at the slightest provocation. He realizes better than most of his fellow workmen that the fans want their hokum served with caviar. When he is the victim of a punishing hold he emits guttural notes intelligible only to jungle creatures and train dispatchers.

If you are a boxing fan, you will like wrestling. I saw more punching Wednesday night than I have in all the recent fights put together. It was noticeable that while the matmen can give it they can't take it. Whenever Marshall slugged Ostapavitch on the whiskers the latter would spin around like a Follies chorine, assume a facial expression that was hideously beautiful, and then drop to the canvas like a wounded antelope. This comes of long practice. Bronko Nagurski, a newcomer to the ranks, had no such technique.

While two or three preliminary bouts seemed pure fantasy, the McMillen-Stecher match may have been on the level. I regret I am unable to take my usually definite stand in the matter, but remember this was the first wrestling show I have seen in years. When they become as proficient as McMillen and Stecher, I confess I can't tell.

PRENN BARRED AS NAZIS RANK TENNIS STARS

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—The ranking list of German tennis players has just been issued by the Nazi authorities. It is led by Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Fräulein Hilde Krahwinkel.

Von Cramm gained first place among the German tennis players by virtue of the "Aryan ruling," which excluded Daniel Prenn, the ranking German tennis player of last year.

Name Gottschalk Assistant Swim Coach at Loyola

Jerry Gottschalk, former Loyola and Northwestern football and swimming star, yesterday was appointed assistant swimming coach at Loyola university. Gottschalk transferred to Northwestern when Loyola discontinued football in 1931 and last year won a letter as a Wildcat lineman.

FRESHMEN MAKE BADGERS LIMP THROUGH DRILL

Wisconsin Squad Bruised for Purdue Game.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's football squad today was given a comparatively light workout to enable the players to recover from injuries suffered during the week at the hands of a freshman squad which, with a fair knowledge of Purdue formations, played too roughly. Saturday's game with Purdue will be the Badgers' homecoming contest.

Injuries are numerous in the first team lineup. Leonard Lovshin, end, has a fractured nose; William Koenig, center, and Jerome Femal, end and tackle, have hip injuries; Marvin Peterson, half back, plays with his shoulder trussed; John Golemgske, tackle, has severe leg bruises, and George Dehnert, quarter back, is out for the season.

Edward Barry, Milwaukee, one of the best freshman players, suffered a fractured leg.

PURDUE POLISHES OFFENSE.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Coach Noble Kizer brought out the regular Thursday afternoon "polisher" here today as the Boilermakers completed preparation for their third successive Big Ten game away from home with Wisconsin at Madison Saturday. He applied it with a little more briskness than usual to the offensive as a result of reports of the Badger defensive strength against running plays.

In their final drill on the home lot Kizer called on the same combination that worked against Chicago, with Lowery and Haas alternating at left end, Capt. Dutch Fehring at left tackle, George Dennis at left guard Ed Skoronski at center, Fritz Febel at right guard, Ed Ungers at right tackle, and George Duggins at right end.

He likewise maintained the same "shifting" backfield, with Fred Hecker and Jim Carter shifting between half back and full back when they both were in the lineup, and Hecker holding down the left half berth when Butch Keegan entered. Paul Pardonner at quarter back and Duane Purvis at righ half back remained fixtures.

"Whip Wisconsin" was the slogan of a mammoth pep session tonight, at which Assistant Coach Glen Harmeson was the principal speaker.

The squad will leave here early tomorrow afternoon and spend the night in Chicago, continuing the journey to Madison early Saturday morning.

IOWA SQUAD CONFIDENT.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa football squad of 33 men will leave tomorrow morning for Minneapolis for the game against the Gophers Saturday.

Reports from Minneapolis that the odds were 10 to 6 on the home team failed to shake the confidence of the Hawkeyes. The squad is at full strength for the first time since the Northwestern game, and the players are convinced that they are at least one touchdown better than Minnesota.

Jim Dee, right end, and George Teyro, reserve quarter back, reported for the last home practice after being absent two days because of severe colds. Bill Secl, regular guard, who sustained a leg injury, also ran signals with the first team and will be in condition to start.

The Iowa squad is scheduled to arrive at Minneapolis at 3:50 Friday afternoon in time to work out in the Memorial stadium. Nearly 2,500 fans will follow the team, the largest Iowa crowd to attend an out of town game in several years. More than 2,300 tickets had been sold here.

ENDS — Bernie Page, John Lindenmeyer, Ray Fisher, Harold Swaney.
TACKLES — Jerry Foster, Fred Radiloff, Marvin McAllister, George Bueber, Rudolph Leytze, John Gallagher, Lloyd Hoffman.
GUARDS—Francis Schammel, Bill Secl, Wilmon Hass, Lumir Kouba, Bill Hawkins.
CENTERS—Capt. Tom Moore, Eugene Liggett, Harold Weber.
QUARTER BACKS — Joe Laws, George Teyro, Wilbur Wallace.
HALF BACKS — Dwight Hoover, Russ Fisher, Herman Schneidman, Mark Panther, Bob Rook, Richard Yordy, Joe Richards, Marvin Kuhn.
FULL BACKS—Dick Crayne, Bill Ash.

GOPHERS GET SERIOUS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Preparation for the homecoming battle with Iowa has begun in earnest in the Minnesota football camp. Coach Bernie Bierman made that plain toda., as he drove the Gophers at the hardest pace of the year. Several times he stopped play in order to send the boys on a sprint around the gridiron, his method of showing his dissatisfaction.

Despite the cold, the ticket sale continued briskly, indicating that the 45,000 mark would be reached.

QUITE A TACKLE.

Swedish Army Jumping Team Takes Lead; U. S. Riders 2d

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Sweden's army team celebrated Swedish day at the World's Fair horse show by advancing to first place in the international military jumping contest last night in the 124th field artillery armory. All three riders completed the difficult course without knocking down a bar.

Last night's contest was the third of the international series, the count now standing: Sweden, 75%; United States, 76½; Irish Free State, 89¾, and Czechoslovakia, 201½. The final event is scheduled for Sunday evening.

Order of Finish.

Last night's scores were: Sweden, 0; United States, 8; Irish Free State, 23, and Czechoslovakia 54¾.

Count Gustaf von Rosen, Capt. Ernst Hallberg, and Lieut. Gustave Nybaeus were the three Swedish riders who turned in faultless performances last night. Lieut. E. F. Thomson of the American team and Capt. C. B. Harty of the Irish Free State also completed the circuit without a mishap.

The event for three gaited saddle horses suitable for park ring developed into a spirited contest between Winning Ways, owned by Louis Kaiser of New York City, and Lady Virginia, the black mare which was purchased Wednesday by the Spindle Top stables of Beaumont, Tex., from Mrs. Locke Brown of Louisville. After close judging Winning Ways trotted out of the ring with the blue ribbon.

Chief of Spindle Top Wins.

RADIO DEFRAUDS GERMAN BOOKIES; FIVE ARRESTED

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—The German police today arrested five members of an international gang which specialized in frauds on horse race betting by the most modern methods.

The gang possessed its own secret radio system. Some of its members flashed the results of horse races in other countries to Germany, whereupon other members placed bets on horses that had won before the official results became generally known. The receiving set in Germany was built in an auto which the gang's members parked near one of the booking offices.

Arrests were made in Cologne, Augusburg and Berlin. The receiving auto set was likewise found and confiscated.

PARK CHILDREN FOR GAME, NEW FOOTBALL DEAL

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Mother and father can both go to next Saturday's football game between Michigan State college and Syracuse university, even if little Johnnie is too young to enjoy such contests.

The home economics department at the college is providing a "check room" service from 1 to 5 p. m. on the day of the game for the benefit of parents who don't care to expose their babies to several hours in the variable fall weather.

It is homecoming day at Michigan State.

Purdue to Honor Survivors of '03 Football Wreck

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Surviving members of the Purdue football squad which went through a railroad wreck 30 years ago will be honored guests at the annual homecoming Nov. 3 and 4. Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard observatory, will be the principal speaker. Purdue plays Carnegie Tech in football Nov. 4.

I. S. Osborne, Cleveland, O., was captain of the team wrecked in the west side railroad yards of Indianapolis Oct. 30, 1903, en route to play Indiana university. Lives of 17 students, including 11 players, were lost. He will be toastmaster at the alumni banquet. Special trophies will be presented to the '03 team members.

Between halves of the football game, returning members of the 1903 squad will be introduced. Among those who are expected to attend, besides Osborne, are:

Humbert, Former Illini Back, Promoted in Army

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Fred Humbert of Geneseo, Ill., full back on the University of Illinois team four years ago, has been promoted to rank of a first lieutenant in the United States cavalry reserve corps, according to announcement from Washington, D. C., today.

Forfeit Drops Mount Carmel to 2d Place

Mount Carmel, defending Catholic High school league champion, and leader in the east division, was relegated to second place yesterday when league directors announced that they had ordered its victory over St. Rita forfeited because of the use of an ineligible player in the game.

The player is Capt. John Fogel, rated as the leading center in the state last year, who was moved to full back by Coach Hod Oftsie this season. Fogel, investigation revealed, is 22 years old, two years over the age limit for prep competition. Announcement of Fogel's ineligibility was made a week ago, but the forfeiture, which places Loyola in the lead in the section, was not made known until yesterday.

Mount Carmel defeated St. Rita, 6 to 0, at Soldiers' field Oct. 8 in a charity game for the St. Bernard's hospital fund. Fogel did not play in Mount Carmel's games against Leo and Loyola. The champions won from Leo, 13 to 0, and played a 6 to 6 tie with Loyola.

The lead in the central section of the Public league will be at stake when Englewood and Lindblom meet at Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue tomorrow afternoon.

Hirsch and Harper, two of the ten new high schools, will meet at White City stadium Saturday morning.

Parker, having drawn a bye in the south section of the city league, will oppose Chicago Latin this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Addison and California streets.

Three games will be played in the Northwest High School conference today. Barrington will be at Libertyville; Palatine will meet Arlington Heights on the latter's field and Warren will play Bensenville at Bensenville.

Roosevelt and Tilden Tech will meet in the opening dual swimming meet of the season at the Roosevelt pool this afternoon. The meet will start at 4 o'clock.

RUSCH GETS 726 AS MINERALITES WIN 18TH IN ROW

The Mineralites of the Randolph Bowling league last night stretched their winning streak to eighteen games by sweeping their series with the Mell-O Ice Creams at the Randolph alleys. Scores of 1,025 and 1,071 accounted for easy victories, but the total of 1,003 was just good enough to win by three pins in the windup game. Rusch, with 246, 238, and 242 for a 726 series, led the Mineralites.

In the other matches Burlington Route won two from Anheuser-Busch, Curtiss Buy Jiminy took two from Chuckles Bowl, Live Stock Press won two from Von Thenen Café, Bowlers' Journal won two from Sunkist Pies, Wagner and Hanson took two from Litsinger Motors, Ault and Wiborg won two from Greyhound Lines, and Birk Brothers won three from Noble and Peterson.

Payne Defeats Abad in 10 Rounds at St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Cecil Payne, lightweight from Louisville, Ky., outpunched Davey Abad of Panama in a ten round bout tonight. The decision of the referee and two judges was unanimous. Payne weighed 135. Abad 132.

Driver Who Figured in Stribling Accident Fined

Macon, Ga., Oct. 26.—(AP)—R. V. Johnson, driver of the automobile that collided with the motorcycle of W. L. [Young] Stribling and fatally injured the boxer, today was found guilty of violating traffic regulations in another accident. He was fined $25.75. Johnson was brought to trial on charges filed after his automobile struck another car on Oct. 11, ten days after the Stribling accident. Mrs. Pearl Sargent was injured. His attorneys filed notice of appeal.

GIANTS ARRIVE THIS MORNING TO PLAY BEARS

Chicagoans Extend Drill to 3½ Hours.

The New York Giants football squad which will meet the Chicago Bears Sunday afternoon at Wrigley field will arrive at the Union station over the Pennsylvania railroad at 8 o'clock this morning.

Immediately after practice yesterday morning the infield at Wrigley field was covered to help keep the field in the best possible condition for the game.

Work on Pass Defense.

Coach Halas has tacked an extra half hour onto the usual three hour daily drill, and even then the Bears are in no hurry to leave. The extra time is being devoted exclusively to forward pass defense against the Giants' plays, which were forwarded early this week by a scout especially assigned to the job in the east.

Scouting is at a minimum generally in the big league, but in this case, with Harry Newman showing here for the first time, any information in advance was deemed important.

Highland Park Eleven to Meet Lake Forest Sunday

The Highland Park Young Men's club football team will meet the Lake Forest Young Men's club squad in the first of two games at the Deerfield-Shields High school field in Highland Park Sunday afternoon. The second contest will be played at Lake Forest Thanksgiving day.

Hey, Skinney! Skating on Coliseum Ice Tomorrow

The Coliseum will be opened for public ice skating tomorrow morning. Amateur hockey games, carnivals and figure skating events are planned for the winter season. According to Emil Iverson, president of the newly formed Chicago Amateur Hockey association, speed events, which will feature world's champions, also will be held.

BRUGGMAN WINS OVER KULASKI IN C. Y. O. BOXING

North Side Trials Close Tonight at Loyola.

Twenty-five more entrants in the third annual amateur boxing tournament of the Catholic Youth organization were eliminated last night at Loyola university gymnasium in the second round of the preliminary bouts.

The north district trials, which got under way Wednesday, will be concluded tonight at Loyola with twenty-eight contests, after which sixteen boxers in class A and as many in class B will remain for the quarter-finals at C. Y. O. center on Nov. 20.

Bruggman Is Winner.

The battles last night, which consisted of three rounds at two minutes each, provided excitement from the time Joseph Solack beat Norbert Pye in the first bout at 7:30 until the finish.

Probably the best fight of the evening was that between Nestor Bruggman, St. Jerome parish welterweight, and Ernest Kulaski of St. Genevieve. Bruggman, one of the best at his weight on the north side, received the decision, but many in the crowd thought Kulaski had won.

Three in Heavyweight Class.

Jules Bracke, St. Mary, Lake Forest, and Terry Bannon, St. Clement, are favored to qualify as the two heavyweight representatives of the north section. The only other heavyweight is Joseph Fett of St. John Berchman. Two of this trio will meet tonight. The other will draw a bye. Last night's results:

CLASS B.

112 pound class—Joseph Solack, St. Mary's Training school, beat Norbert Pye, St. Anastasia [3]; Joseph Hackett, St. Ignatius, stopped William Scully, St. Mary's T. S. [1]; Lawrence McAdams, Lady of Victory beat Ted Luckasit, St. Hyacinth [3].

126 pound class—Mickey O'Brien, St. Mary's of the Lake, beat Albert Klinders, St. Viator [3]; William Schroka, St. Viator, beat Jim Disciacmo, St. Alphonsus [3]; Leonard Nuzzo, St. Mary's, stopped Charles Kelly, Lady of Victory [1]; Joseph Cominsky, St. Mary, beat Robert Smith, St. Peter [3].

CLASS A.

BICYCLE RIDERS ARRIVE TODAY FOR 6 DAY RACE

Six day bicycle riders from all over the world will arrive in Chicago this morning from New York. They are scheduled to reach the Union station at 8:30. The cyclists will make the Morrison hotel their headquarters until the race gets under way, after which their address will be the Chicago Stadium for a week, and it will be in the Stadium that they will do all their eating and sleeping, living in small bunks at the trackside.

The riders this morning will go to the Stadium and get their bikes ready for the grind of next week and also hope to get a chance this afternoon to try out the new ten lap saucer.

While the majority of the bicycle fans appear to think that Alfred Letourner and Torchy Peden look like the strongest team in the race, easterners who have witnessed Norman Hill race in outdoor competition all summer long will tell you that the Belgian-American team of Gerard Debaets and Hill should be the best pair in the field.

A one hour amateur team race will precede the six day race on Sunday night, with twenty teams competing, made up of all the leading amateurs here in the city.

GIANTS SELECT MIAMI BEACH AS TRAINING SITE

New York, Oct. 26.—[Special.]—After a lapse of seven years, during which they did their training in various climes, the New York Giants will return to Florida next spring to prepare themselves for the 1934 National league pennant race.

Confirmation of this was made today by President Charles A. Stoneham following a report earlier in the day that Manager Bill Terry had signed a contract to train his world's champions at Miami Beach. Terry has been in Florida for several weeks scouting for a suitable training site after plans had been abandoned to establish quarters at Phoenix, Ariz.

There will be, however, no conflict with the Dodgers, who trained at Miami last spring and who hold an option on their contract to return there next year. According to Bob Quinn, business manager of the Dodgers, no decision has yet been made as to where the Brooklyn club will train.

Phagan and Sherman in Fight Tonight

Johnny Phagan, west side welterweight, and Morrie Sherman of Detroit, Mich., will meet in a ten round fight tonight at Cicero stadium, 20th street and 52d avenue. In the event that Sherman's layoff since last February has not impaired his ability, Phagan may receive his hardest test.

Davey Day, west side lightweight, and Lou Novarro will clash in the six round semi-final. Barney Ross, lightweight champion, will second Day. He is a stablemate of Ross. Other bouts:

Steve Selgrat vs. Willie Davies [4].
Einar Hedquist vs. Sammy Adams [4].
Frank Keevil vs. Eddie Chinski [4].
Carl Scalise vs. Mickey Joy [4].

Art Donovan, Joliet, Ill., will meet Paddy Waltier in one of two feature bouts at Rainbo Fronton, Lawrence avenue and Clark street, tonight. Waltier replaces Mennen Kumis, who was taken off the card because of the death of his father. Joey Kleko and Pete Verri, welterweights, box in the other feature bout. Supporting matches are:

Geno Salvatore and Fred Hawkette [4].
Charlie Young and James Carr [4].
John Holda and Fred Ledebuhr [wrestling].

Young Stuhley, Kewanee, Ill., and Frank Misko, Saginaw, Mich., middleweights, are paired for a six round contest tonight at Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue. Lenny Cohen and Jimmy Ellopoulos, bantamweights, meet in a five round match. Another will bring together Adolph Winter and Walter Madey, heavyweights. Bobby Millsapp faces Lou Bolton and Tommy Bruce boxes George Habel at four rounds. Lou Talaber will wrestle Jack Zaravich.

Bill Connell, Monmouth, Ill., welterweight, is scheduled to arrive today for his eight round encounter with Solly Dukelsky at Marigold garden Monday. . . . Amateur boxers from Our Lady of Sorrows parish and St. Philip High school will clash in a dual meet tonight at St. Philip gymnasium, Jackson boulevard and Kedzie avenue. Twelve matches are scheduled. . . . Henry Rothier, welterweight, has recovered from a cut over his eye. . . . Joe Schweitzer, Milwaukee Boxing club matchmaker, was in town yesterday seeking matches for a show on Nov. 20. . . . Bud Taylor, Indiana promoter, is due today from Terre Haute to obtain talent for three shows next month, one at Terre Haute Nov. 10 and the others at Fort Wayne and Indianapolis. . . . F. M.

DE PAUL PICKS 31 FOR KALAMAZOO GAME TOMORROW

Coaches Jim Kelly and Ben Connor of De Paul university today will lead 31 members of the football squad to Kalamazoo, Mich., where they will meet Western State Teachers' college tomorrow afternoon. De Paul will be seeking its fifth consecutive victory against Western State.

Despite the rain, De Paul went through a long scrimmage yesterday. Gene Cowhey, reserve center, suffered an injured leg in the workout and is not expected to be able to participate in tomorrow's game:

The 31 players who will make the trip to Kalamazoo are as follows:

W. G. Wise Is Re-elected Olympia Fields President

William G. Wise, Chicago attorney, was elected to his third term as president of the Olympia Fields Country club at the annual meeting last night in the Hotel Sherry. Other officers reëlected included Rodney T. Badger, vice president; C. C. Dana, secretary, and O. P. Alford, treasurer. The club will remain open during the winter for trap shooting, tobogganing and archery golf.

THINGS YOU MAY NOT KNOW About FOOTBALL STARS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO football team, with a lineup consisting largely of sophomores, claims what is undoubtedly the youngest squad in the Western conference, their combined ages averaging 19 years. Eight of the eleven regulars are under the 20 mark, the varsity lining up as follows: Wells, end, 18; Deem, tackle, 21; Perretz, guard, 19; Patterson, center, 19; Maneikis, guard, 24; Bush, tackle, 18; Womer, end, 19; Flinn, quarter back, 19; Berwanger, left half, 19; Zimmer, right half, 20, and Nyquist, full back, 18.

Among the leading reserves are: Ends, Langley, 20, and Baker, 20; tackles, Rice, 20, and Walter, 20; guards, Rapp, 21, and Gold, 18; centers, Peterson, 18, and Cullen, 21; backs, Wallace, 20; Sahlin, 23; Smith, 21; Berg, 21; Hatter, 20; Lang, 18; Watrous, 22, and Siess, 20.

Of these, the elders, rightfully enough, are the most interesting off the field. The 200 pound Maneikis, the salvation of many a Sunday editor frantically making a last minute search for a fighting football face, fulfills the promise of his photos when he's playing, being the relentless type who will try to take out three opposing line men on the same play. Out of school for several years, during which he married one of his former teachers at Lindblom High school, Walter's chief interests are threefold—Mrs. Maneikis, football and the eighteenth century novel. He attends the school of education, and aims to be a teacher. He has numerous theories on pedagogy, including coaching.

Tarzan Deem Born to Be a Good Tackle.

Robert [Tarzan] Deem, the 21 year old Californian, looks as though nature had meant him to be a tackle, and he was merely complying with the original scheme of things. He has one of those well nigh perfect physiques, summer duty on his native sands as a life guard probably being responsible. Deem gave up credit from a Long Beach, Cal., junior college to come to Chicago as a freshman last year, and is now knocking off A's in a majority of his exams.

In his first week against the varsity last year, he knocked out three regulars, and when the varsity chastised him to the extent of nine stitches in his upper lip, he came back and asked for more. He was of the same mind in the intramural boxing bouts last year when the referee wanted to stop his bout with Ewald Nyquist, the present varsity full back, who was giving Deem a handsome shellacking. After the bout he stepped into the wrestling ring and won the heavyweight title. He is 6 feet tall and weighs 196.

Like Deem, five other Maroons hail from Long Beach, Cal., and a sixth from a neighboring town. The Long Beachers are Wayne Rapp, Barton Smith, Rainwater Wells, Edward Thompson, and Gordon Peterson. Merritt Bush, tackle, hails from Fullerton, Cal. Rapp led the coast invasion of the Midway, and is now a volunteer missionary, convincing nonathletes that they ought to "go east to school." Rapp heard about Chicago through Norman Baker, a "C" man of about '07, now athletic director at Long Beach Poly High.

The Maroon captain, Pete Zimmer, is an all around person. For three years he was the town hero of La Grange, Ill., where he collected eight letters in football, baseball and track. Pete is a good student and does expert analyses of preceding games for the Daily Maroon. Years ago Pete and A. R. Stagg agreed that girls and football do not mix, and despite the fact that he is a handsome lad, he will have none of the campus belles.

Vin Sahlin Learned Stride Winning Silver Skates.

Vin Sahlin, the veteran quarter, first came to fame in the Schurz High back field and as a double winner of THE TRIBUNE Silver Skates, both junior and intermediate. He retains a skater's stride in eluding tacklers. After flunking out in his first quarter at Chicago, Vin went to Lewis institute, where he made an excellent scholastic record, and so reëntered the university. He has done very well in class since then.

Ewald Nyquist, the youngest regular at 18, is practically unbreakable. His parents came from Sweden and settled in Rockford, Ill., a year before he was born. He is a diligent worker, a competent stenographer, and rises at 6 a. m. to study. With Rainwater Wells, varsity end, he was a campus policeman last year, escorting co-eds from Harper library across the Midway at night. Wells, who is tied with William Shakespeare of Notre Dame for the odd name of the football year, gets his peculiar name from his mother, whose name was Isabel Hall Rainwater. His full name is Hall Rainwater Wells.

Jay Berwanger, most talked about and most promising player of the squad, shared Iowa state prep honors two years ago with Dick Crayne, new Hawkeye back. He is a triple threat artist and looks like a comer in the decathlon. Iowa universities sought him at great length, but he was something of a Chicago legacy. His father has been for years a blacksmith in the ship building yards at Dubuque owned by Ira Davenport, one of the greats of Maroon track history. Jay also had worked for Davenport during the summer, and since he is a good student, with a desire to enter a good medical school, it was decided to send him here.

An Evolution in Hobbies of George Getz

Mr. Getz's interest progressed, upward or downward, as you prefer, from baboonery to pugilism. In the course of a year or two he had become a prize fight commissioner in Chicago, concerning himself with all that infinite variety of larcenies and chiselings which make the prize fight industry what it is.

To a man who had breathed with pleasure the odors of a private zoo and studied the social life of the baboon, the aroma of the prize fight racket and the ethics of the profession were not too abrupt. He had had some preparation, anyway, and he plainly enjoyed his commissionership, there being no accounting for hobbies.

Perhaps politics is the next natural step in the sequence, although it does seem a pretty long one to me. I venture that in politics many a time he will long for the society of his baboons and a breath of the fine, clean fragrance of his monkey house.

WINOOKA TO TRY IT AGAIN TODAY IN LAUREL RACE

Laurel, Md., Oct. 26.—(AP)—In an effort to vindicate Winooka, the Australian "wonder horse," which was badly beaten in yesterday's special international event here, Manager Rufe Naylor announced today he would race Winooka tomorrow in a six furlong sprint event.

In the field opposing Winooka will be J. W. Y. Martin's Dark Hope, Sylvester W. Labrot's Springsteel, and the Greentree stable's Curacao.

Fumble Rule Splits Coast Grid Coaches

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Throughout the far west today football coaches took sides on the suggestion to modify the present rule which prevents a defensive team running with the ball after recovering a fumble.

While those favoring a return to the days of the free ball were in the majority, the rule that went into effect three years ago had its supporters, a coast wide survey disclosed.

Amos Alonzo Stagg, a member of the National Rules committee, was outspoken in his belief the game can get along without this particular law.

"Pushed Through by East."

"I have never been strong for the rule," he said. "It was pushed through rather hard a few years ago by the Atlantic coast people, supposedly for the purpose of encouraging lateral passing and to prevent injuries. It has not particularly helped lateral passing, and I don't know of any particular instance of anyone getting hurt by running after recovering a fumbled ball."

With the assertion the rule was the direct result of influence by coaches using reverse plays, Howard Jones of Southern California also cast his vote with Lou Little of Columbia who yesterday advocated defensive players be allowed to run with a fumbled ball.

"All it has done is protect loose handling of the ball," Jones said. "A defensive error allows a touchdown so why shouldn't mishandling of the ball cause the offensive team to suffer for it?"

Ingram Leads Proponents.

Proponents of the rule were led by Coach Bill Ingram of California who while "realizing it takes a lot of suspense out of the game" declared "it placed particular emphasis on good play." "I am satisfied it has worked out all right," Ingram said.

Here are the opinions of other western coaches and officials:

George Varnell, Seattle, former member of the National Rules committee: "I favor elimination of the fumble rule as it should result in more action in games."

Coach Edward [Slip] Madigan, St. Mary's: "I favor making it a free ball all around, in scrimmage or lateral pass fumbles or blocked kicks. The game has lost some of its best thrills since the rule was passed."

It's o. k.—Lieb.

Coach Tom Lieb, Loyola, Los Angeles: "That fumble rule made teams which otherwise played a defensive game and waited for the chance to score on the breaks, develop an offense. The game seems to be getting along all right as it is."

Coach Claude [Tiny] Thornhill, Stanford: "Make it a free ball and let everybody run with it. My team has been doing a lot of fumbling, but I'd like to see the rule dumped out, anyhow."

Coach Maurice [Clipper] Smith, Santa Clara: "The present fumble rule has done a lot to impair the eagerness and aggressiveness of players on the defense."

Coach Lawrence [Spud] Lewis, San Fancisco: "The present fumble rule is satisfactory. It encourages coaches to work out and gamble on new and intricate plays that call for much handling of the ball."

Joe Dorney, Once John L. Sullivan's Manager, Is Dead

Joe Dorney was found dead in his apartment at 2238 West Madison street yesterday morning. Dorney in recent weeks had appeared fully recovered from a heart attack he suffered last June.

Born in Chicago 68 years ago, Dorney began his newspaper career on the old Chicago Inter Ocean. Later he joined THE TRIBUNE and after leaving Chicago worked on newspapers in several other cities.

He was the author of several books including the life history of John L. Sullivan, former world's heavyweight champion. Dorney was Sullivan's theatrical manager shortly after the latter had won the title.

2 Blackhawk Teams Meet in Game Tonight

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—University of Illinois faculty and students and the natives of the corn belt will get their first glimpse of hockey tomorrow night when two teams of the Chicago Blackhawks meet on the university rink. One team will be the west and the other the east.

The eastern aggregation will have Joe Starke in the net, Lionel Conacher and Art Coulter on defense, with Jack Leswick, Bill Kendall, and Louis Trudel operating one line and Helge Bostrom, Art Merrill, and Wally Breneman playing on another.

Charley Gardiner, goal; Taffy Abel and Roger Jenkins, defense, with a first line consisting of Paul Thompson, Johnny Gottselig and Lolo Conture and a second of Donie McFadyen, Tommy Cook, and Mush March will comprise the western team.

General Johnson figures that men now out of work previously had a job in some Industry. He's trying to make arrangements through N. R. A. to put some of these men back to work at their old job. That sounds simple and sensible.
President Roosevelt now asks each Industry to get together and make plans to solve its own unemployment problem in its own line of business. This means to do our share we must give more men a job at fair wages, by cutting the hours of employment without cutting the pay of our present employees. That's the guts of the National Recovery Act—all the rest is trimmings!
The program laid out by each industry and submitted to the President for his approval is called a "Code." That's all there is to it. You don't need a Brain Trust to explain it.
The N. R. A. is as simple as A. B. C. It means putting men back to work P. D. Q.
If you pay the Farmer more for a Calf, we've got to pay the Tanner more for a Calfskin. Everybody knows that if a Shoe is made of Leather, and the Leather Market goes up and Labor costs more, you've got to pay more for the same Quality Standards in the finished shoe.
But General Johnson has asked us to keep the Price as low as we can—just as long as we can—and that's just what we are doing.
And just as long as our present supply of leather lasts we will keep our present price, and pass along to you the savings represented by the difference between the cost of leather our factory owned or ordered before the jump, and the actual replacement price in today's market.

COPAIN GETS A BREAK AT START AND PAYS $24.46

Halts March of Favorites at Sportsman's Park.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Despite some cold, disagreeable, rainy weather the favorites were doing pretty well by their followers at Sportsman's park yesterday afternoon until the Burnham purse, engaging a band of stylish 3 year olds, came along.

The juveniles were to battle it out at six and one half furlongs.

Then things began to happen. Starter Tom Brown got the field off to a ragged start. The two heavily backed choices, Luna Bright and Pomparagon, took considerably the worst of it on the get-away. The long shots were all away winging.

The result:

Copain took the track after the sloppy start and dashed on to victory to pay his backers $24.46 for each $2 they invested. After a terrific uphill struggle Luna Bright managed to get second money by sticking her nose way out on the final stride. Husker H. was third.

Pomparagon Gets Nowhere.

Pomparagon, probably the best bred horse in the race, finished far out of the money. He was never able to recover from the bad start.

It was a bitter blow to the favorite players who had been rolling up quite a bit of profit when the heavily backed Polas Flag, Monks First, Lofty Heights and Flag Bearer won the first four races.

Almost every known track condition prevailed during the afternoon. The early races were run off on a fast track. When the rain peppered down the track turned to slow, and when Copain won the feature the course was muddy. Later on, while the last two events were being run, the track was heavy.

Mr. Allen Fooled Again.

Joe Allen, the Cincinnati plunger, who is playing the No. 1 horse in the second and the No. 1 nag in the third in the daily double had all his cronies calling him Mr. Money Bags for a few minutes again yesterday.

Mr. Allen's first No. 1 horse—Monks First—won the second race quite handily. His No. 1 horse in the third was Lillian Tobin from Ald. John [the Bath] Coughlin's stable. Lillian Tobin cut out a dizzy early pace and was well in front when she passed the stands and club house on the first whirl around the track.

Mr. Allen was ready to make a dash for the railroad station and pick up the reservations he has for a tour of the winter racing centers. His double was to pay into the hundreds should Lillian Tobin win.

Lillian Gives Up.

All of a sudden Lillian Tobin lost her desire to run fast. Her strides shortening and heading into the stretch she was faltering so badly her rivals started running past her. Lofty Heights was the winner, Spero challenged gamely down the stretch and was second, and Dark Colleen finished third.

So once again Mr. Allen has delayed his start for the southland turf centers to escape the cold and the rain and the snow.

WINTER IN NORTH DRIVES HONKERS INTO ILLINOIS

Large Flocks of Ducks Follow Geese.

BY BOB BECKER.

When winter cracked the whip this week and piled up the snow in the north country it also piled up the ducks and the geese on the flyways. Therefore, Mr. Waterfowl Hunter, what is commonly called the big push in the autumn migration now is on. Big flocks of honking geese are winging into Illinois. And with the honkers are coming all kinds of ducks.

From Cairo, Ill., comes the word "More ducks and geese are coming in all the time. The first flight of brant arrived early in the week." At Cairo the migrating waterfowl are going to find one of the finest boarding houses imaginable.

State Plants Wheat.

On the big Illinois refuge [Horseshoe lake area] the state planted hundreds of acres in wheat. The land is close to the lake itself. The wheat crop hasn't been touched. Every grain of it was raised for the birds, which will be able to sit down in the middle of this spread and eat all they want.

Word from one section of the Illinois river indicates that the duck population there also has been increased this week. It usually takes a real storm to the north to push a big flight of mallards into the Illinois river bottoms.

After the flight several days are required for these birds to get what the duck hunter describes as located. The new birds cruise around, find ponds or holes where they want to feed, and become more or less regular in their flights and habits.

Make Plans Now.

Northern Illinois sportsmen looking forward to a duck shoot in the Illinois river bottoms should begin now to line up their reservations. After Nov. 1 the best shooting is bound to be found in the various waterfowl concentration areas, along both the Illinois and the Sangamon.

Near Cairo they do not open up on the wild geese until shortly after the first of the month. At least not until the flocks of honkers have begun to work the wheat fields and the sand bars.

Loyola Basketball Team Holds First Practice

Coach Lenny Sachs yesterday held the first basketball practice at Loyola university. Three regulars were lost by graduation and neither the reserves nor the freshman team promise outstanding replacements. Capt. James Hogan, guard, and Harold Motz, center, are the returning regulars. James Frisch, Robert Ohlenroth, Joseph Schuessler, Bernard Ash, and William Blenner, reserves last year, will make the strongest bid for places.

WALLACE WARNS PACKERS NOT TO CUT HOG PRICES

Hears Process Tax Is to Be Passed On.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—Disciplinary action against the packers if they do not cease their opposition to the farm adjustment administration's corn and hog program was threatened today by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace.

Appealing to the country's farmers to support the AAA's campaign, Secretary Wallace explained that the packers were broadcasting criticisms of the program.

"Word comes to us from the corn belt," he said, "that the impression is being spread abroad that the packers are going to drop the price of hogs 50 cents per hundredweight on Nov. 5, at the time the processing tax is put on. We hope that it may not be necessary for us to have something of a showdown with the packers during November."

Threatens Several Actions.

Wallace refused to enlarge upon his statement. Informally, his aides said afterwards he had under consideration three courses of action in event hog prices were depressed: First, wholesale licensing of the packing industry under which he could assume virtual control of the hog marketing and processing industry; second, increasing the tax rate proportionate to the fall in market prices, with the additional proceeds to be used for increasing benefit payments to farmers; and third, requesting an investigation by the attorney general to determine whether anti-trust laws were being violated.

The hog-corn plan contemplates a flow of $350,000,000 in benefits to producers during the next 16 months with reduction of corn production by 20 per cent and hog output by 25 per cent. Wallace said the campaign to obtain agreements from farmers to cut production should soon begin.

Asks Farmers to Be Patient.

In his discussion of the present status of the farm recovery campaign, Secretary Wallace appealed to the farmers to be patient and not to demand that the administration shift at once into high gear in going up the hill ahead of it.

"During the last two months we have seen the income of farmers drop down from the level reached in July, although the total pay rolls of labor continued the increase begun last spring," he said. "This drop in farm income was accompanied by an increase in the prices of things that farmers buy.

"Naturally, the farmers have become disgruntled. I don't blame them in this, but I would call their attention to the fact that there has always been an exceedingly close relationship between the total money paid to labor and the total money received by farmers, especially for live stock and live stock products. Back in May, June, and July, the total income of farmers—not uniformly, but generally in the nation—increased far more rapidly than the labor pay roll.

Predicts More for Farmer.

"I think that some of the recent increase in wages has been due to the impetus which was given business by that temporary mild suggestion of coming farm prosperity which we enjoyed early last summer. In like manner, I am now convinced that the rise in total pay rolls will increase, after a few months, the amounts paid by the laboring men for butter, pork, beef and milk."

He made his reference to possible punitive action against the packers and concluded:

"I appeal to the level headed, sensible, hard working people of the middle west to bend their energies to put over the corn-hog program in spite of the opposition of the packers and the criticism of those who ask for $10 hogs tomorrow. We have a job to do, and that job is to get the same kind of a sign-up from corn and hog farmers as we have already obtained from the cotton farmers of the south, the wheat farmers of the west, and the tobacco farmers of the southeast.

"If we cannot develop a more decent, cooperative spirit all the way round, we may find it necessary again to descend into the valley of the shadow to learn from even greater suffering than we have thus far had."

In connection with the plan announced yesterday to loan farmers 50 cents per bushel on farm warehoused corn, George N. Peek, AAA administrator, today announced that the interest on the loans will be 4 per cent.

PACKERS DENY REPORTS.

The Institute of American Meat Packers last night sent the following telegram to Secretary Wallace:

"We feel sure that your address as reported today was based on information which is inaccurate. You have been misinformed. Although because of the perishable nature of its products this industry was not able to endorse the plan, it submits that nevertheless its coöperation in plans sponsored by the department in the last few months is adequate evidence of its desire to coöperate with the government wherever it is consistently possible."

Reserve Banks Ease Up Buying Federal Bonds

BY HOWARD WOOD.

(Statistics on page 28, column 7.)

With Washington's new move to raise prices by pegging the price of gold well under way the administration's program of swelling government credit by directing the federal reserve banks to buy government bonds was soft pedaled in the week ended Wednesday night, weekly reserve bank figures released last night indicate.

The 12 reserve banks bought during the week additional government bonds totaling only 25 millions. This compares with 31 millions in the preceding week and 35 millions per week for several weeks prior to last week.

* *

Whether this tapering off of bond buying by the reserve banks means that the old "reflation" program is no longer deemed essential to the recovery program or whether the slowing up of the bond buying scheme has been due to friction within the reserve system ranks there is no means of ascertaining from the figures.

There have been rumors that the directors of various reserve banks have been gagging at the amount of government bonds they have been called upon to absorb and that they have been resisting the treasury and the reserve board.

* *

Particularly noticeable has been the decrease in the government bond purchases by the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago. Up until three weeks ago the Chicago bank had been buying about 13 millions of bonds per week, or approximately a third of the load taken on by the 12 reserve banks combined.

Two weeks ago the Chicago bank suddenly stopped buying, although the other 11 reserve banks bought the customary 35 millions. Last week the Chicago bank bought only 8 millions out of a total of 31 millions for the 12 banks combined. In the week ended Wednesday the Chicago bank bought only 2 millions of the 25 million total for the 12 banks combined.

* *

The Chicago reserve bank is in the strongest position of any of the 12 banks and has been since the moratorium. At the time of the banking holiday in March the Chicago bank was able to rush support to the New York reserve bank, when the latter's ratio of gold coverage got below the limit required by law.

The Chicago bank has 946 million dollars worth of gold in its vaults, ranking second among the twelve banks in the system. It gained 18 millions in the week ended Wednesday. Its ratio of gold to total deposit and note liabilities is 72.7 per cent, the highest ratio of any bank in the system.

This strength of the Chicago bank caused it to be singled out to bear the brunt of the bond buying "reflation" drive that has been under way for several months. Reserve banks, however, are owned by their member banks, not by the government, although they are subject to certain orders given out by the politically appointed federal reserve board in Washington.

* *

Reports of member banks in New York and Chicago released last night showed that in the week ended on Wednesday they reduced their holdings of government bonds 49 millions, or nearly twice the amount of the reserve bank purchases. Chicago banks hold 17 millions fewer "governments" than a week ago and New York banks 32 millions less.

The volume of commercial loans in New York and Chicago showed little change for the week. There was no change whatever in Chicago and in New York member banks cut their commercial loans 8 millions.

* *

In both cities the member banks were piling up additional excess reserves. A decrease of 84 millions in brokers' loans partially accounted for a total drop for the week of 112 millions in the outstanding credit of New York banks.

In New York there was an indicated drop of about 66 millions in gross deposits of member banks and in Chicago a decline of about 4 millions.

The report for the 12 reserve banks combined showed a drop of about 1½ millions in their aggregate gold holdings, a drop of 33 millions in circulation of federal reserve notes (90 per cent legal gold backing) and a rise of 8 millions in circulation of "asset" currency [no gold backing].

AMERICAN GOLD OUTPUT SHOWS SHARP UPTURN

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—American gold production rose sharply in September, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported today. Output totaled 271,000 fine ounces, the largest in recent years, compared with 181,000 in August. The total for September, 1932, was 246,000 ounces.

The rise placed the United States, for the month, in second place among the gold producing nations of the world, displacing Canada. South Africa comes first. Usually this country is third.

COPPER OFFERED FOR 8¼ CENTS; LEAD ADVANCED

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Domestic copper demand was light today with some metal available at 8¼ cents a pound, compared with 8½ cents yesterday. Producers held firmly at 9 cents a pound delivered. Foreign buying was quiet. European destinations at 7.90 to 7.975 cents a pound, c. i. f., Hamburg, Havre, and London.

The American Smelting and Refining company today advanced the price of lead 0.55 cent, to 4.30 cents a pound. A similar increase was posted yesterday.

Minor Officials Now Big Shots, Editor Finds

The army of bureaucratic officials set up in Washington to run business and industry under the NRA measure their importance by the number of employé under them, Warren C. Platt, editor of the National Petroleum News, said yesterday in an address before the marketing division of the American Petroleum association. The bureaucrat with six stenographers and clerks is a "big shot" compared with the fellow that has two, but compared with the chap that has twelve persons working under him, however, he is quite insignificant, he said.

In the present national emergency many of these minor government officials exercise more real power than the heads of large business and industrial organizations, the editor declared.

Business Men Supposed to Advise.

Theoretically, he explained, the bureaucrats are supposed to listen to the advice of the business men. It is only a matter of time, however, until such advice will have less and less weight, he declared.

When the opportunity is presented to any man to exercise authority the temptation is too great to resist, Platt observed, particularly when the ordinary penalties of failure are suspended.

"Would you not be inclined to use that authority," he asked, "when you do not have to account to stockholders for profit and losses? The bodies to which such a man owes his job are those who deal only with the votes of the 'common people' and not with those who earn dividends."

Consider Technical Problems.

The final day of the institute's convention yesterday was occupied principally with division meetings. Discussions of technical trade problems were held by several groups. Nearly 2,000 oil men attended the convention which was the institute's fourteenth annual session.

Platt expressed the belief that the oil industry will never get out from under the heavy hand of the law. Government officials, he declared, "are abusing and will abuse" their authority. "Never before," he said, "has labor been so ruthless as since the start of the code construction."

Edward L. Bernays, a New York press agent, warned the oil men not to fall into the misconception that the new partnership of government, industry, and labor is a "one party policy." It represents a fundamental change in the capitalistic system, he said.

W. H. Graves of the Packard Motor Car company, in a report on automobile motor oils, included a warning to motorists that most of their starting troubles in cold weather are due t otheir use of oils which are too heavy.

PACKARD MOTOR NETS $622,785 IN THIRD QUARTER

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Net earnings of Packard Motor company for the third quarter ended Sept. 30 were $622,785 compared with a loss of $1,903,671 a year ago, the company reported today. For the nine months losses were $487,804, compared with a loss of $4,416,798 in the same period last year.

Alvan Macauley, president, said third quarter earnings and sales were "especially gratifying" as the third and fourth quarters in the automotive industry normally show a decreasing volume of business.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. Lifts Dividend to $1 Basis

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Pittsburgh Plate Glass company today declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents, placing its stock on a $1 annual basis compared with 60 cents previously. It is payable Jan. 2 to holdings of record Dec. 9.

DOLLAR HOLDS STEADY IN FOREIGN EXCHANGE DESPITE GOLD BOOST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 26.—The dollar in foreign exchange continued today to show its independence of the government's new monetary policy. Although the price of $31.54 an ounce for gold fixed by the RFC placed the domestic gold value of the dollar at 65.53 cents, 38 points less than yesterday, throughout the day a valuation of around 67 cents was placed upon it by the foreign exchange market and the closing gold value of the money, based on the franc, was 66.85 cents, unchanged from Wednesday's final price.

Dealings in foreign exchange were slack, with little commercial demand apparent and with speculative interests indisposed to follow up their recent bearish operations against the dollar. Sterling ranged between $4.76 and $4.73½ and closed one cent higher at $4.74½. The franc moved between 5.89½ cents and 5.85 cents and finished unchanged at 5.86 cents. The Canadian dollar was unchanged at 98.06 cents.

The price of $31.54 an ounce for gold announced today by the RFC was 18 cents higher than the quotation for the first day. It was 48 cents above the price for gold bullion fixed by the London market which, on the basis of this morning's dollar value of the pound sterling, about $4.75, was equal to $31.06.

This was a decline from the previous day when the London price, at the then rate of exchange, equaled $31.09. The London market fixed a price of 130s 9-12d an ounce, which was a rise of 8½d over the price posted on Wednesday morning. The fact that the dollar equivalent of the London price fell today although the sterling price had been advanced was due to the relatively higher value of the dollar this morning, compared with Wednesday morning.

CONSOLIDATED GAS PROFIT OFF; CUTS DIVIDEND

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Consolidated Gas company of New York today declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a common share. In the last two quarters the company paid 85 cents a share and prior to that had made disbursements of $1 quarterly.

The company issued the following statement: "Dividend action taken by the trustees is due to recent increases in federal and local taxes and to loss of revenue resulting from rate reductions and decreased sales, together with increases in operating expenses already experienced but confronting companies to a much greater degree as a result of compliance with provisions of the NRA."

The company reported for the quarter ended Sept. 30 net income of $6,611,851, equal to 34 cents a common share, compared with $12,298,830 or 83 cents a share in the preceding quarter and $7,053,733 or 38 cents a share a year ago.

For the twelve months ended Sept. 30, net income was $52,766,657, equivalent to $3.64 a common share, against $60,972,089 or $4.36 a share for the year ended Sept. 30, 1932.

FORD SUPPORTS PAYOFF PLAN OF BANK IN DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 26.—(AP)—It was disclosed at a meeting of a depositors' committee today that Henry Ford has turned over to the committee written proxies for $23,000,000 on deposit in the closed Guardian National Bank of Detroit, in support of a depositors' plan for obtaining a payoff from the institution.

The committee announced sufficient proxies have been received to present a plan for a payoff to the federal government. Similar action is to be taken in the case of the closed First National Bank-Detroit.

Name Groups to Liquidate Closed Banks

Completion of the organization for handling the Chicago reserve district's share of the billion dollars of government easy money to be distributed to depositors of closed banks was announced yesterday by James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company.

MELVIN TRAYLOR.

Appraisals of assets will begin with banks that have closed since Jan. 1. Instructions from the RFC state the appraisals should be based on "a fair liquidating value over a period of three to five years."

Form Executive Committee

The work will be supervised by an executive committee of four members, headed by Mr. Leavell and including Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank; Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Abner J. Stilwell, vice president of the Continental bank. Under the executive committee will be a special advisory and appraisal committee of 14, to be made up of the four executive committee members and two members from each of the five states which are included, in whole or part, in the seventh reserve district.

The two state members on the general committee will pick three more persons from their respective states to handle the work in their districts.

Members of State Committees.

Indiana—Robert Batton, Marion, vice president, First National bank; Myron H. Gray, Muncie, attorney and director of the Mercantile Trust and Savings bank.

Iowa—Herbert L. Horton, Des Moines, vice president, Iowa-Des Moines National bank; Henry Knollen, Des Moines, president of Equitable Life Insurance company of Iowa.

Michigan—William R. McCaslin, Grand Rapids, attorney and director of the Peoples National bank; H. C. Wagner, Muskegon, vice president of the Hackley-Union National bank.

CANADA FAVORS NRA PRICE BASE FOR NEWSPRINT

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 26.—[Special.]—Leaders of Canada's newsprint companies are back from Washington, where they attended a conference with Gen. Johnson, the NRA chieftain, and U. S. newsprint publishers. A four point program was adopted to govern until Nov. 15. Before the latter date is reached, however, it is likely that a "baby" NRA code will be evolved by Canadian newsprint industries to meet the United States administration demands, the newsprint industry being dependent upon the United States market for the bulk of its output.

Premier Taschereau of Quebec today commended moves of the NRA to set a minimum price for newsprint which will be a profitable one, and promised Canadian coöperation in obtaining full support for such an agreement.

TWO CLEVELAND BANK OFFICERS FOUND GUILTY

Cleveland, O., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Two former officials of the closed Standard bank were convicted today on embezzlement charges growing out of the investigation into the bank's $13,000,000 failure. The conviction carries possible penalties of up to 40 years in prison and fines of $10,000 each.

C. Stirling Smith, who rose to bank president from messenger boy, and Dale T. Winslow, auditor of the bank, were found guilty by Common Pleas Judge Arthur H. Day of embezzling $19,253.28 in February, 1930. Judge Day heard the case without a jury.

Defense counsel said a motion for a new trial would be filed Monday, to be heard later in the week. If the motion is overruled, sentence will be pronounced then.

STOCKS REACT AS GOLD BOOM BUYING DRIES UP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 26.—Three days proved sufficient for the speculative crowd to exhaust its enthusiasm over the administration's new monetary policy and today found the market settling back into its former dullness. Prices eased down 1 to 3 points, with trading volume falling below 1,225,000 shares.

The selling was fairly uniform with respect to groups. Most of the gold mining shares encountered further profit taking in spite of the R. F. C.'s action just before the market opening in boosting the price of metal to $31.54 an ounce, as compared with its initial price yesterday of $31.36. Homestake was an exception, however, running counter to the trend for a rise of some 20 points.

Liquor Shares Weaken.

Early firmness in the liquor shares failed to carry through and the close found such leaders of the division as American Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers, and Commercial Solvents 1 to 2 points below their previous finals. U. S. Industrial Alcohol was the "independent" of this group, rising about 2 points while its fellows took the back road. Schenley Distillers closed unchanged.

Cutting of the Consolidated Gas dividend to a $3 annual basis from $3.40 unsettled the utilities. Consolidated common dropped about two points but recovered about half its initial loss while the preferred gave up more than 3 points. Public Service and Peoples Gas, dipped a point each and Detroit Edison tumbled more than 3. American Telephone was subjected to rather heavy selling at intervals and surrendered about 3 points of the gain it ran up on the renewed inflationary movement growing out of the President's radio speech last Sunday night.

Steels Sell Lower.

Disappointment over the failure of expected rail orders to materialize brought moderate selling into United States Steel, causing it to fall back about two points. Some support was forthcoming for the old bellwether in the later dealings, however, and about half the early loss was recovered. Other steels were weak in sympathy.

Profit taking counted against the rails, New York Central, Union Pacific, Atchison, and Southern Railway bearing the brunt of the selling.

Favorable third quarter earnings reports helped such stocks as General Motors, Hercules Powder, and Air Reduction, for all of which substantial improvement over the corresponding 1932 quarter was shown, to weather the storm.

Beyond the series of quarterly earnings statements and the announcement of the advanced price on gold metal there was little in the day's news to influence any particular activity on either side of the market.

NO TRADING YET IN RFC NOTES GIVEN FOR GOLD

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A market for the new 90 day debentures of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to be issued in payment for gold was opened in Wall street today, but no business was done in the securities.

At the offices of Salomon Brothers & Hutzler, specialists in government securities, it was said the initial price of the debentures would depend upon the amount offered, but the opinion was expressed that it would be on a discount basis of ¾ of one per cent exclusive of the ¼ of one per cent the obligations bear. If any are sold on that basis the seller will be taking a discount of that amount and foregoing the ¼ of 1 per cent interest as well. Such price basis for these government guaranteed 90 day obligations is close to the yield now obtainable from commercial paper.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation was said to be preparing a description of the debentures and regulations under which they will be put out. Dealers in government securities said they were anxious to obtain more detailed information on them before the market becomes active.

Baldwin Locomotive Has $4,004,823 Loss for Year

The Baldwin Locomotive works reported for the twelve months ended Sept. 30 a net loss of $4,004,823 after depreciation, interest, Midvale company minority interest, and other charges, compared with a net loss of $4,311,924 for the preceding twelve months. Sales totaled $7,728,372, against $14,653,472.

Bethlehem's Business Best in 27 Months

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The best business since the second quarter of 1931 was reported by the Bethlehem Steel corporation in a statement today detailing operations for the quarter ended Sept. 30 last.

EUGENE G. GRACE.

The corporation's report for the third quarter disclosed a deficit, after all expenses, including interest and provision for depletion and depreciation, of $283,097. This is comparable with a loss of $3,312,846 for the three months ended June 30 and $5,425,724 for the third quarter of last year.

While current operations were estimated at about 24 per cent of capacity, these were at 40.8 per cent during the quarter reported.

Grace Reports Declining Demand.

President Eugene G. Grace said steel demand had recently been on the decline, due largely to a letup in steel buying by automobile makers. He pointed out that the company's costs under the NRA code had been increased about $1,000,000 monthly from a previously estimated $700,000.

Operations of the company and its subsidiaries for the September quarter resulted in total income of $4,879,146, compared with $1,669,559 in the second quarter and a loss of $541,756 in the September quarter, last year.

The value of orders on hand Sept. 30 was $72,155,458, compared with $42,647,681 on June 30 and $23,598,882 on Sept. 30, 1932.

Expects Rail Buying Later.

Grace said he had heard discussions of possible railway car buying later in the year, but had no first hand knowledge of the prospect, although increased railway equipment buying would be a great help to the industry. He said he had received no word as yet as to the attitude of Railroad Coordinator Eastman on the steel companies' offer to take the some 1,000,000 tons of business accumulated by the coördinator at $37.25 a ton. Eastman had asked for a price of $35 a ton or less.

CANADA'S PRIME MINISTER TELLS INFLATION PERIL

OTTAWA, Ontario, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in an address here today said there was need for confidence behind paper money.

"Inflation," he asserted, "means that without any real restriction a nation continues to issue promises to pay without having gold reserves to back up the promise. No country that has once experienced inflation of its currency would ever want to go through it again.

"The essence of all money is that quality that causes a person to accept it without question as to its value and passes it along to another person with that same confidence in its worth. If governments issue enormous quantities of these pieces of paper the value of its promise to pay goes down in proportion to the number put into circulation.

"The danger lies not in what we do at home because any medium might be used for domestic purposes. But when you consider the position of Canada as a country borrowing in the markets of the world, a debtor to the extent of hundreds of millions, then you can see that maintenance of international credit depends upon the nation placing behind its paper promise something that inspires confidence in its power to redeem it to the letter of the contract."

YOUNGSTOWN HAS SMALLER LOSS IN THIRD QUARTER

Youngstown Sheet and Tube company for the quarter ended Sept. 30 reported net loss of $1,177,576, against net loss of $3,241,444 in the September quarter of 1932. Nine months' net loss was $6,858,538, against net loss of $9,588,041 in the first nine months of 1932.

Ludlum Steel company and its subsidiaries report for the quarter ended Sept. 30 net profit of $166,305, against $20,429 in the preceding quarter and net loss of $101,776 for the corresponding period last year. For the nine months ended Sept. 30 the company had net profits of $79,070, compared with net loss of $241,412 for the same period in 1932.

Net profit of $263,335 for the September quarter was reported by the Wheeling Steel corporation, compared with $482,143 in the second quarter and net loss of $775,352 for the third quarter last year. For the first nine months the company had a net loss of $56,940, against net loss of $2,284,813 for the corresponding period last year.

Gain Partly Due to Dollar's Behavior

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—(AP)—An unexpected slump in imports plus an unusual increase in exports translated the nation's August unfavorable trade balance of $23,000,000 into a September favorable balance of $13,000,000, the largest favorable balance since April.

Department of commerce economists privately emphasized, however, that the gain was small and that its significance was somewhat blurred by the conflicting economic factors now troubling world trade.

The September balance was less than half the favorable balance of $33,626,000 at the same time last year, while the total balance for the nine months of this year was only $87,874,000 as compared to $171,758,000 in the same period of 1932.

Month's Exports $160,000,000.

Exports in September were $160,000,000, compared with imports of $147,000,000, and compared with exports of $131,000,000 and imports of $154,000,000 in August. The dollar value of both imports and exports for both months was higher this year than last, but price increases accounted for a considerable part of the gain, although there was a substantial increase in the quantity of goods moved.

The export gain in September of 22 per cent compared to a normal gain of 14 per cent in that month, and the import drop of 5 per cent compared to the normal 1 per cent, were accounted for largely by comparative monetary stability in the latter part of August and early in September. This led purchasers and sellers to take advantage of the favorable rate of exchange for dollars, believing there would be little change in the immediate future.

Halted by Lower Dollar.

The same factor in reverse probably developed the unfavorable balance in August when foreign traders, under the influence of July's declining dollar, hesitated to make advance contracts because of possible further declines.

"The decline in the value of imports," said E. A. Tupper of the commerce department's economic research division, "followed the rapid expansion from $88,000,000 in April to $155,000,000 in August. While enlarged domestic activity contributed to the rising volume of trade through August the declining value of the dollar in foreign exchange stimulated a considerable amount of forward buying.

"As a result of the slackening of business activity in August and the contra-seasonal decline of September, as well as the narrowing of fluctuations in dollar exchange during August and the first few days of September, some decline in imports was to be expected."

FRANCE'S GREAT RESERVE OF GOLD DECLINES AGAIN

PARIS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The great gold reserve of the Bank of France has decreased 214,000,000 francs [about $12,626,000], it was revealed in figures released today. For the seventh consecutive week the bank has lost gold.

The figures appeared to confirm the warning of former Premier Edouard Daladier to parliament last Friday that 200,000,000 francs have been withdrawn in a single day, indicating the franc was shaky.

The gold reserve still is 81,786,000,000 francs [$4,825,374,000, approximately], making a 101 per cent banking for bank notes.

Swedish Conversion Loan of $30,000,000 Offered

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—An offer of the kingdom of Sweden to refund some $30,000,000 of 5½ per cent gold bonds, due in 1954, into a new issue of kroner obligations bearing a coupon of 3½ per cent and redeemable after 1943, was announced today by the National City bank. The 5½ per cent bonds, listed on the New York Stock exchange, advanced 1½ points today to a new high for the year at 103½.

New York, Oct. 26.—The advance in foreign loans and to a lesser extent in domestic corporation issues and the weakness in United States government obligations were reversed today when the government issues moved irregularly higher and all other groups of the listed bond market were inclined to be lower. Trading fell off, totaling $10,082,500, compared with $11,681,000 on the previous day.

The losses in foreign loans, on the average, were much less than in the case of domestic corporation issues. French government and municipal loans declined fractionally to 2⅞ points with the single exception of City of Lyons 6s, which moved up half a point.

Lose Small Part of Recent Gain.

Dutch East Indies issues closed 3½ off to 2¾ up, and Swiss government 5½s sold off 1½. These losses, however, were slight compared with the sharp gains of earlier in the week.

Swedish government 5½s, due 1954, were by far the most active of the foreign issues, reflecting the conversion offer made today to bondholders by which a gain in principal is offered to offset a reduction in interest. The issue closed at 103½, up 1½ points. Other Scandinavian loans were quietly traded. Australian bonds were active and strong, and Kingdom of Italy 7s crossed par for a new high on the movement. German loans were irregularly lower on the day.

Long List of Rails Lower.

Recessions in a long list of domestic railroad bonds ranged from 1 to more than 2 points, with only a comparative handful of issues able to make any headway against the downward trend. Industrial bonds, on the average, held up better than did utility issues. In the latter, most of the communications issues closed slightly lower.

Domestic bonds on the curb exchange closed moderately lower on the day, while the foreign group pointed higher. The principal losses in the former group amounted to a point or two.

Simmons Company.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me some information regarding Simmons?—N. C. C.

Answer: Simmons company is the world's largest manufacturer of metal beds, mattresses and bed springs. These activities comprise 75 per cent of total output, the remainder being manufacture of metal and wood furniture and textiles.

In 1929 the company acquired Berkey & Gay Furniture company and F. B. Huntley Furniture company. This step proved unprofitable, primarily as the result of the severe contraction of general purchasing power that followed in the four ensuing years. In 1931 the company wrote off its investment in Berkey & Gay.

Sales in the three months to Sept. 30, 1933, were greatly in excess of year ago sales. September alone accounted for a 30.4 per cent increase over the 1932 month. August was up 74.9 per cent, and July 145.4 per cent. For the first nine months sales were 21.7 per cent above the first nine months of 1932.

Net sales in the first half of 1933 totaled $10,239,000, and loss was $289,000. For the first six months of 1932 net sales were $9,240,000 and loss was $1,249,000.

Sales in 1932 aggregated $18,818,000, against $28,679,000 in 1931, $42,796,000 in 1930 and $50,364,000 in 1929. In 1932 the company lost $2,884,000, against loss of $858,000 in 1931 and loss of $1,196,000 in 1930. Net income in 1929 was $4,627,000 or $4.15 per common share.

Current assets of $10,820,000 at the close of 1932 included $4,936,000 cash. Current liabilities were $1,451,000. Reduction in stated volume of common stock in 1932 by about $20,000,000 left the company at the close of the year with capital surplus of about $7,000,000 and earned surplus of $4,281,000.

Total funded debt was about $9,700,000. There are outstanding $1,004,000 of subsidiary preferred stock and 1,133,236 shares of parent company capital stock.

Nothing has been paid on the capital stock since May 1, 1930.

The substantial increase in sales during the third quarter of this year and the comparatively small loss for the first half indicate that a continuation of present operations might result in a profitable year for the company.

The company occupies a strong trade position and working capital is impressive. Outstanding bonds do not mature until 1944.

Investors' Guide: Your opinion of Tennessee Copper and Chemical corporation 6 per cent debentures, due 1914, will be appreciated.—R. P. C.

Answer: Interest charges on this issue were earned by comfortable margins prior to 1931, but were covered only 1.03 times in 1931. In 1932 there was a loss of $584,000 before interest. Pending definite signs of improvement in earnings the bonds are regarded as speculative.

WHEAT SLUMPS AS TRADERS TRY TO TAKE PROFITS

Ignore Rise in Gold Price; Corn Also Easier.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A small advance in the price of gold as announced by the RFC yesterday fell flat as a market influence in grain. Efforts on the part of buyers to secure profits disclosed a lack of aggressive support and prices dropped sharply. Wheat led the decline, closing 2⅝ to 3 cents lower, with the December delivery at 85½ to 85⅝ cents.

Announcement that the government would loan 50 cents per bushel on cash corn, Chicago basis, resulted in heavy buying of cash grain by eastern distributors, as the corn could be obtained around 46⅛ to 47⅜ cents on track here at the present time. A total of 510,000 bushels was reported sold and the removal of hedges on this grain had some effect on the December delivery, which closed only ⅛ cent lower for the day at 47½ to 47⅝ cents, while the distant futures were off ¾ cent, with May at 52⅞ to 53 cents.

Rye Futures Weaken.

Houses with northwestern connections sold rye futures steadily. While there was good buying at times the close was 2¼ to 2¾ cents lower with December at 60⅝ cents. Oats dropped 1⅝ to 2 cents with December 35⅝ to 35⅞ cents. Barley was off ⅞ to 1 cent with December at 48⅜ cents.

Exports of 1,824,000 bushels of wheat from Russia in the last week had a depressing effect on the Liverpool market, which closed 1⅝ to 2 cents lower. Winnipeg eased in sympathy and was off 1⅞ to 2 cents at the close.

Less comment was heard during the day regarding the price of gold and its probable effect on commodity values, but leading interests in the grain trade expressed the belief that it might be a few days before what was actually intended was finally understood by the public.

Broad Speculation Lacking.

The erratic fluctuations in the markets are regarded as due to a considerable extent to lack of a broad speculative interest.

There is a strong undercurrent of belief the various developments at Washington designed to strengthen the grain and commodity markets are overshadowing what is regarded as a very favorable statistical position for an upturn in grains.

Cash wheat is selling on track at Chicago at the December price to 1 cent over; while cash corn is ⅜ to 1⅛ cents under the December and No. 2 white oats are at the December price to 1½ cents over. A short time ago cash wheat was as much as 4 cents under the future and corn was at a discount of about 5 cents.

There has been some buying of grain futures lately by people who are said to be hedging their holdings of property of various kinds of purchases of grain futures, on the theory the probable gain on the purchases of grain will fully offset any depreciation sustained by the lower value of the dollar.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Live heavy white ducks were 1c higher. Receipts one car and 48 trucks. Butter was steady to ¼c higher, the latter on standards. Receipts, 8,251 tubs. Government buying of butter had little effect. Fresh eggs were in demand, and ½c higher on fresh and ¼c higher on refrigerators. Receipts, 3,578 cases. Potatoes about steady. Receipts, 131 cars, with 383 cars on team track.

80% OF WHEAT ACREAGE SIGNS FOR REDUCTIONS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace announced today that wheat farmers have signed up the equivalent of about 80 per cent of the average national seeded acreage in the farm adjustment administration's acreage reduction campaign.

He estimated that cash benefits to farmers for agreements to restrict plantings next year 15 per cent will exceed $102,000,000, of which they will receive slightly more than two-thirds this fall.

The first checks will be issued next week and will go to farmers in several Virginia counties who have completed the sign-up campaign. Distribution of checks to the large wheat growing sections of the great plains will hit its peak during November, Wallace said.

570,263 Farms Have Signed.

Applications have been signed covering 570,263 farms on which wheat is grown and representing 51,925,612 acres. A reduction of 15 per cent on this area for the crop to be harvested next year will reduce plantings about 7,780,000 acres. Whether farmers, who either are not eligible or have determined not to join the wheat reduction program, will increase their plantings has not yet been determined.

The percentage of sign-ups by states and the estimated sum farmers in each receive in benefit payments this fall and next spring for twenty states in which the campaign is practically complete follow:

	Percentage.	Payments.
Kansas	95 to 100	$24,285,000
North Dakota	95 to 100	14,683,000
Nebraska	75	6,426,000

Leading States Give Strong Support.

George N. Peek, farm administrator, said that the campaign has been delayed in Texas and that a substantial increase in the number of farmers signing there is expected in the coming weeks.

Peek said that returns on the wheat campaign show that, in general, the leading wheat producing states have accepted the plan "wholeheartedly, while in some of the regions in which production is mixed and farms are small, a lower percentage has signed up."

Peek announced that he expects early action on the proposed code for the nation's grain exchanges. He said it is now being redrafted by representatives of the exchanges at Chicago to clear up "differences of interpretations of some things."

KELVINATOR CO. BUSINESS GAINS; JOBS INCREASED

As a result of additional business, the sales organization of Kelvinator corporation in the Chicago district has been increased 50 per cent, the installation and delivery department more than 100 per cent, and the factory personnel 300 per cent.

This was announced yesterday at the offices of the L. C. Wiswell Co., Kelvinator distributors, where 120 dealers and salesmen met for the award of cash prizes in a nation-wide contest.

The salesmen in the Chicago district made by far the best showing in the contest when they went 350 per cent over their quota.

WOOL MARKETS

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 26.—With the market already in a strong statistical position, the entire wool trade looked for even higher prices to result from the administration's gold purchasing policy. Some price adjustment has been made as the demand for wool slowed down in the past few days. These included a drop in fine pulled woolen wools from $1.05 to $1.00 for fine scoured AA, bringing the price in better proportion to that for worsted wools.
